

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. RECENT DEATHS.

Charles J. F. Binney.

Mr. Charles James Fox Binney died at his residence in Binney street, Roxbury, Sunday, aged eighty-two. He was the oldest son of Captain John Binney, a merchant of Boston, and was born in this city Oct. 2, 1806. He attended the school of Rev. Joseph Richardson in Hingham, next the private school of Rev. William Jenks in Boston, and in 1819 the public Latin School of Boston, under Benjamin A. Gould. Afterwards he was a student at Captain Alden Partridge's military academy at Norwich, Vt., but preferring mercantile life, he entered his father's store, 33, Long wharf, about 1825. In 1826, as a member of the Boston Light Infantry, he visited New York city. After his father's death he continued his business for many years. Of late years he attended to commission and ship brokerage business. Mr. Binney was an early member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, and was active in advancing its interest. In 1852 he published the "History and Genealogy of the Prentiss or Prentiss Family," from which he himself was descended. A second edition, enlarged, corrected and illustrated, was published by him in 1883. In 1886 he published a genealogy of the Binney family, and he was engaged in writing a history of the town of Hull, at the time of his death. On the 29th of October, 1829, he married Clarissa, daughter of Deacon George Loring, with whom he passed fifty-nine years of married life. Nine years ago they celebrated their golden wedding. They had six children, two of whom survive, Major George L. Binney of Tidoute, Pa., and Isabella, wife of Henry F. Stodder of Brookline. After the death of his daughter Emily, in 1839, a full-length marble statue of her as she, as if asleep, dressed in her usual clothes, lay in her crib, was made by Henry Dexter, the well-known sculptor, and was placed in his lot in Yarrow path at Mount Auburn Cemetery, where it attracts much attention. Mr. Binney was a corresponding member of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, and a member of the Marine Society.

PREFACE.

THE editor of the first edition of the "Prentice or Prentiss Genealogy" of 1852, which was long since exhausted, had sent him in 1882 the letters, MSS., etc., received by and collected by the late E. C. Prentiss, of Brighton, Mass., with a request to arrange them for the press for an enlarged, revised, and corrected second edition; to which he has added much material collected by himself. After various plans were tried without result, printed circulars were issued to some two thousand of the name and connections, for further records, and for subscriptions for copies of the work to cover the cost of publication, etc., intending to have illustrations in it, if possible, but so little interest was manifest and so few copies subscribed for, that they had to be dispensed with unless the expense of them was defrayed by the senders, and reducing the proposed edition from 500 to 350 copies, and that, after much expenditure of time, trouble, and money. He relies on those interested to make its publication known and to dispose of the copies left over of this edition.

The plan Mr. Prentiss adopted is followed. The first known ancestor in the United States is No. 1, and of the first generation. The number against the head of a family, on the right-hand side of a page, is subsequently repeated on the left-hand side of a page. The small figure over a name is the generation from the ancestor. Children of a Prentice are numbered with Roman numerals; those of females who intermarried with other names are in common numerals, and their husbands' names in italics. Where the ancestor of a family is not known, the generation number is omitted. The branches from Scotland, Ireland, or England are separate, and one branch, also, whose names were changed to Prentiss by an act of the New Hampshire Legislature.

As the name is variously spelt by descendants of the first comers, it is often necessary to examine the index of Prentice-Prentiss-Prentis for individuals (who are only once named on a page), though the spelling is preserved where known, or as sent. An index of other names is added.

Henry Prentice, "planter," of Cambridge, Mass., is the ancestor of that branch. Valentine, of Roxbury, and his son John, the "smith," of New London, Ct., who with his descendants there spelt Prentis, is ancestor of that branch. Robert, of Roxbury, and (probably) his sons, James and Thomas the 2d, of Newton, and his (supposed) brother, Capt. Thomas, the "trooper," of Newton, Mass., especially the latter, is the ancestor of the Newton branch, and extending into Connecticut. All these are supposed to have been related to each other. Several families could not tell who their grandparents were or neglected to send that information to trace them to a known branch. Future copies, if any left, until the edition is exhausted, can be had at the price named in the circular to non-subscribers.

The writer would express his thanks to those who have sent many records in their line. Especially to L. H. Prentice, of Chicago, for his valuable aid and interest in the work, without which he would have abandoned it as a thankless task, in trying to preserve information valuable to the name. Though there appear to be no millionnaires of the name, the stock is good, and each pursues his individual calling in comfortable circumstances, as believed, and respected by neighbors and friends. A number follow Franklin's profession. Should a gathering of the whole clan be had at any time, with those connected, it would bring a small army together, and be a pleasant reunion, as a few separate branches have had heretofore. The writer now introduces the present to the past.

THE PRENTICE-PRENTISS FAMILIES.

THIS is an old English name. Rymer's "Fœdera," Vol. III., p. 730, mentions Thomas Prentiz, A. D. 1318, An. 12, Edward II. See also English Branches for William de Prentice de Leak, England, 1341. Pelkinton's "Derbyshire," London, 1789, Vol. II., speaks of Peter Prentiz, member of the House of Commons from Derby, 34 and 35 Edward III., about 1361-2, and John Prentiz, a member from Derby, An. 6, Henry IV., and of Elizabeth Prentise,* who m. the Earl of Ferran, A. D. 1778, and Richard Prentiz, Vol. VIII, p. 294, A. D. 1403, An. 4, Henry IV. John Prentys was Rector of Winterborn, Bradston, Aug. 22, 1713, and Prebendary of York, North Newbold, which he resigned Aug. 22, 1723. A few other early names are in the Great Britain branches.

The name in America is believed to have been originally spelled Prentice.† Some branches since spell it Prentiss, and some Prentis. In the following pages the names of the different branches are spelled as found, or written by themselves, when known; otherwise written Prentice. Capt. Thomas Prentice, of Newton, Mass., wrote tice, as did Henry the Planter, of Cambridge, Mass. Some branches in Great Britain yet spell Prentis and Prentiss; the most of them spell Prentice. Many of the younger American branches have changed the name from tis to tiss or tice, or vice versa; and it is often necessary in tracing one to look at the index spelled each way.

The first one of the name yet found recorded in America was Valentine Prentice, who came over from Nazing, Essex County, Eng., with the apostle "Eliot," in 1631, with his wife, Alice, and son, John Prentice (another child died on the passage), and settled in

* Variouslly spelled.

† On old records in New England, names of individuals were often written by town clerks, etc., from their mode of spelling, from the sound of a name. The original Roxbury and Cambridge branches spelled Prentice. Valentine, of Roxbury, name was spelled there on the records tice; but after his son, John the "smith," went to New London, Ct., that name there is spelled Prentis, and is so continued in that branch, though some of the subsequent families of it have since spelled tiss and tice.

Roxbury, Mass. It is supposed that Valentine, of Roxbury, Robert, of Roxbury, Henry, of Cambridge, and Capt. Thomas, of Cambridge and Newton, were in some way connected. The descendants of Valentine, Henry and Capt. Thomas will be given in the following pages, and Robert and descendants further on.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., BRANCH.

1. HENRY PRENTICE, "planter," of Cambridge, Mass., was there before 1640, and probably born in England. He was a member of the First Church, Cambridge, Mass., formed in 1636, whose members were taken and registered 11 mo., 1658, by Rev. Jonathan Mitchell of that church.* He owned lands in Sudbury, Mass., as one of the original proprietors in the second and third divisions of land there in 1630. He died, per Cambridge town records, June 9, 1654. "Inventory of the estate of Henry Prentice, Sen., of Cambridge, 1663: House and 5 acres land and orchard, £27; 3 acres in Westfield, £7, 10; 3 acres meadow at Ale — — (?), £3; two do. on South-side of river, £2; 1 bed, table, and chayre, 6/; bed bolster and 3 blankets, £2, 6, 0; 1 pr. sheets, 12/; 1 new sheet, 3/; 1 coarse do., 4/6^d; napkins, 3/4^d=£1, 2, 4; 2 iron pots, 8/; 1 kettle, 1 chair, beetle and wedges and handsaw, 4/; a little table and bowl and little barrel, 2/; 1 pail, 1 stool, 1 pr tongs, 1 warming pan, 1 hoe. 3/4^d; 2 cows, £9; 1 pewter dish, 1 porringer, 1 smoothing iron, 2/; 1 town rate in Sudbury, £1.—Prized by Gilbert, his X mark, Crackbone, and Gregory Stone, Oct. 16, 1663." His relict widow, Joan, and John Gibson, "her now husband," administrators. The Court ordered distribution, to the widow, £20; rest to the children, except to oldest son, double. In 1648 he and wife deed these lands (Sudbury) to John Goodnow. Henry Prentice was freeman, Cambridge, May 22, 1653. His first wife was Elizabeth —, who d. May 13, 1653, O. S. He m., 2d, Joane — (per Savage). Henry Prentice d. June 9, 1654, O. S. Dr. Holmes among the Prince manuscripts in the Old South Church, Boston. It had double columns of names. The new stone church near the Washington Elm in Cambridge, Rev. Dr. McKenzie, pastor, is the Shepard Church. The Unitarian Church, Cambridge, Rev. Mr. Hall, pastor, is named the First Church.

9. DEA. HENRY³ PRENTICE, "brickmaker," son of Solomon and Hepzibah; m., 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Wm. Rand, of Milk Row, Charlestown, Mass. She d. March 13, 1748-9, ae. 52.‡ He m., 2d, Nov. 8, 1749, Elizabeth Hayley, of Boston, who d. April 7, 1775, ae. 78. In the settlement of his father's estate, he was allowed for four and one half years' services £60 "in the new house"; his share in his father's lands was £92, at "Westfield gate." He was deacon at Rev. Dr. Nathaniel Appleton's Presbyterian Church in Cambridge from Nov. 24, 1741, to July 14, 1774, when he resigned. A valuable document, instituting the first prayer-meeting, written and signed by him, was in possession of Rev. Mr. Albrow, of the Shepard Congregational Church, Cambridge, and claimed as church property, but all trace of it is lost. Dea. Prentice was a tall and very grave-looking man, and on the Sabbath occupied the "deacons' seat," directly in front of the minister. In cold weather, when he took off his hat in church, he put on a green woollen tasselled cap, as the top of his head was bald. He owned the Fresh Pond property in Cambridge, afterwards bought by his grandsons, Henry and Appleton Prentice, noted Boston merchants. His house, where he lived many years, still § remains in Cambridge, about forty rods from the Washington Elm, next to the parsonage of the new Shepard Church. It was formerly occupied by Miss Elizabeth Bates, having been purchased by her father about 1780. In 1877 the house was said to be two hundred years old and in good preservation, built of oak, the walls filled in with brick, the beams showing half-way through the ceiling of the rooms. It is a two-story house, about thirty-foot front; the front door in the centre faces now in the yard, a room each side of the

Tabitha (Prentiss) Green had a sister Susannah and a daughter Susannah. (A memoir of Rev. Nathaniel Green, by Samuel S. Green, Professor of Mathematics and Civil Engineering, Brown University, Providence, R. I., and by Rev. John A. Vinton, in "Vinton Family," 1882, p. 423, No. 170.)

11. REV. NATHANIEL³ PRENTICE, Harvard College, 1715, son of Henry and Mary, m., 1724, Mary, dau. of Judge William Tyng, of Nashua. He was ordained, 1718, in Dunstable, Mass., as successor of Rev. Mr. Wells. The History of Dunstable says that he began to preach there in June, 1720, and that the town gave him a call Aug. 20 of that year, offering £100 on settlement, and a salary of £80 a year. He accepted, and the town voted, Nov. 13, 1720, that when Mr. Prentice comes to keep house and have a family, and stand in need of a larger supply, then to add reasonable additions to his salary if our abilities will afford it. Dec. 8 of the same year the town again voted that Mr. Prentice after marriage shall have a sufficient supply of wood, or £10 of passable money in lieu thereof, yearly. "He was a man of wit and a good sermonizer"; his wife was a smart, courageous woman and a good shot. 12. REV. SOLOMON⁴ PRENTICE. Harvard College, 1727; son of Solomon and Lydia, m. in Groton, Mass., Sarah, dau. of Nathaniel and Sarah Sartell (who came from England about 1708 or 1709). After graduation he prepared himself for the ministry in Cambridge, under Rev. Mr. Appleton, and took notes of all the sermons he heard preached, which MSS. have been preserved by a descendant. He was settled as the first minister of Grafton, Mass. (then called by the Indian name of Hasanamisco), by the proprietors, on a salary of £100 per year. A day of fasting with religious services was appointed there before his selection; he then was a resident of Cambridge. The day previous to his ordination a church of twenty persons was formed, with a covenant of a highly liberal and catholic spirit, such as was used in some other churches; one clause was "To use the Holy Scriptures as their platform, whereby they might discern the mind and will of Christ, and not the new-found inventions of men." Grafton burial ground. His widow Sarah died Aug. 28, 1792, æ. 76, at her son John's, in Ward, and was buried in Grafton, beside her husband, near the centre of the ground. As there was no stone on her grave in 1850, Mr. Binney sent a small marble slab, with an inscription, to mark the spot, until a suitable slab "proposed by her descendants" is erected; the date of her death and age on the slab are wrong, as her friends then could not give the correct ones. Rev. Thomas Prentice settled about 1728 over the church in Arundel, Me. In 1737 the church was dispersed by the Indian war, and with his wife and three children he returned to Cambridge. While in Cambridge he had three invitations to settle as pastor at one time, from the new North Church, Boston, West Cambridge, and Charlestown, Mass., churches, which latter he accepted, and was installed as colleague of Rev. Hull Abbot, Oct. 31, 1739. Rev. Mr. Abbot's account of the proceedings at Mr. Prentice's settlement shows the importance attached to the selection of a minister in those days, when the whole town was the parish. Previously to the selection they had a town fast, sermon, etc., then Mr. Prentice was invited to preach two Sabbaths as a candidate. At a subsequent meeting, "the church members went to join the town in choice of another pastor," when Mr. Prentice was chosen, and a committee of settlement and entertainment also. There was not a cordiality of feeling between the two pastors over one parish. After Mr. Abbot's death Mr. Prentice continued as sole pastor, to the great satisfaction of his parish, until the opening scenes of the Revolution disturbed and hindered his office. After Charlestown was burnt by the British at the battle of Bunker Hill, so called, June 17, 1775, by which three hundred and eighty houses in Charlestown were burnt, valued at £156,960 18s. 8d., the inhabitants were scattered, and Mr. Prentice returned to Cambridge. When the church was again united, three years afterwards, he rode from Cambridge to Charlestown to officiate. Morse, on the church records says, "The 1st adm^a of the Lord's supper after the reunion, (the now aged) Mr. P. in Charlestown, since the destruction by the cruelist British enemies, was Nov. 8, 1778, with great solemnity and fullness of members beyond expectation." His meeting-house was destroyed and the church met in a block-house small and rudely built, which was fitted up for the purpose, and stood on the hill on the same spot where the church of Mr. Buddington stood in 1852. Here he continued to officiate to a faithful and affectionate audience until his powers of mind, memory, and body were exhausted. He was a very energetic preacher and retained his warmth of manner to the last. His quick motions often displaced his wig in preaching, when his dau. would quickly ascend the platform and readjust it without disturbing the congregation. He at last lost his memory and omitted for two successive Sabbaths previous to the annual Thanksgiving to read the proclamation, when his dau. stepped into the aisle, and reminded him of it, which he gratefully acknowledged, but, owing to infirmity and temporary confusion at the time, he was obliged to request Dea. Frothingham to read it. The last day he preached he delivered the same sermon both morning and afternoon. He lived the latter part of his life in his own house in Cambridge, in which he was born, and where he d. June 17, 1782, ae. 80, and was honorably interred on the burial-ground hill, Charlestown, at the expense of that town. The inscription on the church tablet erected to his memory is, "Rev. Thomas Prentice, born at Cambridge, graduated at Harvard University, 1726. Installed Oct. 31, 1739; died June 17, 1782, ae. 80." Several of his manuscript sermons are preserved by his dau. Rebecca, and several were printed. A very fine portrait, a correct likeness, by Badger, of Boston, 1755, was owned in 1852, by his granddau., Mrs. Rebecca, widow of Mr. Amasa Stetson, of Dorchester, Mass. (See a lithographic copy of it, p. 61 of Binney's "Prentice Genealogy," 1st edition.) The inventory of Mr. Thomas Prentice was £505. Children of Thomas and Irene:

- III. JAMES⁵, b. 1741; Harvard College, 1761; m. Lydia, dau. of Capt. Thomas Sanders, of Gloucester, Mass. James Prentice was captain of marines in a privateer in the Revolutionary war. Taught a grammar school in Gloucester four years (History Gloucester), and was succeeded in 1767 by Philemon Tracy. In 1775, and perhaps previously, he kept a tavern corner of Middle and Pleasant Streets. Soon after the battle of Bunker Hill he is said to have been captain of a company, and to have served during the most or whole of the war. He afterwards settled in Boston, and kept a boarding-house there many years for Cape Ann people, "taking list Boston, 1785." He died there Nov. 26, 1797, ae. 56. His widow continued the boarding-house till 1806, when she returned to Gloucester. No children. "James Printis, 5 days services at 2/4^d, £0. 11. 8, Aug. 7, 1775," guards ordered by the committee of safety to guard the prisoners taken from Lindsay's boats endeavoring to burn Gloucester, from Gloucester to Watertown. (Mass. Documents, State House, Boston, Vol. CCXLVII.) His will, Boston, March 15, 1784, gives all to his wife Lydia.

21. REV. JOSHUA⁴ PRENTICE, Harvard College, 1738, son of Dea. Henry and Elizabeth. About the year 1773 he began to write his name Prentiss, and this branch of the family have since continued that spelling of the name. For a view of his residence in Holliston, see p. 95, Binney's "Genealogy," 1st edition. He m., 1st, Nov. 9, 1743, Mrs. Mary Angier, of Cambridge, Mass.; she d. Jan. 4, 1754, æ. 35; and he m., 2d, Jan. 9, 1755, Margaret, dau. of Rev. Dr. Nathaniel Appleton, of Cambridge. He m., 3d, Jan. 9, 1770, Mary Hayley, who d. in Holliston, May 21, 1804, æ. 81. He was ordained minister of Holliston, Mass., May 18, 1743. Fitch's historical discourses, in Morse's "History of Sherborn," says: "He was the son of an intelligent man," etc. At the age of seven his life was despaired of by fever. His father promised if he was spared he would devote him to God's service. In early life he was bapt. and assumed his parent's obligation. His sentiments were Calvinistic. About five years before he died, owing to protracted illness about 1784, his pastoral connection was dissolved, his salary was withheld, and he was obliged to sue the town, but it was paid and harmony prevailed, and the town exempted him from taxation and gave seats in the meeting-house for his family. The will of Rev. Joshua Prentice, dated Holliston, March 22, 1786, mentions wife Mary, and daus. Margaret and Elizabeth, sons Appleton, Joshua, Thomas, and Henry. He willed Appleton his farm at Cambridge, and he and his other brothers were joint executors. Children by wife Mary (Angier):

IV. ABIGAIL⁶, b. —; m. Stratton, and is dead. "Wm. Prentice lived in the old house, Cambridge, on the site of that occupied by Judge Fay; it was so dilapidated that it decayed over the Prentice family, who finally lived in the cellar part. Wm. Prentice fitted for college but did not enter. Mr. Ireland built on the site of the "house." Mrs. Ruth (Freeman) Bracket called Wm. Prentice cousin. Wm. Prentice was once in good circumstances, dressed well, also fitted boys for college.*

* It is probable that a wife or daughter of one of Wm. Prentice's family may be the "Marin Prentice" who taught a school for small children in Cambridge about 1814. One of the scholars was our poet Dr. O. W. Holmes, who says, "She was fat, kindly, cut up the children's cold meat with her scissors, and had a long rod with which she did little more than tickle up the sleepers and sinners." He thinks she was a widow or had a truant husband.

About the year 1807 the parents of Alonzo T. Prentice (John and Olive) emigrated from New Hampshire to Jefferson County, New York, taking with them Olive, Lorenzo, Alonzo, Peter, and Samuel. At the age of 12 years Alonzo went to Watertown, where he learned the trade of watchmaker, jeweller, and silversmith with a man named Bosworth. In 1815 he had mastered the trade of silversmithing and could make a "splendid spoon," many of which are to be found in Watertown and elsewhere. From Watertown he went to Sackett's Harbor, then to Buffalo with Mr. Bosworth, who started a store there. In 1820 he bought out his employer and carried on the business for himself, and did a thriving trade with the Tonawanda, Seneca, and Tuscarora Indians in selling silver jewelry which he manufactured. He could speak their language fluently and was a great favorite with Red Jacket, William Mountpleasant, and other chiefs, and has often accepted their hospitalities with his wife for the night in their wigwams when in their villages. He was m. in 1823, and soon after moved to Lockport, being one of the first settlers of that city. He was one of the leading merchants and at one time well to do. The following article was clipped from one of the Lockport papers on his death:—

"We have to chronicle the death of one of our oldest and most respected citizens. Alonzo T. Prentice died Thursday, June 27, in the 73d year of his age. Mr. Prentice had been ill several months, yet the announcement of his death produced a shock in the community where he had led a long and exemplary life.

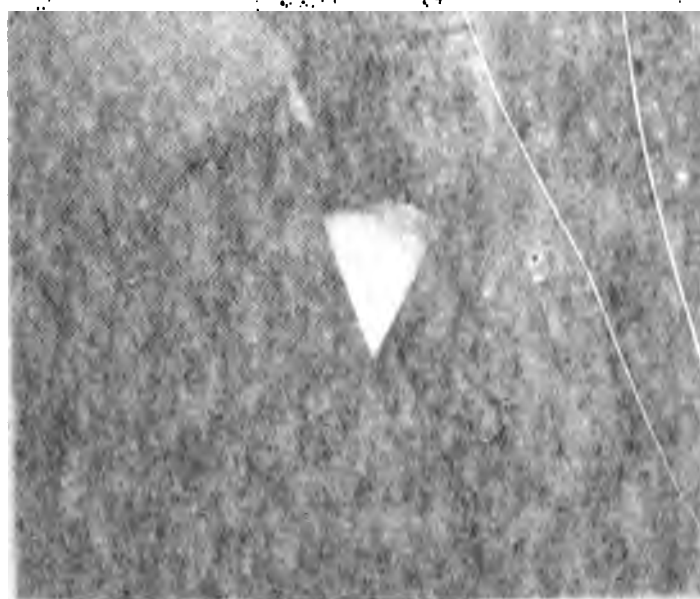

"Mr. Prentice was born in New Hampshire on the 16th of December, 1799. He went to Jefferson County when a boy, where he lived for some time, or until he was 20 years of age, when he travelled to Buffalo. In the latter place he lived three years, and at the age of 23 married an estimable lady of 16 and moved to Lockport (1822), where he resided until his death.

"Mr. Prentice was for many years engaged in the mercantile business in this place, village and city. At one time he had acquired a handsome property, but, lending the use of his name to unfortunate parties, he became insolvent, from which he was a long time sufferer. In the days of his prosperity he exhibited a remarkably enterprising spirit. The stone residence now occupied by Gen. John Jackson, and other substantial and still existing edifices, were erected by him.

"Mr. Prentice was many times honored by his fellow-citizens with positions of public trust, and always acquitted himself with marked credit. He was for several terms justice of the peace, supervisor, and repeatedly elected trustee of the village of Lockport. Mr. Prentice was a good citizen, an honest man, and quitted the world leaving not a single enemy behind." Children :

38. MARY⁵ PRENTICE, dau. of Rev. Solomon and Sarah; was m. by her father in Hull, Mass., to Amos Binney, Jr. (son of Capt. Amos). Amos Binney, Jr., d. in Hull, Nov. 8, 1783. He was a descendant of John Binney, who came from Worksop, or Hull, Eng., and settled in Hull, Mass., about 1679 or 1680. Amos Binney and wife lived in the old house in Hull, which was owned from 1852 to 1882 by Mr. Pope, the postmaster, who still lives there in 1882, and it is a good house yet, though very old. It was built of oak, beams project half through the ceilings, and probably built before 1700. When the British fleet was in Nantasket roads, and blockaded Boston, owing to the exposed and nearly isolated situation of Hull, the inhabitants were obliged to leave their homes and property, except what they could hurriedly take with them, and quit the place, by order of the American general. Amos and Mary, with their mother, and his children, Nancy, the youngest, then an infant, went in a boat, passing near a British man-of-war. The small boat, loaded nearly to the water's edge, touched at Hingham, but, that town being full, they proceeded to Weymouth, Mass., where they lived till the fleet sailed. Amos returned to fetch off his flocks, and while going to Pettix Island with his brother Spencer Binney, they were captured and taken on board the British vessel, until Mr. Haswell, a lieutenant on the British marine service, then remaining in Hull, and father of the celebrated authoress and teacher, Mrs. Susanna Rowson, came off and interceded with the commander of the ship, who was a friend of his. He told him that Mr. Binney was one of the selectmen of the town and had a family dependent upon him. He was called, and, being dressed in his working suit, the officers laughed at the appearance of the "selectman" and dismissed him, but kept Spencer until Amos redeemed him with fourteen sheep. On the return of the inhabitants they found their houses plundered of every movable thing. The town suffered, also, from the French troops, landed here to recruit, and from the American troops also. Many of the gravestones were used by the French for bottoms of their ovens, for laundry purposes, and many broken. Mrs. Binney was an excellent woman, pious, industrious, active, and energetic, and of a good education for those times. She had to support her family from a small farm and her own exertions, but found time to educate her own and other children. When her sons Amos and John had gone into business in Boston she lived with one of them, and died at her son Col. Amos Binney's house, May 13, 1813, ae. 62. She had light hair and a Prentice look. One Sunday, while she was alone in the house, Mary discovered a robber in the act of stealing the silver in the house; she raised an alarm, and pursued him; he threw the silver into a ditch and escaped. In 1840, Mr. Binney, compiler of the "Prentice Genealogy," removed her remains from the family tomb, Copps Hill, Boston, and those of his mother from Wiscasset, Me., and all of his father's family, deceased, to his family lot, No. 681 Yarrow Path, Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge, Mass. Children of Amos and Mary (Prentice) Binney:

4. AMOS, b. April 15, 1778; m., 1799, Mary Dolliver. He was an active, enterprising, and benevolent man of the liberal Methodist persuasion, was navy agent, Boston, before and many years after 1812. He used great exertions, with the financial aid of "Billy Gray," to fit out the vessels of our navy from Boston, and the "Constitution," under Commodore Hull, "Old Ironsides," in season to capture the "Guerriere." He did much to develop the mineral resources of New England. Was president of the Boston and Worcester Railroad, and of the Market Bank. At a large fire, by purchasing bales of blankets kept wet, he preserved Joy's Building, for which a service of plate was given him. He d. in Boston, at his house, Jan. 11, 1838, ae. 55. The family have an excellent oil portrait* of him. He left five children; six others d. young. Dr.

* A copy of this portrait, also by Harding, is in Wilbraham Academy, in the chapel of which is a tablet to Mr. Binney's memory, he having been a benefactor to that institution.

In 1813 marched with his company to Burlington, and was in several skirmishes in the Chautauque woods and frontier. Resigned, 1814, at the close of the campaign and the death of his wife in Wiscasset. He returned to Boston, as a merchant, and was a large ship-owner there. Established the North and Granite Banks, and was first president of each, and of the Tremont Insurance Company, which he established and made very successful while under his management; was alderman of Boston, member of the House of Representatives, Massachusetts Legislature, projector of the "Lessees" of City Wharf, Boston. Was a great reader and of extensive information. He d. at his residence, Boston, April 16, 1838, ae. 58. He m., 1st, 1804, Sarah Ann, dau. of Joseph Callender, Boston; Mrs. Binney d. at Wiscasset, Me., 1814. Six children by his first wife. He m., 2d, in Boston, 1818, Judith Cooper Russell; six children by second wife. The compiler of the "Prentice Genealogy," C. J. F. Binney, was a son of John by his first wife, Sarah Ann, and has an excellent oil painting of him by Harding. Hon. Jonathan Binney, of Halifax, N. S., and his descendant, Dr. Hibbert Binney, "Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia and Prince Edward's Island," and Hon. Horace Binney, of Philadelphia, were also descended from the ancestor John and wife Mercy, of Hull, Mass.

prevented his attention to business. He was representative to the State Legislature, 1810; town clerk over thirty years. During the Revolutionary war he removed his family from Marblehead to Andover, Mass., for safety. He was of a lively disposition, full of jokes and fun, and was highly respected. His son, Caleb Prentiss of Danvers, Mass., had his commission dated Feb. 12, 1773, as lieutenant in the military foot company, in Marblehead, under Capt. Thos. Pedrick, signed by Gov. Hutchinson, Commander-in-Chief of Massachusetts Bay Province, with the seal of England, 13th of George IV., attached, and his commission as surveyor and inspector, 1804, by Thomas Jefferson, President, and one of a renewal by President Monroe, 1821, and President Jackson's renewal of it, 1829, and his commission as justice of the peace by Gov. Caleb Strong, of Massachusetts, 1802 and 1816; by Gov. Brooks, 1823; and by Gov. Lincoln, 1830. By a fire in the woods his hair was burned off when fourteen years old; it never grew again, and he sent to England for a wig, at cost of $100, a present from his friends, and is shown on the portrait of him on page 102 of the "Genealogy," first edition, of the Prentice family. 53. REV. THOMAS⁵ PRENTISS, Harvard College, 1766, D. D., 1808, son of Rev. Joshua and Mary; m., 1st, Oct. 31, 1771, Abigail Bigelow, of Weston, Mass., who d. Nov. 2, 1786. He m., 2d, Feb. 9, 1789, Mary, dau. of Dr. John Scollay, of Boston, who was town clerk, Boston, over forty years, and for several years first civil officer there. She d. Sept. 23, 1841, ae 82.* Dr. Prentiss spent his youth with his grandparents Angier, of Cambridge, Mass. After taking his bachelor degree at Harvard College, he taught school for a year at Berwick, Me., and studied medicine there, acquiring medical knowledge to enable him to minister successfully to the bodies as well as souls of his future parishioners. Returning to his native town, he studied theology with his father and was ordained Nov. 30, 1770, at the age of twenty-three, as pastor of the church in Medfield, Mass. A town meeting was called there April 3, 1770, with religious services, and a committee raised to unite with the church. The town voted him £160 as an encouragement, and a salary of £71 9s. 4d. a year. His letter of acceptance of Aug. 26, 1770, is preserved. During the Revolutionary war he was chaplain to our forces in Roxbury. He possessed a vigorous constitution, with good health, till the disease which terminated his life, congestion of the lungs, from a cold taken by exposure in a violent snow-storm in visiting a sick family in a neighboring town. In the full exercise of his reason, sensible of his approaching dissolution, he was calm, submissive, and full of hope, and said, "I have viewed this as my closing sickness from its commencement. Reconciled to the will of God and supported by the promises of the Gospel, the question of life or death is not for me to decide. I know not what is for the best, I give myself no anxiety on the subject. The Judge of all the earth will do right, I have perfect confidence in Him, and willing to leave the decision with Him." He died in peace and in joyful confidence of a better life, after five days' illness, on Feb. 28, 1814, ae 66. His funeral sermon, by Rev. Joshua Bates, of Dedham, was published and says, "If any of the followers of Adam ever attained to a state of perfect holiness below the heavens, I should have believed that our deceased friend was one of the highly privileged number." He was public-spirited and manly. By his individual exertions he established a public library in Medfield, and active in temperance reform. To help support his family he took lads in his family to fit for college. He was a member of many societies. In his old age his hair, white as snow, was in long, natural curls on his shoulders. His widow's hair at her death was jet black. Children:

- II. ABIGAIL⁶, b. May 19, 1791; bapt. Medfield, May 22. [109]
- III. THOMAS⁶, b. Jan. 11, 1793; bapt. Medfield, Jan. 13; Harvard College, 1811; preached as a candidate in Leominster, Mass., and was ordained as pastor of the Second Congregational Church, Charlestown, Mass., March 26, 1817, and d. six months after, on Oct. 5, 1817. Rev. Henry Ware, of Boston, preached a sermon on his decease, which was published, and says, "He had been active in the duties of his office, interested and diligent in his public services, attentive and affectionate in his pastoral cares, and has received in rather an uncommon measure the return of esteem and love from his people; he was of fine talents." Rev. W. Walker, of Leominster, spoke of him in high terms, "and if he had lived would soon have gathered around him a large and prosperous congregation." His illness, of about eleven days, was supposed to have been contracted by the over-assiduous discharge of his professional duties. He departed this life Sunday morning, Oct. 5. He was engaged to Amelia, dau. of Hon. Abraham Bigelow. She, after mourning him twenty years, m. Dr. George C. Shattuck, of Boston.

The following is an extract from his obituary notice, by his classmate, Seth Ames, Esq., of Lowell: "Though only an occasional visitor among us, he left many friends in his native State. No man ever lived more free from guile; his life represented the beauty of truth. He was compelled to teach while studying his profession. His short life has been full of example, pure in heart, and of irreproachable character," etc.

54. CAPT. HENRY⁵ PRENTISS, son Rev. Joshua and Mary; m., Sept. 11, 1775, by Rev. Dr. Cooper, to Ruth, dau. of Capt. Jonathan Freeman. She was b. Nov. 24, 1754, and d. Jan. 6, 1800. He d. in Medfield, Aug. 31, 1821, in his 73d year. His remains were buried in King's Chapel burial-ground, Boston. His name, as captain in the Revolutionary war, is on those rolls at State House, Boston, from 1775 to 1780; stationed at Cambridge, Long Island, and crossed the Delaware River at Trenton. He was prominent in Boston as selectman, overseer of the poor, March, 1784; in 1785, taxed in Boston, for real estate, $250, shop, goods, etc.* Member of Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, 1786, and one of the memorable "Boston tea party" in 1773; was once a sea-captain. His firm, of Prentiss & Skinner, merchants, Boston, was prosperous, but Mr. Skinner, an Englishman, took advantage of his confidence to defraud him of his property. He resided afterwards (except about a year in Marblehead) with his friends in Medfield. His stone house, 97 Hanover Street, was one of the first stone ones in Boston. Henry and his brother Appleton were both merchants in Boston, and probably, at one time together, before 1790.† They were the first ones who introduced printing calico in New England, a coarse blue and red article, on India cotton, a specimen of which H. J. Prentiss gave Mr. Binney, cut from a quilt made by a sister of Appleton Prentiss over fifty years previous to 1852. A specimen of the calico was exhibited by Abbott Lawrence, Esq., at the fair and exhibition in Washington previous to 1852, in contrast to the prints of our day, and was placed in the Patent Office there. Their print shop was at the corner of Botolph Street, Boston, and standing in 1852. He resided then also at the beautiful Fresh Pond estate,† formerly Dea. Henry Prentice's, which Henry and Appleton Prentiss bought. He bought out Appleton's part, and spent his leisure in horticulture. His crew, in 1789, had made in Liverpool and gave him a beautiful blue and gilt pitcher, with "Success to Henry Prentice" on it in gilt letters. A good portrait of him, in 1791, in the costume of that time, said to have been painted by a fellow-collegian, was, in 1852, owned by his dau., Miss Eliza F. Prentiss, Cambridge, then the only survivor of his family. A good copy of it is on page 110 of the first edition of the Prentice book. At one time he lost many melons, taken by Harvard students; one year he inserted in some of them strong doses of tartar emetic. Next day an express from college requested his presence, as some of the students were very sick, and he knew diseases. He asked the symptoms and if they threw up melon seeds. He told the students the melons were of a peculiar, unwholesome kind, steeped in West India poison for thieves! He gave them medicine and told the Faculty of the cause. After that his melons were not disturbed. The ancient clock in the old Prentice house, Cambridge (of Henry Prentice, brick-maker, about forty rods north of the Washington Elm), Miss Bartlett said once belonged to this Henry Prentiss, and came through his wife Freeman, whose mother was a Hatch, and 2d, Freeman, and 3d, Stone. When the latter died, Henry's wife had the clock of her mother, Freeman. It was purchased by Mr. Bates at the sale of Capt. Prentiss's effects.* Capt. Prentiss used as a seal, on a cornelian, the device of a dove, with a branch in its beak, which, in 1852, Henry J. Prentiss, Boston, owned. Children of Capt. Henry Prentiss:

58. REV. CALEB⁵ PRENTISS, Harvard College, 1765, son of Caleb and Lydia; m., Jan. 1, 1771, Pamela, dau. of Rev. John Mellen, of Lancaster, Mass., a granddaughter of Rev. John Prentiss, of Lancaster, and thus uniting the Newton and Cambridge branches of the family. After graduating, Rev. Mr. Prentiss was for several years librarian of the college library; was ordained Oct. 25, 1769, pastor of the First Church, in Reading (now Wakefield), Mass., and remained pastor till his death, from consumption, in 1803, and was buried in burying-ground adjoining the meeting-house, still standing. The following inscription is on the tombstone erected by the parish: "Sacred to the memory of Rev. Caleb Prentiss, late pastor of the First Church in this town, who passed into the world of spirits Feb. 7, 1803, in the 34th year of his ministry, and the 57th of his age." Faith, piety, and benevolence, with a kindred assemblage of Christian graces and moral virtues, adorned his public and private character, endeared his memory to a bereaved family, a mourning flock, his brethren in office, and all acquainted with his merits.

"He tried each art, reprov'd each dull delay,
Allured to brighter worlds, and led the way.
Tho' gone, he is not dead, — no good man dies, —
But like the day-star, only sets to rise."

The following is from Hon. K. L. Eaton, in the account of the Reading celebration: —

"A new-built church now meets my eyes,
Whose top aspires to reach the skies,
Where PRENTISS, mild, with kindly word,
Entreats his friends to love the Lord."

Rev. Caleb Prentiss writes, Oct. 26, 1802, to his dau. Sophia: "This is probably the last letter you will receive from me; my disorder has put on all the appearance of a fixed hectic, which must put a period to my life. I am in the hands of God, who will do what is best. I feel myself resigned, and possess that hope, which is the anchor of my soul, being persuaded that death will introduce me to realms of light and joy. Fixed is the foundation of my hope," etc. At the Lexington alarm, which spread over New England with electric speed, he turned out with his musket, and was in the running fight from Lexington to Charlestown. On the route he took from a dead British pioneer his gun and sword, one side of which was a pioneer's saw, and was long preserved in the family, as his son John, of Keene, N. H., remembered. He also marched to Salem with the militia on the alarm of the British landing there to seize arms. To help support his family he took pupils in his house to educate. He was a good horticulturist; the old parsonage house, still standing, had a smooth lawn in front, and a large and well-kept garden, and in the centre an ample summer-house. His two black-cherry trees, the apple-pear, combining the taste of both fruits, and the "Cathead" apple were his special pride. The editor of this volume has several of his manuscript sermons and his almanac-diary for 1780. (See Appendix.) The American Antiquarian Society, Worcester, has several of his published sermons, and several are also in the N. E. Historic, Genealogical Society, Boston. His portrait is on p. 115 of the first edition of this book, and is from a fine oil painting owned by his son, the late Hon. John Prentiss, of Keene, N. H. His widow m., Sept. 14, 1809, Col. John Waldron, of Dover, N. H., an officer in the Revolutionary army and State senator; the late Hon. Ezekiel Hurd, of Dover, N. H., being the grandson of Col. Waldron.

Mrs. Prentiss d. July, 1823, "full of years, having exemplified in her life, in the midst of unremitting cares and anxiety, the character of a Christian, her memory blessed." She was buried with the former wives of Col. Waldron, under the elms, near his house, in the corner of his orchard. Children of Caleb and Pamela Prentiss:

"By the last beams of parting day,
 Let me the cheering scene survey;
 Trace every spot I loved so well,
 The lofty tree, the lowly dell.
 Dear loving landscape! now adieu;
 When distant — I will think on you."

"The village church first greets my eyes,
 Aspring, seems to meet the skies;
 There the beloved pastor taught
 Each truth sublime, each noble thought;
 Taught us a brighter world to view;
 When distant far — I'll think on you."

- IX. REBECCA⁶, b. Aug. 20, 1790; m., March, 17, 1818, George Rounds, of Buxton, Me. After her father's death Rebecca lived with her brother, Capt. William Prentiss, in West Gorham, Me. In 1818 Mr. and Mrs. Rounds removed to Denmark (since Bridgeton, Me.) They were among the original members of Denmark Church, organized 1829, and he was its first deacon, "a man of solid worth, faithful in all things." He d. Sept. 24, 1839, when she took the management of the farm and her eight children, until her first son, George, helped her. He was also deacon of the Congregational Church in Bridgeton, and d. May 21, 1870, leaving a wife and several children. Then his son, George Rounds, took charge at the homestead and still continues to. Three years after her husband's death, Mrs. Rebecca Rounds left the church in Denmark and joined the Congregational Church of Bridgeton, which she attended till age and infirmities prevented. She had slept in one room and bed for sixty-four years. She retained her faculties to the last, and d. after two weeks' illness, Sept. 14, 1882, in her ninety-third year. She was a great reader as well as knitter, and kept her children and grandchildren in stockings. Four of her children survive her, viz.: William, in Menasha, Wis.; Joseph and John, in Malden, Mass.; and Edward, on part of the homestead. Had twenty-one grandchildren, twenty in four States, and Mrs. R. Henry Davis, wife of a missionary in Japan. A former pastor of Mrs. Rounds speaks of her in the highest terms, her piety increasing from first joining the Gorham Church in 1809, as he also does of her son George, as "an ornament to the church." Rev. George L. Prentess, D. D., visited her in 1875, and 1881, when she had all her faculties, and she told him she preferred his wife's "Urbane and his Friends" to her other books. The last time he visited her, his brother-in-

67. HENRY⁵ PRENTICE, son of William Henry and Sarah, settled, as a clothier, in Hancock, N. H. The name of his 1st wife, by whom he had children, is unknown; his 2d wife was Mary Reed, by whom he had five children. He m., 3d, Hannah Johnson, by whom he had three children. He learned the clothier's trade of his brother Nathaniel, and carried on the business in Hancock several years. In 1823, with son Jonathan, he started on foot for the then new country, Western New York, five hundred miles off, selected his future home in Steuben County, comparing favorably over New Hampshire lands. It had an almost inexhaustible supply of timber; the town had then but ten or twelve families. After securing a deed they returned to New Hampshire; next spring his sons Jonathan and William returned to New York in a horse and wagon, and built a log-house near a spring of water, in the woods, the floor of split logs, with a bark roof, a fireplace of stones, a hole in the roof for the escape of smoke; a log hewn to a slab, supported by pins driven in the ground, was their table; their bedstead supported by the sides of the house and one leg in front, and poles for a mattress. A barrel of pork and one of meal, and a few pounds of meat hauled from Bath, twenty miles, were their larder. They baked their hoe-cake of corn meal on a slab before the fire; their plates of wood, knives and forks from their pockets. With sharp axes they soon let sunlight in the forest; during that summer and autumn they chopped, cleared, and fenced, and put in wheat, ten acres of land, pasturing their one old horse, which did their work, a mile from home. Late in the autumn they sold their horse, and under the cabin floor buried deep the half-bushel potatoes they had raised. A Widow Whittemore was the attraction which kept William behind, and in a few years he married her. Jonathan returned on foot to New Hampshire to give an account of their future home. In the spring of 1825 they all moved, Jonathan leading, in a two-horse wagon, with the five girls, the father and mother following in a one-horse wagon. They took their household goods. One daughter was so frail they were anxious for her, fearing consumption, but the journey restored her and she lived to a good old age. They stopped awhile in Bath, the county seat. Mr. Prentice settled in what is now Jasper, where he d. 1835; his wife d. some years later. Their descendants, though not wealthy, bear a good name, the daughters virtuous and good housekeepers. As the children grew up they became members of the Presbyterian Church. They are farmers. Children of Henry and Mary:

Lucy C. removed to Albany, N. Y., and passed the remainder of his days with his son Ezra P. Prentice, at "Mount Hope," the latter's fine residence. He often visited his relatives in Boston ; one of them said, "He resembled Rev. Solomon Prentice, having the true Prentice Roman nose." His son Ezra had a fine portrait of him, a good lithographic copy of which is on p. 37 of the first edition of this "Genealogy," with his and his father's autograph. His son, John H. Prentice, sent Mr. B.† a perfect bust figurehead of Sartell Prentice, for the ship "Prentice" Mr. B. built. Mr. Prentice was highly appreciated by all, was energetic and influential, pious and good. He d. at "Mount Hope," Sept. 25, 1849, æ. 82. His widow d. Nov. 19, 1865, æ. 92, in Brooklyn, N. Y. In Rev. Dr. William B. Sprague's funeral sermon for her, he says, "Of great and retentive memory, of a godly life, taken from her Bible ; a habit of private devotion that nothing interfered with, useful in life, endeavoring to imitate her divine Master. and of strong faith, employing her musical powers on Watts's hymns, to relieve despondency, and all to God's glory." Rev. Dr. William B. Sprague preached her funeral sermon Dec. 3, 1865 ; text, "Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in in his season," Job v. 26.

Mrs. Jemima Prentice and her husband Sartell Prentice removed to Newport, N. H., her birthplace, then a wilderness. They helped to establish a church there, of which they were active members, and also a school. Their house was distinguished for intelligence, order, hospitality, and religion. In 1808 she joined the Congregational Church in Alstead, N. H., and remained till 1816, then joined the Presbyterian Church in Canton, N. Y., where they removed to. In 1835 they removed to Albany, N. The following was written by his widow in the family Bible:

"My beloved husband, Isaac Prentiss, departed this life Feb. 21, 1822, ae. 40 years.

But hush my fond heart, hush,
There is a shore of better promise;
And I hope at last, we two shall meet
In Christ, — to part no more."

Mr. Prentice, first a farmer, next a merchant of New Salem and Wendell, Mass.; removed to Rutland, Vt., about 1810. His wife d. there March 20, 1810 or 1812. (By her first husband, Cook, she had Abigail, December, 1778, d. 1854; and James, b. 1775, d. 1779.) A Rutland paper gives her a fine character and these lines on her:

" Sweet is the sleep where virtue strews the bed,
An angel's wing shall guard a mortal, dead,
And Heaven's own trump the bursting tomb shall move,
And hail to bliss the daughter of its love."

She was a member of the church at Montague in 1794, and d. March 20, 1810. Mr. Prentice, after his wife's death, removed to Lexington, Ky., where he d. in 1818; was a captain in the Revolutionary war, and in the battle of Lexington and others; was an intimate friend of Gov. Bowdoin, for whom he named his sixth child. Mr. Prentice had two brothers in that army. He was a communicant of the Montague Church, 1797, as was his wife three years before. Rev. Prentiss de Veuve, of Newark, N. J., now of Dayton, Ohio, a great-grandson of Capt. John Prentice, has an admirable portrait of his great-grandfather John Prentice, and a silhouette portrait of his great-grandmother, considered an excellent likeness and shows her of commanding presence. Capt. John Prentice, of Rutland, Vt., and his sons changed from Prentice to Prentiss. Capt. John's father spelt ice. Children of John Prentice:*

Bunker Hill,* and was in that battle. Mr. Prentice was one of the two men chosen by Washington from Gibbs's company as part of his body guard, "young men who could run through a troop or jump over a wall." He remained one of the "Guards" till near the close of the war, rising to rank of captain. Shortly before independence was declared he was provost marshal and had to see to execution of deserters; disliking this, he gave up his commission and retired from the army. He kept a number of years the "Stage House," Elizabethtown, N. J.; thence he removed to what is now Milo, Yates County, west side of Seneca Lake, N. Y., and was one of the pioneers of that place. Soon after resided for fourteen years on the east bank of the Richelieu or Sorrell River, near St. John's, Province of Québec. In the winter of 1801-2 he moved to the northwest corner of Highgate, Vt., and in the spring of 1805 to St. Armand, Lower Canada, now Province of Quebec. He visited Genesee in the winter of 1806-7 and lived nine or ten years in Milo, Yates County, thence returned to Seneca Lake for twelve years with his family, and after living a short time in Northern Ohio, removed to Watervliet, N. Y., where he d. in June, 1838. "He was a trustworthy man." Children:

In 1801 he removed to Roxbury, Mass., where he resided over fifty years, thirty of which he was town clerk; for nine years principal of the Roxbury Latin School. Like his classmate, John Quincy Adams, a constant reader of his Bible, always finding on each perusal something new to understand and admire. He d. Nov. 7, 1853, in Cambridge, Mass., at the residence of his son-in-law, Rev. Joseph Banvard, ae. 87 years 3 months. A few years before his death several of his old pupils and friends presented him with a large and costly silver pitcher, as an appreciation of his long and faithful services. After suitable acknowledgment he said, "I give and bequeath this pitcher to my two daus., Augusta and Martha." His portrait, by Otis A. Weed, is in the Roxbury Athenæum. Rev. Mr. Banvard has a good full-length daguerreotype of him by Whipple, though somewhat faded, and an excellent oil painting of him, life size, by Bass Otis. Dr. Nathaniel S. Prentice was tall and stout, with a full face. The Boston Journal, Nov. 11, 1853, has a report of the Roxbury City Council, showing the high estimation of his character and abilities as a trusted public officer. The report was unanimously accepted by both branches of the Roxbury city government. In 1809 he resumed the practice of his profession, and opened a private school for both sexes for some years, with great success. He was selectman of Roxbury, 1812 to 1816, and then elected town clerk, which office he continued till the close of the town government, in 1846, when he was chosen the first city clerk, but declined the honor; in 1810, 1811, 1812, and 1835 representative to the State government of Massachusetts. While town clerk he gave satisfaction through all political changes. His clear and beautiful penmanship on the records shows his correct and systematical manner of conducting that office. His last official act was to administer the oath of office to John J. Clarke, Esq., first mayor of the city, on the first Monday of April, 1846. Dr. Prentice removed to West Cambridge, to his son-in-law Banvard's, for the last year or two, and died there Nov. 7, 1853, and was buried in the Prentiss tomb on Copps Hill, Boston. He felt a deep interest in preparing his pupils for the counting house, college, or active life, and their success gave him great pleasure, and felt proud of many, an honor to their professions; they showed their gratitude to him in many ways. All his immediate family, himself, wives, and children, are dead. Children of Dr. Nathaniel S. and Abigail Prentice:

Dr. Nathaniel S. Prentiss, of Roxbury, Mass., when a boy made a studio of an old carriage in his father's yard. He related to his son-in-law, Rev. Joseph Banvard, that he saw the British soldiers on their way to Concord, Mass. They stopped at a well near his father's house and broke off some branches of fruit trees then in bloom. He mentioned this to Hon. Edward Everett, who introduced it into an historical address. He was a member of Rev. Dr. Porter's Unitarian Church, Roxbury. On hearing Dr. Griffin, of Park Street Church, he changed his sentiments, and united with the Baptist Society, in Roxbury. He entertained those ministers at his house. Two of his daus. m. Baptist ministers. His regard for the Rev. Samuel Newell, one of the first foreign missionaries, was such that when, on visiting Mr. Prentice once, he stepped on a newly painted threshold, Mr. Prentice would not allow it covered, and pointed it out to visitors. When the Elliot Church was formed in Roxbury he joined that. Mr. Prentice was a religious man of the old Puritan type. In his last years he read many books of a strong Calvinistic character. He was often delirious in his last illness, but the repetition of the Twenty-third Psalm and other soothing passages of Scripture by Rev. Mr. Banvard would calm his most violent symptoms instantly, and he would answer, "How beautiful that is."

But fell like autumn fruit that mellowed long"*

113. JOHN⁶ PRENTISS, Harvard College, 1818, son of Rev. Dr. Thomas and Mary ; m., 1st, Dec. 22, 1825, Amelia F. Kennedy, of Baltimore ; she d. February, 1857 ; he m., 2d, July, 1858, Sarah Watson, of Nantucket, Mass., who survives him. He d. in Baltimore, Aug. 31, 1861 ; while crossing a railroad track his carriage was run into by a train of cars, and he was thrown out and instantly killed. The following item of his singularly beautiful and useful life is from Dr. Joseph Palmer's "Necrology of the Alumni of Harvard College" : "Studied with his father till the latter's death, and in Phillips Academy, Andover, from April of same year, preparing for college. In his Sophomore year, he taught school in Wayland, then called East Sudbury, and his Junior and Senior years in Medfield. Graduated as a fair scholar, untainted with any vices of college life, protected by the principles of pure religion and the stern morality instilled by the tenderest of mothers. He practised strict economy, but was encumbered with debts at its close unavoidably contracted. To discharge these and fit himself in theology he accepted the charge of the Female High School, in Charlestown, then just established, with one female assistant. He had charge of three hundred pupils ; he was so acceptable his engagement was renewed and continued until he had accomplished his object. In the winter of 1819-20 he entered the Divinity School at Cambridge, and continued till the autumn of 1822, with occasional ill health, and taking charge of Rev. Henry Coleman's labors in Boston, while Mr. Coleman was ill, and resided in his family, and who continued his friend till his death in Islington, near London, Aug. 17, 1849, while engaged in agricultural inquiries in Europe for the State of Massachusetts. From bodily health, after his studies were ended, Mr. Prentiss abandoned his choice of profession for a while. In 1823 he remained with his mother at her home to recuperate. In that year, by advice of physicians, to try a milder climate, he accepted a tutorship in Baltimore College. His health being partially restored in 1824, he took charge, as principal, of one of the State academies of Maryland, at Garrison Forrest, till the autumn of 1825, with restored health and the reputation of a faithful and successful teacher, and by request he removed to Baltimore, and opened a private school for boys, with great success. The climate, social relations, and the reputation as a teacher, induced him to make that city his home and teaching his occupation. In 1833 he was elected president of the collegiate, and principal of the academic department of Ba'timore Collège, and remained as such eight years, educating many pupils, with the aid of several instructors. He rejected corporal punishment, and successfully carried it out for eight years, while he remained. In 1841, on account of ill health from over-exertion, he resigned and retired to his country seat three and one half miles from Baltimore, and resided there till his death, and there opened a private boarding school for boys, and also attending to his health, which was fully restored. He named his place "Medfield," from his native town, and here for twenty years, by his example, taught his scholars Christian faith and practice, and was both teacher and friend." In early life Mr. Prentiss was sent to England to a school. He settled in Gorham, Me., as a trader, and removed thence to Paris, Me., on a farm in the "Bolster district"; was justice of the peace and postmaster; kept a country store till 1808, when he purchased the "Mountain Farm" in the east part of the town, on part of "Streaked Mountain," and lived there till his death. Converted in middle life. In 1818 he was chosen deacon of First Congregational Church. He drank liquor previously, as then a common custom, which he abandoned, and became a strong temperance man. In his last illness the doctor advised some stimulant; he refused. He was an earnest Christian, daily reading, meditating, and writing, keeping a regular journal of affairs, intermixed with poetry and devotional musings. Two of these journals are preserved. He d. at the old "Mountain Home," October, 1838, peacefully, full of faith in a happy immortality (per Hon. John Prentiss, of Keene, N. H.). Children:

121. CHARLES⁶ PRENTISS, Harvard College, 1795, son of Rev. Caleb and Pamela; m., Nov. 9, 1795, Sophia, dau. of Rev. Francis Gardner, of Leominster, Mass., where she was b. March 27, 1778; her brother Francis was member of Congress from New Hampshire, and father of the late Dr. Francis Gardner, of the Boston Latin School. Charles Prentiss settled in Leominster, October, 1795, and edited and published that year the Rural Repository, a weekly newspaper; his youngest brother John was his printer; about one hundred of his old college friends were subscribers, as he was a favorite with them. It had a good circulation for a local sheet; it was discontinued after a year, and the brothers attended to book printing, among them, a "Collection of Fugitive Essays in Prose and Verse, by Charles Prentiss," and his class poem, "Imagination"; the poems were also published in 1798 in the Columbian Centinel. In 1798 he resumed the paper as the Political Focus (John left him 1799, and went to Keene, N. H.). It ceased in 1800. In 1804 he visited Europe; on his return was editor of the Anti-Democrat and the Child of Pallas; he also edited the Washington Federalist, and in 1809 the Thistle, a Boston theatrical paper, short lived. In 1810 and 1811 he was a Congressional reporter in Washington, D. C., and edited the Independent American. In 1811, settled in Brimfield, Mass.; Feb. 22, 1813, he read before the Washington Benevolent Society of this town, a strong political poem, "New England Freedom"; it was printed; a copy is in the N. E. Historic Genealogical Society, Boston. In 1816 he wrote and published the "Life of Gen. William Eaton," and the "Life of Robert Treat Paine, Jr., the Poet." In 1817-18 he edited the Virginia Patriot, at Richmond, Va. He was author of the first school history of the United States that was ever published, having a great sale. He d. at Brimfield, Oct. 19, 1820, æ. 46. J. T. Buckingham's "Biography of Editors" gives a lively biographical sketch of Mr. Prentiss. Children:

123. HON. JOHN⁶ PRENTISS, son of Rev. Caleb and Pamela; m., Feb. 2, 1803, Diantha, dau. of Gen. Aldrich, of Westmoreland, N. H. (who was in the Bunker Hill fight; when a captain he was one of the first to rush on Baum's works at Bennington; was State senator, and d. 1815); she was b. Feb. 14, 1782, and d. March 1, 1856. Mr. Prentiss d. in Keene, N. H., June 6, 1873, in the 96th year of his age. His mind bright and clear to the last. It was the breaking up of old age. His daughters Corinna A. and Pamela, the only survivors of his family, were present, with his grandchildren. At the age of fourteen he was apprenticed to Mr. Thomas Adams, publisher of the Independent Chronicle (of which the Boston Advertiser is the successor). In the fall of 1795 he went to Leominster, Mass., to assist his brother Charles, who had just commenced the Rural Repository. He remained in Leominster till March, 1799, when he removed to Keene, N. H., and at the age of 21 established under many embarrassments, with seventy subscribers, the New Hampshire Sentinel, which he edited forty-eight years. In six months he had two hundred and fifty subscribers. He then published Houghton's "Almanac" for the year 1800, which was quite profitable, and was continued twelve years. In 1802 he began the sale, on commission, of a well-selected stock of books from Boston. This was the origin of the famous Keene book-store, which afterwards sent out annually a hundred thousand school-books of home manufacture. In 1803 he printed an edition of 2,400 copies of "Watts's Psalms and Hymns," which sold readily at a profit of $800. "Seneca's Morals" was also a success. In 1805 he purchased the copyright of Dr. David Adams's "Scholar's Arithmetic," for $200 per year, for twenty years, and large editions were sold, in one year about 60,000 copies. Also printed and published Hale's "History of the United States." In 1808 he built his large and substantial house, and planted the fine elms shading the lawn in front, and here he died, having enjoyed for many years a competency earned by his industry and enterprise. He was town clerk and treasurer many years. Representative in 1820, and senator 1838, to the New Hampshire Legislature. In 1847 he relinquished his business to his oldest son, Mr. Prentiss being the oldest editor in the United States, and on this occasion gave to each of the fourteen school districts of Keene a set of the "Massachusetts School Library" of thirty-eight volumes. In 1850 he travelled over Europe, and attended the peace convention at Frankfort-on-the-Main, as the only delegate from New Hampshire. During his absence he wrote a series of interesting letters to the New Hampshire Sentinel. In 1852 the degree of A. M. was conferred on him by Dartmouth College. He was a prominent Mason, a master 1806, royal arch 1813, knight templar 1867. His portrait, by Alexander, of Boston, in 1850, is owned by his dau., Mrs. Thomas Hopkinson, of Cambridge, Mass. who had also a very interesting MSS. autobiography of her father, in his old age. The Boston Evening Transcript, June 7, 1873, has a good obituary of him. Children :

At the commencement of the late civil war he was commander of the "Seminola," twenty guns, and ordered to join the Brazil squadron. There his vessel was pronounced unseaworthy by a board of examiners, but his orders were peremptory. He reached the coast of Brazil safely. He was highly complimented there by the British officers and his own commodore for the fine appearance of his ship and his good seamanship. He was recalled to New Orleans, arriving there in the first summer of the war; all was wild excitement there. He made his way to Washington with difficulty, and reported to the Secretary of the Navy, and was given command of the steam gunboat "Albatross," and joined the fleet blockading the Carolinas. Several prizes were the proof of his efficiency. With impaired health he sent in his resignation. He was promoted to the rank of commodore, and placed on the retired list. Jan. 12, 1782. Dea. Lewis was in Bunker Hill battle. He was an early settler in the town of Gorham, Me. Capt. William Prentiss was for many years a highly respected and prosperous shipmaster of Portland, Me., a man of decision and energy. His return from sea was a signal for great family rejoicing with the foreign fruits he brought home. He had many hairbreadth escapes from storms, hurricanes, repeated shipwrecks, was chased by pirates, and boarded by a British man-of-war. He and wife were members of Rev. Edward Payson's church. During the war of 1812 Capt. Prentiss removed to a farm in Gorham, Me., about one half a mile from his father-in-law, Major Lewis, on the road to Standish. After Mr. Prentiss's death his widow removed to the village, and thence to Portland, for Acquiring a love of study in his leisure hours, when twenty-two he relinquished trade for college, applying himself with vigor, after one year's study, and entered Harvard College; was a good student, but too close application injured his health, and he taught school awhile in Virginia. He then entered the Theological School, Cambridge, on a trial, but his health did not improve, and he relinquished it, and, under Col. Baldwin, made the first survey of the Western Railroad, and practised surveying several years in Connecticut and New Jersey. In 1832 he purchased his present farm in Springfield, La Grange County, Ind., then a wilderness, inhabited by the Pottawattomie Indians, with whom he lived on friendly terms, till their removal by government in 1840. His house, built by his own hands, was the second one built in the county. He is yet a farmer, and attends to his saw-mill; has been judge of probate for nine or ten years previous to 1852. He resides in Springfield, La Grange County, Ind. Children:

more or less for about a year, and the termination was not entirely unexpected. He was b. in Alstead, N. H., Dec. 18, 1797, and his life furnishes a fruitful lesson for young men just starting in their career. In the year 1816 his father removed to Canton, St. Lawrence County, N. Y., where young Prentice attended school. In the fall of 1826, at the age of twenty-nine, he came to Albany and entered the house of Dennison Williams & Co., dealers in furs. In 1828 he entered on a highly prosperous and successful business career with Dennison Williams, William S. Packer, and his brother John H. Prentice, as Williams, Packer & Co. Mr. Williams soon after withdrew, and the firm continued as Packer, Prentice & Co. in the fur business and with a large manufactory. By the united energy and tact of each one of the firm the business assumed such large proportions that they established a branch house in New York, under Mr. Packer, then residing there. The business continued with great success till the close of 1840, when Mr. Prentice, having acquired a handsome fortune, retired from business, moving to the residence he purchased on the Kenwood road. The business was subsequently removed to Brooklyn, N. Y., by his brother, John H. Prentice, and afterwards transferred to his other brother, James H., and merged into a hat manufactory. In 1851 E. P. Prentice was a director, and in 1860 president of the Commercial Bank until last November, when from ill health he resigned, but continued as a director. He was president of the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad, president of the board of governors of the Albany Hospital, trustee of the Albany Female Academy and Dudley Observatory. He took a special interest in the State agricultural interest, and was a member of the State Agricultural Society, and was its president in 1850. He showed his taste in horticultural matters by the adornment of Mount Hope. He was of strict integrity, conscientious in every walk of life, and sociable with all, a high-souled, Christian gentleman. His wife, two daughters, and two sons survive him. One of the latter, William Packer Prentice, a rising lawyer of Albany, is now of New York City."

Ezra P. Prentice had the old Nathaniel Sartell Bible* from Mr. Binney, of which there is a curious history, as described in the first edition, Appendix A, and copied in the appendix of this edition. Mount Hope, Mr. Prentice's late residence (see view of it on frontispiece, first edition), is the most beautiful one to be found near Albany, commanding a fine view of the Hudson. Many fine statues are in the hall, and works of great masters adorn the walls of his mansion. A singular robbery once occurred in his house. A large and valuable lot of silverware was locked in his safe; a large watch-dog was in the rear part of the house, but next morning the safe was found open and empty. No trace of the thieves or property could be discovered for a long time, until one day Mr. Prentice, on a visit to Philadelphia, on passing a jeweller's shop noticed some silver with his initials on it, which the man said he bought with some broken silver of a stranger. Ezra P. Prentice was a member of the Presbyterian Church, Albany, as was his wife. He was also president of the Albany County Bible Society, which organization passed, July 13, 1876, a grateful and glowing eulogy and resolutions on the death of its president (Mr. Prentice) for six years, and its generous patron and able adviser. He was a member of the "County Gentlemen," and other companies. Children:

Another dau., Sophia, was b. after her father's death; she became a cripple in childhood, and d. single, Oct. 25, 1849, at Rahway, N. J. James Prentiss's family spell the name Prentiss. Early in life Mr. Prentiss determined to have an education and a profession, and fitted himself for Dartmouth College, but circumstances induced him to turn his attention to business, and he went into partnership, in Boston, with Mr. Bond, as the firm of Bond & Prentiss, importers, with a business house in London, from 1803 to 1811. Mr. Prentiss went abroad in connection with it, returning a few months before his marriage to Mrs. Mellen. They lived together forty-six years until her death, Nov. 27, 1851. When in business in Boston, as one of the heaviest importing firms, the embargo ruined him. He then removed to Lexington, Ky, and became an extensive woollen manufacturer, owning the largest flock of merino sheep in the United States, and filling large army contracts in the war of 1812. The peace depreciated the value of that property and again he was ruined. He then, with his brothers, entered into a promising real-estate speculation in Indiana, but disease and death ruined their plans and lessened their number. He then went to New York and engaged in various business, chiefly brokerage, and as agent for claims in Washington, where he often went. He had large personal claims, also, in the effort to colonize Texas. The commission passed favorably upon large claims, afterward proved fraudulent, and rejected his claims, which were genuine, which troubled his declining years. He maintained health and energy till February, 1857, when he fell a victim to the mysterious "National Hotel poisoning" in Washington, and d. Sept. 20, 1857. The family have excellent portraits of Mr. Prentiss and wife and miniatures on ivory of both, taken soon after marriage, and a beautiful portrait in oil of Mrs. Prentiss at forty-three, and daguerreotypes of both in old age. 225. HON. HENRY E.⁷ PRENTISS, son of Henry and Mary; m., Sept. 30, 1836, Abigail Adams Rawson,* who was b. Feb. 5, 1811,

* Mrs. A. A. Prentiss descended from Edward¹ Rawson, William², David³, Ebenezer⁴, Samuel⁵, and Abigail Adams⁶ Rawson (Rawson Family Genealogy, in which there are impressions, from the plates, similar to those in this edition of the Prentiss Family.)

at Paris, Me., and dau. of Capt. Samuel Rawson (who was b. in Sutton, Mass., Sept. 4, 1771, and who m., May, 1802, Polly Freeland, of Sutton, and b. Sept. 17, 1778, a dau. of Dr. James F., of Sutton, Mass. Samuel Rawson was a trader and was successful in business. He settled in Paris, Me., in 1804. (For his children see the "Rawson Family Genealogy.") Henry E. Prentiss was educated at West Point, and graduated, the fourth in his class, in 1831. Was assistant teacher of mathematics there two years, then received a commission in the United States army, and was sent with troops to Fort Morgan, Alabama. He concluded to study law, and resigned in 1835. He read law with Kent & Cutting in Bangor, and settled in Oldtown, Me. In 1836 he was a law partner with Israel Washburn (afterwards governor of Maine) in Orono. In 1839 was captain of engineers to settle the northeastern boundary in the so-called "Aroostook war." He returned to Bangor in 1839, and practised law several years, until the land and lumber trade gradually drew him out of (to him the less profitable and less agreeable) law business. He was a man of few personal wants, of untiring energy and strength. His military education and knowledge of topographical engineering enabled him to be his own surveyor and explorer, travelling the wilds of Maine with a pack on his back, climbing tall trees to get a better survey of the timber lands, often by himself, saying it was pleasanter to be alone with God in the forest than to have his mind loaded with other men's quarrels in the law. He joined a temperance association at the age of eighteen, to which he strictly adhered. He was frugal and liberal, fond of books. He gave three public libraries to towns where he owned land, and one to his native place, and in his will a handsome donation to the principal library in Bangor, and his own library to his wife. Simple and temperate in his habits, he delighted to do good to others. Keeping a silent watch over his children, leading them by his example. Political life was not to his taste, though he liked voluntary honor. From 1857 to 1859 he represented the city in the Legislature. In 1870-1 was mayor of Bangor; in both cases chosen for his well-known temperance principles. Mr. Prentiss d. suddenly of heart disease, July 1, 1873, to which he had been subject. Hon. A. G. Wakelield, of the Penobscot bar and of the Supreme Judicial Court, Bangor, in advocating resolutions to his memory which were placed upon the records, says: "By his cheertul temper, courteous manner, and genial companionship, he had endeared himself not only to his brethren of the profession, but to all in the circle of his acquaintance, and won a high and honorable position at the bar as a good lawyer. In early life of adverse circumstances, he cheerfully and manfully practised strict economy, and when wealth had crowned a life of industry, he used it to minister to refined and cultivated taste and in liberality, and cheerfully dispensing his charities and hospitalities for the happiness of others ; possessing untiring industry and perseverance, unspotted integrity, loyalty to every duty in all things, and strictly honest, etc., and that we feel ourselves honored in tendering to his memory this tribute of our sincerest respect." He so lived, as ready to be called up higher. Mr. Prentiss was very liberal in the education of all his children and his sisters and friends, and left legacies to each of his nieces, charging his estate with the interest on them till his estate should be divided, in 1890. Children :

- I. JOHN HART⁸, b. Nov. 26, 1837 ; d. July 3, 1859 ; educated at Union College, N. Y. ; studied medicine in Brunswick, Me., and at the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, Pa., in 1859. Was assistant physician in the hospital for the insane at Augusta, Me., where he d. July 3, 1859, æ. 21 years 7 months, of typhoid fever contracted there. He was unmarried.
- II. HENRY MELLEN⁸, b. July 20, 1840, in Bangor ; graduated Harvard College, settled in Bangor in his father's business, which he attends to ; m., Nov. 30, 1865, Julia A., dau. of Calvin Dwinel, and has two children :
 - I. ELSIE⁹, b. Nov. 21, 1869.
 - II. HENRY⁹, b. Aug. 18, 1872.
- III. ABBIE RAWSON⁸, b. June 25, 1842 ; m., March 19, 1868, George Frederick Godfrey, son of Hon. Judge John E. Godfrey, and b. Oct. 23, 1840. Mr. Godfrey is a lumber merchant, and resides, in 1882, in the pretty "Cliff Cottage," in Bangor. Mr. Godfrey has published an illustrated history of Bangor, the pictures drawn by himself. Their children are :
 1. HENRY PRENTISS, b. Nov. 8, 1869.
 2. ANGELA, b. Oct. 9, 1871.
 3. GEORGE HERBERT, b. Jan. 21, 1876.
 4. EDWARD RAWSON, b. Dec. 27, 1877. In 1874 a letter to her cousin, E. C. Prentiss, of Brighton, Mass., from Sarah J. Prentiss, of Aug. 7, 1874, says A. R. Prentiss was travelling among the Bavarian Alps for her health.
- IV. MARY FREEDLAND⁸, b. Sept. 1, 1846, in Bangor ; m., Oct. 15, 1879, at the Unitarian Church, Bangor, Me., to James Murray Kay, a native of Glasgow, Scotland, and b. March, 1840, a prominent gentleman of the Province of New Brunswick. "Mrs. Kay, among other wedding gifts, had a beautiful bronze vase, the gift of the managers of the Home of Aged Women, in whose behalf Miss Prentiss had shown so much interest, and to whom she gave a choice supper last evening in honor of her wedding." They have two children :

1. WINIFRED PRENTISS, b. Aug. 21, 1880.

2. JEAN KATHERINE MURRAY, b. Aug. 8, 1882.

Mrs. Kay is well educated and of firm principles. Mr. Kay supposes the Prentiss family was originally Scotch, as a Scotch spirit yet prevails in it.

"James Murray Kay, of Duncraggan, Portland, St. John, New Brunswick, the husband of Mrs. Mary F. (Prentiss) Kay, is a native of Glasgow, Scotland. At the age of twenty he went to London and resided there fifteen years, connected with a prominent banking house. About 1875 he came to this side of the Atlantic as the agent of the English bondholders of the New Brunswick portion, since consolidated as the European and North American Railway Company, and since the reorganization of that part of the line as the St. John and Maine Railway, and Mr. Kay has resided in St. John as the trustee and manager. During this time he was often in Bangor, Me., where he met his future wife. He is temperate in all things. He is a gentleman of very pleasing manners, of a high order of business' ability." (Bangor Whig and Courier, Oct. 16, 1879, with a long account of his wedding to Miss Mary F. Prentiss.) The following is an account of Mr. Kay's crest, a combination of Murray and Kay of Scotland. The flower is a marigold, the crest of the Kays; the motto, "Furth fortune and fill the fetters," is the motto of the Athol branch (Perthshire, Scotland) of the Murray family. The clan Clay were chiefly located in the northeast of Scotland, near Elgin, in Morayshire, and their old chieftain (about the year 1500 odd), styled the "Wolf of Badenoch," razed Elgin Cathedral, now one of the grandest cathedral ruins in that country. The Murray motto (above) was adopted by the Earl of Athol in 1745, when under the king's commission he suppressed a rebellion headed by the Earl of Ross. The motto is simply his invocation to fortune on setting out on that expedition, and means in a just cause, if filling the fetters has to be done, it is desirable that as many be filled as possible.

228. SEARGENT SMITH⁷ PRENTISS, son of Capt. William and Abigail, b. Sept. 30, 1808 ; d. in Natchez, Miss., July 1, 1850, ae. 41 ; m., March 3, 1842, Mary Jane Williams, of Natchez, Miss., whose mother was a Percy, and connected with the English Percys, and with the Cadwallader and Sargent families of Philadelphia, Pa., and Natchez. A fever in infancy caused his right leg to be lame and feeble during life. Early in life Mr. Prentiss exhibited genius. Before ten years he had often read the Bible through, and could repeat much of it, also “Pilgrim’s Progress.” He fitted for college at Gorham Academy, and graduated at Bowdoin College, 1826. He studied law a year with Judge Pierce, of Gorham, who said of him : “His memory was astonishingly tenacious, his imagination warm and prolific, he reasoned with great accuracy and logical force, while his powers of illustration seemed exhaustless ; generous and high minded, despising all meanness, and loving to satirize folly and ridicule affectation.” Having decided to try his fortunes in the great West, he spent a few weeks in the office of Judge Wright, in Cincinnati, and then went to Natchez, Miss., where he finished his studies, teaching by day, giving the night to law. Here, on being admitted to the bar, he entered into partnership with Gen. Felix Huston, but removed not long after to Vicksburg, Miss., where he was soon overwhelmed with business, and took a high rank among the ablest lawyers of the State. He was elected to the Mississippi Legislature, 1836. In 1837 President Van Buren called an extra session of Congress, and the governor of Mississippi ordered a special election for representative to Congress, to represent his State, until superseded by members at the next regular election. Mr. Prentiss was chosen, and with his credentials from the governor proceeded to Washington. On presenting them, he was, with his colleague, Mr. Word, refused his seat in the House of Representatives, that body having voted at this called session, "that the two representatives of the special session should hold their seats through the whole (next) twenty-fifth Congress." This was the famous "Mississippi contested election case." In demanding his seat Mr. Prentiss made that famous speech which Daniel Webster said "nobody could equal." His first sentence riveted the attention of the whole audience, and each succeeding sentence increased their surprise and pleasure; they were charmed to find an orator whose logic was as accurate and subtle as a schoolman's, while the fairest gems of literary culture adorned his rhetoric, instead of an unpolished declamation. They found, instead of a partisan haranguer, a statesman and jurist, discussing with patriotic zeal a great principle of constitutional law. He had not spoken long before the Senate and House were deserted to hear him, headed by Daniel Webster and Henry Clay, J. Q. Adams leading those of the House. He spoke three days. The galleries were crowded with ladies, and every vacant spot in the hall was occupied by ex-members, officers of the army and navy, and visitors to the capital, eminent jurists, judges, private citizens, and foreign ministers. (From a memoir of S. S. Prentiss, by his brother, G. Lewis Prentiss, D. D., 2 vols., p. 251.) Notwithstanding his eloquence, Speaker Polk's casting vote decided the case against him, and the State of Mississippi was deprived of any representation in the House. His speech elicited so much admiration and enthusiasm that, before leaving Washington, Mr. Prentiss was tendered a public dinner by seventy or eighty of the most distinguished and talented gentlemen ever assembled there. At a new election Mr. Prentiss was returned to Congress by an immense majority. Judge Wilkenson, of Mississippi, said of him: "He looked down upon the man who was continually suing for popular favor as the meanest and most mischievous member of society." In the House, Dec. 28, 1838, he delivered a spirited and effective speech on the "Defalcations of Government." At the close of the term he declined a re-election. In the Presidential campaign of 1840 he came North and delivered a great number of speeches for Harrison. His talents for popular oratory and stump speaking were extraordinary; no man South or West surpassed him in that. His power of originating forcible and beautiful natural images of abstract truth was marvellous, and he was as much distinguished at the bar for vigorous logic and solid Yankee sense as for splendid rhetoric. His best speeches have rarely been reported correctly. That on the Mississippi contested election, the short address in 1847, made at the New Orleans meeting for relief of the starving population of Ireland (at which Henry Clay also spoke), the address to the returned volunteers from Mexico, and the address in 1845, before the New England Society in New Orleans, afford good specimens of his eloquence. His politics were high toned; he waged energetic and relentless war against Mississippi repudiation. His letter to the poet Wadsworth, in his memoir, shows the strength of his convictions on this subject, and, when repudiation prevailed, he left the State for New Orleans, La., where he soon became one of the foremost in his profession. But for his untimely death he bid fair to re-establish his fortune, shattered by politics, imprudent indorsements, etc., and to make himself a name among the great jurists of his country. He was not forty-two when he died. His remains rest in a quiet, rural spot, almost in sight of the majestic river which bore him to Natchez, a limping boy. There is no good likeness of Mr. Prentiss. His brother says a portrait of him is in the "Whig Review," Vol. XIV., 1851, p. 36, and an article on him. His face when lighted up by the excitement of speaking expressed wonderful intellectual strength and beauty; his look often magnetized an audience before he spoke. Judge Bullard, of New Orleans, said, "He had more of the Italian improvisatore than any one in the United States, and yet at the bottom was solid, deep thought." Henry Clay said of him, "He was distinguished by a rich, chaste, and boundless imagination, and exhausted the resources of it in beautiful language and happy illustrations. Always ready and prompt, almost intuitive, with a voice fine and soft, with a slight lisp, hardly discernible." Webster told Gov. Everett at Prentiss's speech at Faneuil Hall, "He never heard anything like it." His letters to his mother and sisters show a beautiful and warm trait of his domestic affections. He was a remarkable man, and is to this day a traditional character throughout the South and West. Numberless stories and anecdotes of his marvellous oratory, his dauntless courage, his unbounded generosity, and many strange and grotesque incidents of his electioneering tour exist, one, a laughable one, about the caravan, was related by him at a New Orleans supper, for which see pp. 245 and 246 of first edition of this "Genealogy."

In the reminiscences of an "Old Fogy" in the Louisville Courier-Journal, 1883, a writer gives this description of Seargent S. Prentiss: "Mr. Prentiss was rather below the medium size and lame in the right leg from infancy. His chest, neck, and shoulders were uncommonly full, erect, and well developed. His features, taken together, were distinguished for manly beauty, and marked by an expression of unmistakable kindness and benevolence. His convivial habits were well known to his contemporaries, but they never caused him to neglect any important business that he had on hand. He was always himself at the bar or on the stump. No man was ever more beloved by his intimate friends, and most worthy was he of their affection. No one can describe the charms of his conversation in moments of relaxation and social intercourse. The effect of his eloquence still lives in the memory of those who enjoyed the rare happiness of hearing him."

B. J. Lossing, LL. D., in the Christian Union, Oct. 15, 1870, thus speaks of him: "Small in stature, limping in gait, broad chested, a high, intellectual forehead, manly beauty in every feature, a voice of remarkable sweetness and flexibility, a mild but deep, penetrating eye, a most retentive memory, endowed with varied knowledge by extensive reading, unrivalled in power of oratory, frank in thought, speech, and manner, patient and forbearing in temper, powerfully governed by the affections, and with unbounded generosity of disposition, Seargent Smith Prentiss was one of the most remarkable characters in our history. Living persons, who were adults a generation ago, will remember how the newspapers between 1835 and 1850 were filled with his praises, as a citizen unapproachable in oratory, whether he spoke as an advocate at the bar, a debater in the halls of legislation, or at occasional public gatherings."

A good biographical sketch of S. S. Prentiss is in the appendix of his brother, George Lewis Prentiss, D. D., New York, 1882, in the "Life and Letters" of the latter's wife, Elizabeth Prentiss. Children:

- I. JANE PERCY⁸, b. April 14, 1843.
- II. GEORGE LEWIS⁸, b. Sept. 22, 1844; d. Dec. 7, 1862, ae. 18 years.
- III. SEARGENT S.⁸, b. Jan. 5, 1847. [285]
- IV. EUNICE MCINTOSH⁸, b. Oct. 21, 1848.

The names of the above children were given for the first edition as Mary Jane, George, Seargent Cadwallader, and Eunice Percy, but the account given to E. C. Prentiss is retained, and is correct.

229. SAMUEL⁷ PRENTISS, son of Capt. William and Abigail; m. ———, and resides in Southern Missouri, Rev. George L. Prentiss may know where.

230. REV. GEORGE LEWIS⁷ PRENTISS, D. D., son of Capt. William and Abigail, b. in Gorham, Me., May 12, 1816; studied at Gorham Academy under that ripe classical scholar, Rev. Reuben Nason. Was a graduate of Bowdoin College, 1835. In 1836 was assistant of Rev. Amos Brown in the Gorham Academy. Mr. Prentiss went abroad in 1839, and studied theology at the universities of Halle and Berlin. Spent the winter of 1841-42 in Italy, visited Switzerland, France, and England; returned home in the fall of 1842. He spent a part of the next two years with his brother in Mississippi. He was licensed to preach in 1844, and in April, 1848, was settled over the South Trinitarian Church, New Bedford, Mass. In April, 1851, he was pastor of Mercer Street Presbyterian Church, in New York City, and resigned from ill health, in the spring of 1858, and went abroad with his family for two years. On his return he gathered a new congregation on Murray Hill (Church of the Covenant), and was installed as its pastor in 1862; resigned April, 1873, to accept a call to the McAlpine and Skinner professorship of pastoral theology, church polity, and mission work, in the Union Theological Seminary of New York, which he still continues in 1883. He received the degree of D. D. from his Alma Mater in 1855. In 1850, by invitation of New Bedford, he delivered a eulogy on the life and character of Gen. Zachary Taylor, President of the United States, which was printed. In 1855 he published in two volumes a memoir of his brother, Seargent S. Prentiss; and in 1861, "The Free Christian State and Present Struggle for the Union Cause"; in 1871, a discourse in memory of Thomas Harvey Skinner, D. D., LL. D.; in 1873, "Eleven Years of the Church Covenant"; in 1877, "Our National Bane, or, The Dry Rot in American Politics," a tract for the times, touching on civil-service reform; and in 1882 his memorial on his aunt, Mrs. Betsey (Prentiss) Rounds, and in November, 1882, he published the "Life and Letters of Elizabeth Prentiss," his deceased wife, which is much sought after and exceedingly interesting. Mr. Prentiss m., April 16, 1845, Elizabeth, youngest dau. of Rev. Edward Payson, D. D., of Portland, Me., "whose praise is in all the churches." Miss Payson was born in Portland, Oct. 26, 1818, and was known far and wide by her popular and admirable writings; among them are "Little Susy's Six Birthdays," and its companions, the "Flower of the Family," "Little Lou's Sayings and Doings," "Fred and Maria and Me," "Nidworth," "Aunt Jane's Hero," "The Home at Greylock," "The Percys," "Urbane and his Friends," "Pemaquid, or Old Times in a New England," "The Story Lizzie Told," and "Stepping Heavenward." Of the latter work some 70,000 copies have been sold in this country and tens of thousands in Great Britain and its dependencies, five different houses having printed it in London without a copyright. It was also translated into French and German. More than 200,000 of bound volumes of her writings have been sold in the United States.

All her books are marked by a sprightly, easy style, cheerfulness, keen insight into character, practical wisdom, and the purest Christian spirit. Some of them, like "Fred and Maria and Me," abound in fine touches of humor; while others, especially "Stepping Heavenward," are full of helpful and consoling thoughts on the varied trials and discipline of life. Mrs. Prentiss d. at Dorset, Vt., Aug. 13, 1878, where they built a house and passed ten happy summers. Her "Life and Letters," edited by her husband, appeared in November, 1882, which no one can commence without finishing, and was received by the Christian public with great favor. The readers of this book will be glad to have the accompanying portrait of Mrs. Prentiss from an engraving on steel by Richie, of New York, and kindly furnished by Mr. Prentiss. It was from a portrait by a lady of New York. It is also in "Stepping Heavenward." Children:

END OF THE CAMBRIDGE BRANCH AT NINTH AND TENTH GENERATIONS.

FIRST NEWTON BRANCH.

1. CAPT. THOMAS PRENTICE, "trooper," of Newton, Mass., son of —; b. in England in 1621 (per age at death); m., in England, about 1648, Grace —. "Their dau. Grace bapt. in England and was about four years old at her parents joining" the First Church in Cambridge, Mass., which church was formed in 1636. Capt. Prentice lived in Newton, Mass., where "he d. July 6, 1710, on Sunday, in consequence of a fall from his horse on returning from church and was buried under arms by the company of troop July 8, 1710, in the old burying ground in Newton," where is yet to be seen his large, thick gravestone bearing in capital letters this inscription: "HERE LIES YE BODY OF CAPT. THOMAS PRENTICE, DECEASED JULY YE 7TH, 1709, IN THE 89TH YEAR OF HIS AGE."

On the footstone is "CAPT. THOMAS PRENTICE." The year 1709 on it is wrong; it should be 1710. His wife Grace died in Newton, Oct. 9, 1692,* soon after Samuel Sewall's visit to Newton, whose diary says: "Oct. 1, 1692, went to Newton and dined with Mr. Hobart and wife, Mrs. Prentice, and others." Capt. Prentice came to Cambridge, Mass., with his wife Grace and dau. Grace. He may have been in the family of Lieut.-Col. Roger Harlakenden,† the patron and protector of Rev. Mr. Thomas Shepard in England, and who came with Mr. Shepard of the First Church, Cambridge, Mass., in 1636 from Earls Colne, a small parish in Essex County, England. Harlakenden d. of small-pox in Cambridge, Mass., in 1638, and in his will of that date gives 30/ each to his maid servant and to Goldwinge and to Thomas Prentice. The latter is supposed to have learned the art of war with Harlakenden in Cromwell's army. The earliest notice of Capt. Prentice in America is on the records of the First Church (now the Shepard Church), in Cambridge, Mass., under Mr. Shepard, which was organized Feb. 1, 1636, O. S., as the "First Church in Cambridge"; the church previously there under Rev. Thomas Hooker, about one hundred in number, having in 1636 emigrated with him through the wilderness to Hartford, Ct., and the party who came with Rev. Mr. Shepard, about sixty in number, purchased the houses of Hooker's congregation on their leaving. Cambridge was then called New Town, and was settled in 1636. The first meeting-house was erected in 1632. The First Church formed in 1631. The Cambridge platform adopted in 1648. The First Church united with the

Shepard Congregationalist Society in 1829. The present handsome stone church dedicated in 1872 under Rev. Dr. A. McKenzie as pastor.* Mr. Shepard d. in 1649. The First Church records say, "Thomas Prentice and Grace, his wife, both in full communion, their children (Grace, bapt. in England, and about four years old at her parents' joining), Thomas, Elizabeth, Mary, and John, all born and bapt. in this church." Thomas Prentice was made a freeman May 23, 1652, in Cambridge. In 1656 the inhabitants of Cambridge, on the south side of the river, wanted a church by themselves, and a few years later were so numerous there that they formed a distinct congregation for worship and were allowed one half the proportion of the minister's money, and in 1664 the New Church in Cambridge village, so called until the church established in 1692, and then called Newton, and the Apostle Eliot's son John was their pastor. Capt. Thomas Prentice and family removed from Cambridge to Newton, and he there lived and died. His residence was in the easterly part of Newton, where the Boston water works tunnel passes, and near where Harbeck's house stood in 1855. Capt. Prentice's old well remains, but his house is down. In 1653 Mr. Prentice hired Mr. Haynes's farm.† In 1656, at the age of thirty-five, he was chosen lieutenant of the troop of horse, and its captain in 1662. In 1661 Thomas Day deeds Thomas Prentice three hundred acres of land in the "Pequod country." In the General Court records of Massachusetts, this land (south by the Sound, west by Capt. Gooker, northeast by the college lands) is ordered laid out to Lieut. Thomas Prentice, a part of which is probably the land on which his grandson, Samuel Prentice, Sr., settled in Stonington, Ct., about 1710. In

* Rev. Dr. McKenzie, in his "First Church in Cambridge," says, "The church records previous to 1696, if any, have disappeared." (The original of Mr. Shepard's church records were loaned the writer in 1850 or 1852 by two ladies named Brackett, who claimed them, and were returned to them.) Mr. McKenzie also says (page 49 of his "First Church, Cambridge") that the number who joined the First Church under Shepard is unknown. Our new church manual will give a list of fifty-seven persons who joined the church the first year. There were sixty persons in the Shepard company who came over with him. Rev. Jonathan Mitchell, of that church, made a list of the members, taken eleventh month, 1658, which was found by Rev. Dr. Holmes among the manuscripts in the "Prince collection," in the Old South Church, Boston, on the first page of which Prince wrote, "List of members of the First Church in Cambridge." Rev. Edward H. Hall, pastor of the First Church, Cambridge (Unitarian), says, in 1882, that he has the volume of Mitchell's list.

† Probably John Haynes, lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts, who m. Mabel, sister of Roger Harlakenden. He removed to Connecticut, 1637, and was the governor of that colony.

1667, Capt. Prentice was sent to lay out and settle Quinsagamond (Worcester, Mass.), and had fifty or sixty acres of land, and had one of the first fifty-eight houses there. He also had grants of land in Woburn, in 1684, and had land in Billerica and other places. He was a representative to the General Court in 1772-1774. In 1675 three hundred acres of land were granted to him by the General Assembly of Connecticut. (See Connecticut Colonial Records, 1675-77, Vol. IX., pp. 43-46.) In 1675 he and his troop of horse are mentioned nineteen times on books of the treasurer of Massachusetts colony. "He and his troop of horse were a terror to the Indians by his sudden attacks and impetuous charges." In a desperate one in 1675 he rescued Vincent Druce, one of the troop, badly wounded, and witnessed his will when he died, Nov. 29, 1677. He was appointed captain of the troop of horse in the Indian war, June 24, 1675,* and was in the Narragansett fight, and aided to its success, and that year was one of the commissioners to put the captive Indian children to service. Thomas Prentice, of Newton, probably son of the "trooper" Thomas, had a Narragansett grant of land. June 26, 1675, Capt. Prentice marched with his troop to Swansea, and Dec. 29, 1675, with seventy-five men went to Narragansett, and in 1676, with a "ply" of horse, was sent to Sudbury, and April 27 of that year "horse under Capt. Prentice to Hasanamisco" (Grafton, Mass.) † He was often employed by the General Court in special services of trust, both civil and military, for many years. In 1689 he and troop were ordered to Rhode Island to arrest and bring back Sir Edmund Andros. (For Capt. Prentice's letter to the governor and council in Boston, dated Aug. 8, 1689, announcing Andros's arrest, see appendix.) In 1675, Capt. Prentice bought of Edward Frost and wife Thomasin eighty-five acres of land on the south side of Charles River, in Cambridge, bounded by the two brothers, James Prentice and Thomas Prentice the second. In 1675 he was a commissioner to rebuild Lancaster, Mass., vacant three years after it was burnt by the Indians in Philip's war. Capt. Prentice was a friend and counsellor of the converted Indians, who, in 1691, petitioned the General Court "that Capt. Thomas Prentice may be appointed their overseer and magistrate." In 1705, Capt. Prentice settled his estate himself by gift deeds, one to his grandson Thomas Prentice, of a house and land in Newton, and one to his grandson Samuel Prentiss (since of Stonington, Ct.), of his mansion house and one hundred acres of land in the southerly part of Newton, therefore no will or inventory was made or found. He spelled his

Dr. William Jenks discovered and cleaned from moss when in Newton, and which has caused considerable controversy, it having also been imagined as on the Trooper Thomas Prentice.

“ He that’s here inter’d needs no versifying,
A vertuos life will keep y* name from dying,
He’ll live, ‘tho’ poets cese ther scribbling rime,
When y’ this stone shall mouldered be by time.”

Mrs. Elizabeth (H.) Prentice in 1780 was guardian to Elizabeth and Sarah Prentice. (Middlesex County probate records, East Cambridge, Mass.)

THE STONINGTON (CT.) BRANCH

Is from Samuel [5] Prentice, Sr., son of Thomas and Sarah (Stanton), who was b. in Newton, Mass. He went to Stonington, Ct., about 1709. He was the head of that branch and was of the third generation from Capt. Thomas Prentice, the "trooper," of Newton, Mass., but the first generation and ancestor of the Stonington branch, which includes the following numbers: 5, 7, 8, 9, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 26, 27, 28, 29, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 113, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135.

5. SAMUEL³ PRENTICE, Sr., son of Thomas and Sarah; m. Esther, dau. of Nathaniel Hammond, of Newton, Mass. Mr. Prentice owned a large tract of land in Stonington, Ct. (now North Stonington) before 1700, and removed there from Newton about 1709; most of the land remains in the family, handed down by inheritance from one generation to another. In 1852 there were twelve males of the Prentice name living in North Stonington and vicinity. The old house in which Samuel Prentice, Sr., lived, a substantial two-story building, twenty-eight by forty-two feet, is standing. One part of it is over one hundred and thirty years old (writes Henry Prentice in 1850, who owned it then). A view of it is on page 185 of first edition of this work. Samuel Prentice, Sr., was grandfather of Judge Samuel Prentiss, of Montpelier, Vt. Samuel Prentice, Sr., d. April 24, 1728, ae. 48. Children:

- I. SAMUEL⁴, b. Nov. 25, 1702; deacon. [7]
- II. JOSEPH⁴, erroneously given to the writer of the first edition of this work as "Praise,"* b. Jan. 26, 1704. (See No. 143, further on.) He connects the Stonington and Preston, Ct., branches.
- III. GRACE⁴, b. Jan. 16, 1705. (See Jackson's "History of Newton.")
- IV. MARY⁴, b. April 12, 1708.

* George A. Prentice, of Henderson, Ky., per Col. Clarence J. Prentice, son of George D. Prentice, says this Praise should be Joseph; this, if correct, connects the Stonington and the Preston branches. Jonas Prentice, brother to Joseph, m. Lucy Denison, dau. of Daniel Denison, who was grandson of the famous George Denison.

- V. JONAS⁴, b. Sept. 28, 1710, in Stonington, Ct. [8]
- VI. ESTHER⁴, b. Dec. 12, 1713; m. Christopher Palmer.
- VII. OLIVER⁴, b. —; ordained as a Congregational minister, in North Stonington, Ct., May 22, 1753, and d. there in office, Oct. 18, 1755.

- X. DOROTHY⁴, b. Dec. 13, 1723.

6. REV. JOHN³ PRENTICE, Harvard College, 1700; son of Thomas Prentice, Jr., and Sarah (Stanton); m., 1st, Dec. 4, 1705, Mary, widow of Rev. Andrew Gardner, his predecessor in the ministry in Lancaster, Mass.; who was shot by the guard, on the night of Oct. 26, 1704, while descending from a lookout, being mistaken for an Indian. She d. about 1716, and he m., 2d, Mrs. Prudence, widow of Rev. Josiah Swan, née Foster, of Charlestown, Mass. She d. July 10, 1765, in Lancaster. Mr. Prentice preached in Lancaster, May, 1705, and was ordained there as a Congregational minister, March 29, 1708 (the fourth minister of the town); his pastorate ended with his death, Jan. 6, 1748. The installation sermon of his successor was preached by Rev. John Hancock, of Lexington, son of Dea. Nathaniel and Mary (Prentice) Hancock, of Cambridge, and grandfather of Gov. John Hancock, who thus speaks of Mr. Prentice: "God gave him the tongue of the learned, so he knew how to speak a word unto him that was weary. He was esteemed for his piety, probity, peacefulness, and gentleness, and for his commendable steadiness in these uncertain times. He was a practical, scriptural, and profitable preacher." The Worcester Antiquarian Society has several of his published sermons. At the two hundredth anniversary of the incorporation of Lancaster, in 1853, Joseph Willard, in his address, thus speaks of its long-time pastor: "The first half of the last century had nearly closed when Mr. Prentice died. The character of Mr. Prentice was that of a man of peace, he was faithful to his convictions, direct and earnest in his appeals. He was gentle, yet firm; satisfied with the way of the churches, he asked for no new guides." His uncle, John Prentice, left him £10, payable on his marriage, and at John's widow's death, one half of his estate of £316 was to be paid him. His uncle's widow, then Mrs. Bond, in her will, also left him part of her property. His salary in 1717 was £70, in 1718 £85, in 1728 £100, in 1731 £130, and in 1737 £210, O. T. He baptized 1,593, admitted 321. Epitaph in Lancaster old cemetery:

"Y^e Rev. Mr. John Prentice, Pastor of y^e First Church of Christ in Lancaster, Died Jan'y 6, A. D. 1747-8, Ætat. 66. In His Doctrine

Cephas and Peter d. in South Carolina (per Miss Mary J. Welles's letter, July, 1882), and was much esteemed. His portrait shows "Cullins practice" in the background. J. W. Prentice, of Pultney, N. Y., in 1882, has this and Peter's portrait (painted by West, in Charleston, S. C.).
- XV. JAMES OTIS⁵, bapt. Aug. 14, 1768; physician (called Otis by some); studied medicine with Dr. Atherton; had an honorary degree from Harvard College, 1791, and James Otis Prentiss had M. D. in 1813; was a member Massachusetts Medical Society that year. Went to South Carolina.
- XVI. PETER⁵, b. Sept. 10, 1766; bapt. Sept. 21; single; said to have d. in South Carolina; a lawyer.

John Curtis was guardian of the five last children of Dr. Stanton Prentice. Miss Mary Jane Welles states as from her mother Harriet (Prentice) Welles, that one of Dr. Stanton* Prentice's sons d. in South Carolina (probably James Otis Prentice). Dr. Cephas Prentice and Samuel Prentiss were in the list of subscribers to Williams's "History of Vermont." Dr. Isaac Atherton had children by his wife Rebecca, widow of Dr. Stanton Prentice, viz.: Abel,† Reuben and Sally, twins, and Charles. George W. Atherton, of State College, Centre County, Pa., in 1882, is a grandson of Otis Atherton, formerly of Mansfield, Mass. The twin to Sally Atherton died, and her mother adopted a child in the place of the one who d., and named it Rebecca.‡ Mrs. Harriet Welles also said that Jeffrey Otis Prentiss and family usually passed the summer at Dr. Stanton Prentice's house in Lancaster, and once, while Mrs. Welles was there, each of them brought a colored servant with them, who were better dressed than some they visited, and Mrs. Welles heard her father, Elder John Prentice, tell of going to South Carolina to attend to some business for his brother James Otis Prentiss, and the slaves on the plantation were fond of "Massa John," and when Mrs. Reynolds's dau. Harriet was married to Jeffrey Otis Prentice she was but a child of thirteen years. Her mother was not in favor of it on account of her age, but her husband wished it to keep the property in the family, and she thought Harriet (Reynolds) Prentiss d. young, and Mrs. Harriet Welles understood from her grandmother Prentice that Chloe Welles, who m. Samuel Prentice, was of her (Welles) line, and that they lived in New York City, Troy, N. Y., and Connecticut, and also in the West.

DR. JAMES OTIS⁵ PRENTICE, son of Dr. Stanton and second wife Rebecca; m. Anna Rowe, of Orangeburgh, S. C.§ Dr. Prentice came to South Carolina about 1785 or 1788, and by her had three children, who reached maturity,|| viz.:

I. SARAH WASHINGTON⁶, —; m., about 1820, Benjamin F. Durkin, late chief justice of South Carolina.

II. ANNA REBECCA⁶, b. —; m., 1834, Charles R. Brewster, attorney at law, and residing, 1883, in Charleston, S. C.

* See appendix for Stanton, Jennison, Dorothy, Stearns, etc.

† J. W. Prentice, of Pultney, N. Y., says that Charles and Abel Atherton were Boston merchants. Rebecca m. Nathaniel Kidder, of Me., and Sarah m. William Abbot, a Boston lawyer. An Atherton was in Cambridge, Mass., 1630 to 1640. Henry Prentiss Atherton, of Rutland, Vt., a lawyer, has a partial genealogy of the Athertons. Rebecca was probably the adopted dau. of Dr. Atherton's wife.

IV. WILLIAM OTIS⁷, b. Sept. 30, 1814; is an Episcopal minister and resides, in 1883, in Charleston, S. C.; has had three wives and twenty-two children.

Jeffrey Otis Prentiss is said to have resided in several places in the South, Charleston, S. C., Augusta, Ga., and Beaufort, S. C., and owned Port Royal Island, S. C., called on old maps "Prentiss's Island." It was seized in the late war and occupied by the United States as a naval rendezvous, as rebel property, but his grandson, Owen Prentiss (son of Rev. William Otis Prentiss, of Charleston, S. C., an Episcopal clergyman), said in 1870, that his grandfather, Jeffrey Otis Prentiss, was a loyal man and he should try to recover this property for the heirs, as it was a very valuable property.‡ J. O. Prentiss, of Augusta, Ga., was a subscriber of Marshall's "Life of Washington," in 1807. (This was undoubtedly James Otis Prentiss.) Cephas, a doctor, and Peter Prentice, a lawyer, sons of Dr. Stanton Prentice, of Lancaster, Mass., are said to have gone to and died in Charleston, S. C., and their portraits, painted by West, in Charleston, are now owned by Josiah Wright Prentiss in 1883, of Pultney, N. Y.

Mr. Prentice was an educated man and a physician, practised previous to and during the Revolutionary war in New London, Ct., and served as surgeon in the Revolutionary army. He suffered a great loss by the burning of New London by the traitor Arnold, in 1781, losing his house, furniture, drug store and its contents. He removed to Milltown, Pa., on the Susquehanna River, in 1797. Mrs. George A. Perkins's book in 1870 of "Early Times on the Susquehanna" says : "There was no place of resort that afforded so much pleasure as the house of Dr. Prentice. Visitors were entertained with books, interesting stories, and ancient curiosities. Among the latter were bed curtains, painted by Mrs. Prentice, on pure Irish linen, much scorched and damaged when New London was burned by Arnold, and an elegant toilet cover stitched by her needle, and the 'antique silver cup' and elegant china punch bowls, saved from the same depredation; some of them are yet in possession of children's children." A part of his house in Milltown is still standing, and where he d. July 19, 1805. Children:

(See "Willard Family," by Joseph Willard.) She was his second wife, his first being Elizabeth, sister of Col. William Prescott, of Bunker Hill memory. "In 1745, at the age of twenty-one, he was captain of a company at the reduction of Louisburg, and in 1758 of a company under Col. Moncton, at the reduction of the French forts in Nova Scotia, connected with the removal of French Acadians. He was soon after promoted to the colonelcy of a regiment, a portion of which was at Crown Point. Col. Willard was with his regiment in the expedition under Lord Amherst, in 1759, and succeeded in bringing them into the field earlier than the other commanders. He was one of the grantees of Walpole, N. H., before it was determined that the township was within the limits of that Province; and owned, besides, a handsome homestead, bequeathed by his father, of large real estate in Lancaster, lands in Berkshire County, and in the Province of Connecticut. After the French war, he improved his estate and was a good citizen, and had the high regard of the community" (p. 415). He loved his country, but was still loyal to his king. His estates were confiscated in the Revolution, and he served as commissary in the British army, and at the close of the war was given a crown grant of land in New Brunswick, and there he settled with his family, and d. 25. ELDER JOHN⁵ PRENTISS, of Rutland, Vt, son of Dr. Stanton and Rebecca, of Lancaster, Mass. ; m., Jan. 22, 1791, Martha, dau. of Rev. Josiah Bridge, of Wayland, in Sudbury, Mass. She was b. Sept. 5. 1768, and d. Feb. 2, 1857, in Pultney, N. Y. Mr. Prentiss d. in Pultney, Steuben County, N. Y., Nov. 1, 1840, to which place he removed in 1813. He had an oil painting, by West, of his brothers, Cephas, a physician, and Peter, a lawyer, painted in Charleston, S. C., which his son, Josiah W. Prentiss, now owns. John Prentice changed his name to Prentiss. After 1793 he was in Lancaster, Mass., where his other children were born.

The following obituary notice of Elder John Prentiss is from a newspaper : —

“ DIED. — In Pultney, on Sunday, the 1st of November, 1840, John Prentiss, Esq., in the eightieth year of his age. Mr. Prentiss was a native of Lancaster, Worcester County, Mass. ; he emigrated to this county at an early day, and endured his full share of the hardships and privations incident to the settlement of a new country. In the early part of his life he went to Vermont in the capacity of a surveyor, purchased and cleared up a farm, principally with his own hands, in the then new and uncultivated region of the country now constituting the town of Rutland and vicinity. His health failing, he commenced the mercantile business, and continued it some six or eight years, together with various other branches of trade suited to a new country, which he carried on with that energy and perseverance which characterized his whole life. He then returned to his native place and engaged successfully in commercial pursuits ; here he continued till the commencement of the late war, when he took a final leave of his native town, and, setting his face to the West, came to this county, and purchased the farm in Pultney, Steuben County, on which he resided till his decease. In all the relations of life Mr.

Prentiss afforded an example worthy of imitation. As a man of business he was persevering and indefatigable; punctual in fulfilling his engagements, sagacious in devising, and prompt in executing his plans; as a citizen, true to all trust reposed in him by his fellow-citizens, and a conscientious supporter of these measures of public policy which his judgment approved; as a parent he was kind and indulgent, as a husband faithful and affectionate. In all the great moral and benevolent movements which characterize and distinguish the present age he felt a deep and lively interest. The great temperance reform found in him an early, consistent, and uniform friend; he was orthodox and evangelical in his religious sentiments, and the cause of Christ, we have the best reason to believe, lay near his heart. His last sickness, which was lingering and painful, he bore with Christian fortitude and resignation, frequently expressing the desire that the Divine will might be done, whether in his life or death. His sufferings were great, but his language was, 'All the days of my appointed time will I wait till my change come.' One Sabbath during his illness, when he was not expected to live through the day, he remarked to one of his daughters who was sitting by his bedside, what a blessed thing it would be to die and go to Heaven on the Sabbath day, and the night before his death, it being Saturday night, he inquired repeatedly if God's holy Sabbath had commenced. He died precisely at twelve o'clock at noon the next day. His parting counsel and blessing to his children and friends were affecting in the extreme, and recalled the patriarch Jacob blessing his sons. His remains were interred in the public burying-ground of the Presbyterian society of Pultney, on Tuesday, the 3d of November, the surviving elders of the church serving as pall-bearers. Rev. James H. Hotchkiss preached on the occasion, from Prov. xiv. 32: 'But the righteous hath hope in his death.'" — Com.

This notice of Mrs. Martha (Bridge) Prentiss is also from a newspaper: —

"DIED. — Pultney, Steuben County, N. Y., Feb. 2, 1857, in the eightieth-ninth year of her age, Martha, the relict of the late John Prentiss, Esq. She was a native of East Sudbury (now Wayland), Mass., and daughter of Rev. Josiah Bridge, formerly minister of that parish. She emigrated with her husband to Pultney in 1813 and died there. She was one of the twelve that formed the nucleus of the present Presbyterian Church there; and saw it rise from a state of feebleness to a self-sustaining church enjoying all the ordinances of the gospel, and all her children and many of her grandchildren holding covenant relations in that church with herself. Her life was the best commentary on her profession, and her death a fitting close to a life of unobtrusive piety. Near the closing scene she remarked, 'The Lord is letting me down very gently.' She fell asleep without a struggle. 'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord.'" Children :

*I am very respectfully,
Your obedient, &c.
Saml. Pentz.*

Pratt's daughter, sister of Henry, North Windham, died in infancy; removed North from the late war, and in the early thirties, N. Y. A. a number of the names of children.

I. Henry, who is deceased.

II. Edward?

III. Another son.

IV. A daughter, who is a M. Charlotte.

V. Another, who is --- Osprey, wife of Frank, who is single over C. C. Baldwin and the History of Northford, Mass. 1901.

299. Hon. SAMUEL PRENTISS, J. D., graduated from Dartmouth College in 1821; son of Dr. Samuel and Lucia (Dartmouth) 1804. 1804. Lucia, eldest daughter of Edward Douglass, of Northfield, Mass., who was b. March 16, 1780, and d. June 15, 1855. Mr. Prentiss, Jan. 15, 1857. He studied law with Solomon Vose, Esq., of Northfield, and John W. Elwell, of Brattleboro', Vt.; was admitted to the bar in 1822, and in May, 1824, began practice in Montpelier, Vt., and continued till 1825. In 1825 he was appointed a judge of the Supreme Court of Vermont, but declined, in order to resume his law and a lucrative practice. He was a member of the Vermont Legislature in 1824 and 1825. In 1825 he was assistant justice of the Supreme Court, and held it to 1829, when he was appointed Chief Justice. In 1839 he was elected United States senator for six years, and again in 1846 for same period. In 1841 or 1842 he was appointed by the President of the United States and remained in office as judge of the United States District Court for Vermont, and continued until his death in 1857, age 53, leaving a very moderate estate after thirty years' continuous service. Like Henry Clay, "his merit and his riches faded, his strength and power faded, his strength of principle, perfection of argument, calm, finished, subduing eloquence, and eloquence of Dacotah in the District of Columbia, were remarkable.

See the memoir of Hon. Samuel Prentiss and that of his wife Lucia, in the appendix, as they were looking for insertion here.

The funeral sermon on the death of Mrs. Prentiss was one of the best things of the kind ever written, by Rev. William H. Lord, D.D., and gives a correct and beautiful sketch of her, as does Theopson's "History of Montpelier." Edward H. Prentiss's letter, 1856. Dr. Lord also wrote the biography of Judge Samuel Prentiss, in the Boston "Law Register," and in 1856. Some of Judge Prentiss's family and the likeness of his wife are in the edition not yet published.

C. C. Baldwin.

My dear Sir
I am, Sir, very
Yours truly

79. HON. SAMUEL⁷ PRENTISS, LL. D.; graduated from Dartmouth College in 1832;* son of Dr. Samuel and Lucretia; m., Oct. 3, 1804, Lucretia, eldest daughter of Edward Houghton,† of Northfield, Mass., who was b. March 16, 1786, and d. June 15, 1855. Mr. Prentiss d. Jan. 15, 1857. He studied law with Solomon Vose, Esq., of Northfield, and John W. Blake, of Brattleboro', Vt.; was admitted to the bar in 1802, and in May, 1803, began practice in Montpelier, Vt., and continued till 1825. In 1825 he was appointed a judge of the Supreme Court of Vermont, but declined it, owing to a large family and a lucrative practice. He was a member of the Vermont Legislature in 1824 and 1825. In 1825 he was assistant justice of Supreme Court, and held it to 1829, when he was appointed Chief Justice.‡ In 1830 he was elected United States senator for six years, and again in 1836 for same period. In 1841 or 1842 he was appointed by the President of the United States and unanimously confirmed judge of the United States District Court for Vermont, and continued such to his death in 1857, æ. 75, leaving a very moderate estate, after thirty-two years' continuous service. Like Henry Clay, "inheriting from his father existence and poverty." His strength of principle, perfection of argument, calm, finished, subduing eloquence on the Bill against Duelling in the District of Columbia, were remarkable.

* See the memoir of Hon. Samuel Prentiss and that of his wife Lucretia, in the appendix, as they were too long for insertion here.

† The funeral sermon on the death of Mrs. Prentiss was one of the best things (of the kind) ever written, by Rev. William H. Lord, D.D., and gives a correct and beautiful sketch of her, as does Thompson's "History of Montpelier." (Edward H. Prentiss's letter, 1875.) Dr. Lord also wrote the biography of Judge Samuel Prentiss, in Lurington's "Law Register," soon after 1840. Some of Judge Prentiss's family think the likeness of him in the first edition not a good one.

‡ C. C. Baldwin.

The Washington Statesman, Boston Daily Atlas, National Intelligencer, and a Cleveland, Ohio, paper, and the Law Reporter, Boston, in Vol. II., page 422, give him a fine character and eulogy. See also his speech in United States Senate, March 2, 1842, and pages 195 to 198 of the first edition of this book, where is also a lithograph portrait from an engraved one, and also a view of his house in Montpelier. The present engraving is from that plate, and the albertype of Mrs. Prentiss from a daguerreotype, was furnished by their son, Frederick J. Prentiss. Children:

Mrs. Prentiss d. June 28, 1818, and J. H. Prentiss m., 2d, June 3, 1828, Urilla, dau. of Thomas Shankland, Esq., of Cooperstown, N. Y. Col. J. H. Prentiss d. June 26, 1861, ae. 77 years 2 months 9 days, in Cooperstown. After serving an apprenticeship as a printer, he removed to Cooperstown, N. Y., Oct. 8, 1808, and established the Cooperstown Federalist, Democratic in politics, and the Freeman's Journal. He continued his paper over forty years, when, Jan. 20, 1849, he sold it, when he was æ. 66. During all this time except while in Congress four years as representative, under Van Buren, he gave his personal attention to the printing office, both to the mechanical and financial departments, ten to twelve hours daily, and was sole editor. It had a large circulation; many young men, since of eminence, served in his office, among them the late Col. W. L. Stone, editor of the New York Commercial Advertiser. Mr. Prentiss's paper was an authority and power in the county of Otsego and in the State of New York. Gov. Clinton bestowed on him a command as colonel of militia and division inspector, which he resigned under Gov. Yates. He was vice-president and afterwards president of the bank of Cooperstown, and was a resident of Otsego County over fifty years.* (See Langman's Dictionary of Congress.) Col. Prentiss was of untiring industry, and as an editor maintained a prominent position. His last appearance in political life was as a delegate in the Democratic State Convention in Albany, Feb. 1, 1861. Children :

* Gen. Morris was aid to Gen. Greene in the Revolutionary war.

- I. MARY MARTHA⁸, b. Aug. 5, 1816. [130]
- II. CATHERINE LUCRETIA⁸, b. Sept. 23, 1817.† [131]

III. —, a daughter, who m. and has children.*

82. HON. WILLIAM AUGUSTUS⁷ PRENTISS, son of Dr. Samuel and Lucretia; b. March 24, 1800; m. Elizabeth Sands, of Saco, Me., Sept. 11, 1833. She d. Feb. 6, 1857. In 1824 he removed to Jericho, Vt., in Chittenden County, from Northfield, Mass., when about twenty-two years of age, and where he was chairman of the selectmen eight years and representative in 1829. In 1837 was a justice of the peace, with civil and criminal jurisdiction of Milwaukee, Wis., to which place he removed his family in 1836. (This county is now five large counties.) In 1837 he was chairman of the county commissioners, with control of county matters over the same region, and which he held till the State government was organized in 1848. He was mayor of Milwaukee in 1858, and was four years in the territorial and two years in the State Legislature of Wisconsin. When he came to Milwaukee there were twenty buildings of one and one half stories, then called "balloons," and about fifty white people, with numerous Indians in the vicinity. In 1875 the population was over one hundred thousand, and the assessed value (at half its valuation) was fifty million dollars, and had sixty miles of pipes, at cost of two and one half millions, to the lake for water, with a debt of two and one half millions only. Mr. Prentiss in 1875 had witnessed all this growth, at the age of over seventy-five. He had always been in vigorous health, abstaining from all stimulating drinks, and regular in diet and sleep, and continued so in 1882 and 1883. Milwaukee has a beautiful site, the bay indentation of the lake three miles wide and six miles from point to point, with a grand entrance to the river, and piers for steamers of the largest size, and in 1875 nine railroads centred in Milwaukee, bringing yearly thirty million bushels of wheat, besides other produce. There is no better country in the world for agriculture than the four States of Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, and Wisconsin; they produced in 1875 one hundred and twenty million bushels of wheat for market, and Milwaukee is the primary market for it, receiving in October 200,000 bushels of that grain. Children of William A. Prentiss:

I. HELEN ELIZABETH⁸, b. Aug. 25, 1834; m. John Ridgway Jenks, of St. Paul, Minn. No children.

II. WILLIAM AUGUSTUS, Jr.⁸, b. May 25, 1836; d. May 24, 1872; single.

123. SAMUEL BLAKE⁸ PRENTISS, son of Hon. Samuel and Lucretia; m., April 14, 1851, Jane Atwood, dau. of Warren and Jane A. Russell, of East Haddam, Ct. Mr. Prentiss entered the University of Vermont. After the college was burnt he studied law with his father; was admitted to the bar in 1828, and to Supreme Court in 1831; he practised in Montpelier, Vt., until 1840; then settled in Cleveland, Ohio, in company with his brother, Frederick James Prentiss, who was then there. The firm was S. B. Prentiss & Co., until F. J. Prentiss became clerk of the courts, in 1861, when the firm was changed to S. B. Prentiss & Baldwin. Mr. Prentiss was distinguished at the bar. In 1867 he was elected judge of the Common Pleas and District Courts of the Fourth Judicial District of Ohio. His third term and fifteen years' service as such ended Feb. 8, 1882, he having been re-elected in 1871, etc. "He was well fitted for the place, his knowledge of law was great and certain, he had great patience, decided to satisfy the attorneys on both sides." From a notice in the Cleveland paper, Feb. 12, 1882, and the bar banquet Feb. 16, 1882, we find that "Judge Prentiss is strongly marked by his father's characteristics. His mind exact and logical, very precise and accurate in all things; in law methodical, progressing step by step in preparing cases; thus avoiding a repetition of labor; once done, it was right. He sacrificed his private to his public business. Like his father, he seemed to have been born for the bench. His second election was just before the salary was raised from $2,500 to $4,000. The increased labor and meagre salary of a judge was a temptation to resign, but he kept to his post. When elected a judge he gave all his time and thought to it. He has acquired an enviable reputation as a lawyer and judge, and his legal opinions are never questioned. He is about five feet ten inches in height, neat and careful in dress, has a fine-shaped head, a broad and high forehead, large blue eyes, regular features, and a pleasing countenance, dark hair slightly marked with gray, and of a polite and affable manner. A cataract has troubled his eyesight for a few years. He now retires from the bench to a good old age." Judge Prentiss's associates on the bench presented to him a cane and a letter, saying, "Your eminent legal abilities, your industry, fairness, impartiality, and uniform kindness and consideration towards all who have been connected with you in the administration of justice, furnish an example worthy of all praise and admiration." 127. FREDERICK JAMES⁸ PRENTISS, seventh son of Samuel and Lucretia; m. Delia Adeliza, dau. of Jesse and Prudence (Doane) Hurd. Mr. Hurd was a large merchant and ship-owner of Middle Haddam, Ct. Mr. Prentiss being the seventh son in succession, his fame of possessing the power to cure the "king's evil" spread far and wide before he was fourteen years old, and many persons having faith in that superstition came from all quarters; this not being agreeable to his taste, he turned his attention to the law. In 1839 he settled in Cleveland, Ohio, where for more than twenty years he had a large and successful practice. From 1840 to February, 1861, he was associated in the law business with his brother, Samuel Blake Prentiss. In 1860, his health failing, preventing further practice, he was elected to the office of clerk of the Common Pleas and District Courts for three years, and re-elected in 1863 for three years longer. He was the first member of his father's family that removed to the then "far West," but before many years he was followed by all but one of his brothers. "He never sought or desired political office or honors, except as above mentioned, preferring the more quiet walks of life; although, had he desired it, his old friends and neighbors say, he might have been the recipient of various public offices and honors. No man in Cuyahoga County, Ohio, ever had warmer or stronger friends than Mr. Prentiss," writes a friend from Cleveland, Ohio. In 1877 he removed to New York City, where he has since resided, generally spending the summer months in Greenport, Long Island.* One child:

- I. FREDERICK CHARLES⁹, b. Feb. 2, 1843, in Cleveland, Ohio; m., Oct. 20, 1870, Lydia Smith Floyd, b. Feb. 10, 1848, at Greenport, Suffolk County, Long Island. Mr. Prentiss was in the wholesale grocery business in Cleveland awhile. He sold out and removed to New York City, May, 1813, and is, in 1882, engaged in the manufacture of woollen goods at the Manhattan Worsted Mills, Edwin T. Butler and Frederick C. Prentiss, proprietors; office, West 130th Street and Eleventh Avenue, New York City. They have one child:
 - I. LYDIA FLOYD¹⁰, b. in Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 12, 1871.

*F. J. Prentiss furnished the impressions from the plate of Hon. Samuel Prentiss, of Montpelier, Vt., which was loaned for the purpose by Hon. E. P. Walton, of Montpelier, from the State vault there, and printed by Mr. J. H. Daniel, of Boston, who also printed the impressions from the plates of Henry E. Prentiss and his widow, of Bangor, Me., and furnished by her for this book.

"Will you please call me?"

The level of β is chosen such that $\beta \leq \min\{1, \frac{1}{2} \frac{\alpha}{\alpha + \beta_0}\}$. The level of α is chosen such that $\alpha \leq \min\{1, \frac{1}{2} \frac{\beta}{\beta + \beta_0}\}$.

15. The following information was obtained from the Management Information System (MIS) for the period
 1994-1995:

It is a pleasure to see that the Journal of Management Studies has been able to publish a number of articles on the topic of internationalization. Since the first issue of the journal in 1968, the number of articles on internationalization has increased steadily. In 1968, there were only two articles on internationalization, but by 1988, there were 145 articles on internationalization. This shows that the journal has been able to keep up with the latest developments in the field of internationalization. The articles in this special issue are a good example of the high quality of research published in the journal. They cover a wide range of topics, from the effects of internationalization on the economy to the role of internationalization in the development of the world. The articles are written by leading experts in the field, and they provide a comprehensive overview of the current state of research on internationalization. The journal is a valuable resource for anyone interested in the field of internationalization, and it is a pleasure to see that it has been able to publish such a high quality of research.

in December, 1881, æ. about 82. In 1874 he resided at 609 N street, Northwest, in Washington, D. C.; in 1882-3 resides in Washington, D. C. He was a clerk in the Post-Office Department in 1850, and in 1882-3 is in the Navy Department, being the oldest clerk there, and at the age of 82 enjoys good health, his hand as steady as ever, and writes a neat, plain hand. He sent the writer of this a good photograph of himself, taken in 1882. He also sent the photograph of his brother, George D. Prentice, of Louisville, Ky., also taken in Washington, D. C., which is inserted in this edition by the albertype process. Children:

I. LAURA⁸, b. June 19, 1826.

II. HARRIET⁸, b. July 17, 1828.

183. GEORGE DENNISON⁷ PRENTICE, of Louisville, Ky., son of Rufus and Sarah; m., about 1835, Henrietta, dau. of Col. Joseph Blenham, a lawyer of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Louisville, Ky.; she d. April, 1868, at Louisville, Ky. Mr. Prentice was precocious as a child, reading the Bible at the age of three and one half years. He worked on his father's farm from the age of nine to fourteen. He fitted for college in six months, and read all the classics in that time. He taught school two years. He entered Brown University, as a Sophomore, in 1820, and graduated there in 1823; his friend, Samuel G. Howe, was in that class. In 1828 he started the New England Review, which was quite successful and was distinguished by a bold and incisive style. In 1830 he left it in charge of the poet Whittier, and at the request of a political party went to Lexington, Ky., to write the biography of Henry Clay, which he soon completed and which met with an enthusiastic reception in Kentucky and with the Whig party in the United States, obtaining a warm affection from Mr. Clay, who said "he owed the greatest part of his fame to Mr. Prentice." In September, 1830, Mr. Prentice removed to Louisville, Ky., and on the 24th of November following he published the first number of the Louisville Journal, of which for years he was the talented and witty editor and poet, wielding a sharp pen. His ability, firmness, and intrepidity won him a high position South and West, and all over the United States. Mr. Prentice was slightly above the middle height, with a figure, when in vigorous health, inclining to stoutness. His features were not regular, but his face pleasing, and when animated it seemed handsome. His head finely shaped, with a noble, impressive forehead. Hair black till late in life, though somewhat thin. Dark brown eyes, rather small, but full of life and sparkle when in a happy mood, though he could express fierceness and severity. His voice low and agreeable; with strangers reserved and sometimes embarrassed, and with chosen friends fluent and free, often full of brightness and humor. When on themes of poetry and philosophy, seriously sweet and eloquent. Though courageous, he was totally opposed to duelling, and courageously made it known. He was generous to a fault and could not say no. When an acquaintance who had uttered libels against him afterwards came to him in want, poor and seedy, and asked for two dollars and a half to visit his sick mother, Mr. Prentice gave him twenty-five dollars, and told him to visit her in a better state, and like a gentleman, and thousands went to needy young men passing through Louisville. A life-size statue, in marble, on a pedestal forty feet high, representing him as sitting in his editorial chair, was erected by his friends at the front of the Courier-Journal office, adjoining the Public Library, in Louisville, Ky. A volume of his poems, with a portrait not good, was collected by his son, and afterwards published by John J. Piatt, Cincinnati, 1876. Some of them were fine; a copy was forwarded to the editor of this edition in 1882 by his brother Rufus, the memoir in which gives a good account of his career; a steel portrait taken in middle life was given on p. 710 of King's "Great South," and Scribner's Magazine, December, 1874, has one taken in early life, but his brother says they are not good. The albertype from a photograph taken in Washington, D. C., the latter says is like him.

(Part of the above account is from the poems, part from Griffin's "Studies in Literature," Louisville, Ky.)

Mr. Prentice died of pneumonia, Jan. 12, 1870, æt. 67, from a cold taken the Christmas previous, on a visit to his son's farm. He had also suffered several years from heart disease. His wife died April, 1868. Mr. Prentice's mother taught her son a Christian's faith and hope, which he retained through life. He was buried with Masonic honors at Cave Hill Cemetery, Louisville, Ky., by the side of his wife and children. His body had been removed to Louisville and was laid in state in the Masonic Temple there. No monument is over his grave. The writer is informed that the sensational story about him in a Western paper, and copied in the Chicago Tribune, May 13, 1882, is mostly incorrect. His habits may have been somewhat irregular in the latter part of his life. He himself bought his house for ten thousand dollars, in Louisville, Ky., and made extensive alterations and repairs and gave it to his wife. His son Clarence is said to have sold it for thirty-five thousand dollars towards the purchase of his farm. His children were:

- I. A son; d. in childhood.
- II. A daughter; d. in childhood.
- III. WILLIAM COCKFELD^s, b. about 1837; joined the Confederate army in a company of Morgan's cavalry, September, 1862, and was killed the 18th of same month and year, at Augusta, Ky.

- IV. CLARENCE JOSEPH⁸, b. 1842; m., 1861, in Paris, France, a Jewish girl, who turned out bad, and was in the rebel army with him, which he also joined, and in which he gained the rank of colonel. His wife was divorced and sent home to Europe. He m., 2d, an estimable lady of Kentucky, and had by her:

- I. GEORGE DENISON⁹, b. March 27, 1862; now at the South.

Col. Clarence J. Prentice was killed by the upsetting of his buggy, the night of Nov. 15, 1873, in Louisville, Ky. He was engaged in collecting his father's poems. He graduated in both law and medicine, and had practised the latter with success, but preferred farm life. Had travelled extensively in Europe and America, was a good musician, and was hospitable in true Kentucky style. (Richard H. Collins's "History of Kentucky," Vol. I., p. 246.)

SECOND NEWTON BRANCH, FROM ROBERT PRENTICE, OF ROXBURY, MASS.

I. ROBERT PRENTICE, of Roxbury, Mass., b. in 1635 ; was a member of the First Roxbury, Mass., Church, the records of which say " he was buried Feb. 12, 1665." The old parish register of Nazing, England, has this entry : " Elizabeth Prentice, dau. of Robert Prentice, and Elizabeth his wife, was baptized April 20, 1635." * Possibly this may be the Robert who came to Roxbury.† He was probably a relative of Valentine Prentice, of Roxbury (who Savage says came over with the " apostle " Eliot from Nazing, Essex County, England, in 1631), and probably also a relative of Capt. Thomas Prentice, of Newton, who administered on Robert's estate,‡ and perhaps a relative of the planter, Henry Prentice, of Cambridge, Mass. In 1645, Aug. 31, Robert Prentice gave a year's subscription towards a free school in Roxbury, Mass.§ Sept. 20, 1658, Sergeant John Ruggles's inventory, Roxbury, credits Robert Prentice for work, and William Peacock's inventory,|| Jan. 22, 1660, mentions him. Oct. 25, 1664, Robert Prentiss and others signed the Roxbury petition to the General Court about the infringement of their patent. Feb. 7, 1665, Thomas Prentice, of Newton, presented Robert Prentice's inventory to Probate Court, in which on Probate Court records, Boston, is mentioned " a house and two acres land, £50 ; dwelling house and orchard, £30, and other lands¶ and household utensils, ' a bull stagge,' at Capt. Prentice's, etc. Total, £174 15s. 6d. ; debts, £29 4s. 6d." Dr. John Alcock, of Roxbury, was his physician, and April 26, 1665, Capt. Thomas Prentice swore to the inventory. The name Robert was handed down in several families of the Newton Prentices. As James Savage supposed that Robert Prentice, of Roxbury, Mass., was the father of the brothers James Prentice, Sr., and Thomas Prentice, the second, of Newton, they are continued as sons of Robert Prentice, viz. :

I. JAMES², Sr., of Newton, Mass., b. about 1629. [2]

II. THOMAS², the second, of Newton, Mass., b. about 1632. [3]

* See a notice of Robert Prentice further on in the English branches.

† Perhaps his wife Elizabeth or that child may have died in England the year he came to America.

‡ James Savage says Robert Prentice's inventory was presented for probate by his brother, Thomas Prentice, of Newton, Mass.

§ Ellis's History of Roxbury, Mass.

|| See New England Historic, Genealogical Register, Vol. X. p. 267.

¶ Robert Prentice had sixteen acres of land in Roxbury, and forty-eight acres near Muddy River. (Roxbury Book of Possessions.)

2. JAMES² PRENTICE, Sr., of Cambridge and Newton, Mass., b. 1629, probably in England, and brother of Thomas Prentice, the second (and supposed to be sons* of Robert, of Roxbury); d. March 7, 1710, ae. 81; was a freeman March 26, 1660; m., about 1655, Susanna, dau. of Edward Johnson, of Woburn, Mass., author of the "Wonder-working Providence." (Edward Johnson† came over in 1630, from Kent in England. He helped to build up the town of Woburn and erect a church there, and was the town clerk of Woburn from 1640 to his death, which occurred in Woburn, April 23, 1672.) In 1650 James and Thomas Prentice bought together of Thomas Parish, of England, through his attorney, Thomas Danforth, four hundred acres of land in Cambridge, Mass., and in 1657 James bought one hundred acres in Cambridge Village (Newton, Mass.). Part of the latter is now the site of the ancient meeting-house and the burial-place in Newton. James and Thomas Prentice, the second, built the ancient sharp-roofed house near the burial-place (which was taken down about 1800). They occupied it in common many years and bought this farm together. John Prentice, Sr., son of Capt. Thomas Prentice and wife Grace, had part of this land. James, dying childless, left by will in 1689 all his land, etc., to his wife for life, and at her death one half of it and £10 to go to his cousin (nephew?), Rev. John Prentice, of Lancaster, Mass.; and John's wife, E'izabeth (Jackson), had power to devise the other half of the estate; who then, as Mme. Bond, at her decease, willed the other half of it to her cousin, her first husband's brother's son, Rev. John Prentice, of Lancaster, Mass., and Rev. John Prentice sold the whole to Henry Gibbs, Esq., in 1742. In 1652, in a journey made to ascertain the latitude of the northern boundary of the colony of Massachusetts during the union of Massachusetts and New Hampshire, is this entry: "Item, James Prentise, for the journey, £3." In

* James Savage thinks they may be sons of Robert, of Roxbury, and their father Robert a brother of Capt. Thomas Prentice. James Prentice was a householder in Cambridge, 1658, and a witness on a case. (Middlesex County records, per T. B. Wyman.) James Prentice, in his receipt for his father-in-law's legacy, wrote his name Prentis, and Johnson spelled it Prentize.

† Capt. Edward Johnson, formerly of Woburn, who came over second time, 1636, a man of learning and property, wills to James Prentice, Jr., his grandson, in 1671, a legacy of £11 10s, and ordered William, son of John Johnson, to pay it, who refused; and James Prentice sued Johnson's agent, Thomas Kendall, for it, and recovered £16 in currency for it. (W. R. Cutter's memorandums.) Edward Johnson also wills his household stuff, corn, and cattle (after their grandmother's death) "to Susanna and Hannah, the daughters of his son-in-law, James Prentise."

James Prentice's * inventory he is called "Yeoman"; amount, £286 14s. 0d. April 17, 1673, the testimony of James Prentice, ac. 44, that widow Smith had lands of Joseph Bartlett. Samuel and Elizabeth Eldred, of Wickford, Narragansett, testify "that James Prentice, of Cambridge, was to serve James Bates and wife one year more than he did, as he could get more wages. Bates, being his townsman and countryman, with no kindred in this country, engaged to give Prentiss £20 at his marriage." June 11, 1644, James Prentice's writ vs. goods of John Betts (Bates?) and wife Elizabeth, of Cambridge, deceased, in hands of their executors. (Middlesex County records, East Cambridge, Mass.) Children of James and Susannah (Johnson) Prentice:

- I. JAMES³, Jr., b. March 11, 1655† (the last of the male line of James Prentice, Sr.), in Newton. Where he went to after 1711 is unknown; his wife's name was Elizabeth —.
- II. SUSANNA³, b. June 29, 1657. She had £2 3s. per her father's inventory, 1710.†
- III. HANNAH³, b. April 24, 1659.
- IV. ELIZABETH³, b. Aug. 25, 1660.
- V. SARAH³, b. 1662. Sarah Prentice's will, "late of Newton, deceased, is dated Aug. 14, 1738. Robert Prentice is one of her executors. She leaves her property to Robert, James, and Mary, children of James [7] and Elizabeth (Bartlett) Prentice."
- VI. ROSE³, b. 1663; has £1 per her father's inventory, April 17, 1710. The settlement of James Prentice's estate in 1711, the widow and James Prentice, Jr., administrators, mentions the above six children. James Prentice, Jr., for £60 sold out, April 9, 1711, his part of his father's estate to his five sisters, then all single. The sisters agreed to leave their parts of the estate together till their mother's death. In 1694 James Prentice was a selectman in Newton.

3. THOMAS² PRENTICE, the second, of that part of Cambridge, south side of the river, now Newton, Mass., brother of James Pren-

* In 1710, James Prentice, Jr., and his mother Susanna administered on his father, James Prentice, Sr.'s, estate, who d. March 7, 1710. He sold out his interest in his father's estate in 1711 to his five sisters, all single women, and probably James, Jr., left Newton, as he then disappears.

† James Savage has March 11, 1654, as birth of James, Jr.

‡ Susan and Hannah were legatees of Edward Johnson's property, as before named.

tice. Sr., and son of Robert Prentice, of Roxbury, Mass., and nephew of Thomas Prentice, the trooper, of Newton, Mass., was b. in England in 1632 or 1633. He with his brother James bought their farm together in Newton, in 1657, and were among the first settlers there. He m. Rebecca, dau. of Edward Jackson,* Sr., by his first wife, Elizabeth. She, Rebecca, was b. in England, 1632 or 1633, and bapt. in London, at Whitechapel Parish, Oct. 10, 1633 (per its register). She was a sister of Elizabeth Jackson, the first wife of John, son of Capt. Thomas Prentice, the trooper, of Newton, Mass. Thomas Prentice, the second, d. in Newton, at great age, æ. 90 or 91, in 1722. The date of his wife Rebecca's death is unknown. He was selectman in Newton, 1686, 1690, 1699, and 1700. There is no record of him in Newton's births, deaths, or marriages, or on probate records. "On the first day of the first month, called March, 1650, Thomas Danforth, attorney for Thomas Parish and wife Mary, of Nayland, County of Suffolk, England, deeds to James and Thomas Prentice, Jr., both of Cambridge, Mass., 400 acres of land in Cambridge, which was given to Parish by the inhabitants of Cambridge (per town books). Also in 1657, same to same, 100 acres of land, that farm that James Prentice now dwells on, John Jackson on the northeast; William Clement on the southwest, for £61." In the affidavit of Thomas Prentice, the second, in 1713, he says: "About 60 years ago (1653) I held the end of a chain to lay out a highway in Newton"; which would make him about 91 at his death in 1722. May 13, 1713, Thomas Prentice (then called Senior), made a gift-deed to Thomas Prentice, Jr., of "Burnt Hill, in Newton, adjoining the new dwelling-house of said Thomas Prentice, except what I have allowed to my son-in-law, John Hyde, and reserving $\frac{2}{3}$ of the cedar swamp to my sons, John and Edward Prentice"; acknowledged May 4, 1714, and recorded Jan. 24, 1724. Children of Thomas and Rebecca Prentice:

- I. FRANCES³, b. —; (eldest;†) m., by Thomas Prentice, Esq., to Joseph Palmer, of Stonington, Ct., Nov. 13, 1687.†

- 4. THOMAS³ PRENTICE, Jr., son of Thomas and Rebecca (Jackson); m. Elizabeth (Bond?) about 1690, and d. Dec. 11, 1721; * his widow, Elizabeth, was his administratrix, Jan. 9, 1725. Children:
 - I. JOHN⁴, b. March 6, 1691; settled in Preston, Ct. [9]
 - II. REBECCA⁴, b. Dec. 22, 1693.
 - III. EBENEZER⁴, b. —, 1706; a blacksmith, in Newton, 1728; m. Elizabeth —.
 - IV. THOMAS⁴, b. —; was selectman in Newton, 1753-4. William Ward was guardian to Ebenezer Prentice, June 12, 1728. "An Ebenezer Prentice, of Newton, Mass., † 'blacksmith,' and John Prentice, of Preston, Ct., 'husbandman,' heirs of the late Thomas Prentice; convey house and land in Newton," etc.

5. DR. JOHN³ PRENTICE, "cordwainer," afterwards "physician," son of Thomas and Rebecca; d. Jan. 4, 1720-1; m., 1st, Hannah Osland in 1696, who d. May, 1704; m. 2d, Bethia —, who d. before 1754. In his father's deed of gift in 1714 he is called "cordwainer," as he was in a deed of eighteen acres of land from John Parker in 1703, in Newton. In 1718 John Prentice, of Newton, "physician," and wife Bethia, convey part of the same eighteen acres to Nathaniel Longley, John Prentice having between 1703 and 1718 dropped the "last and lapstone," and taken to physic. ‡ Dec. 3, 1710, Dr. John Prentice, of Newton, petitions the General Court "for payment of his services in the war at the § Eastward when impressed in Capt. After his widow Bethia d., his property, in 1754, was divided among his children. Among his effects were "30 acres land, some books, surgeon's instruments," etc. Children of Dr. John by wife Hannah:

- I. HANNAH⁴, b. Oct. 25, 1697; m. Thomas Soden, March 19, 1723-4, of Cambridge; she d. Feb. 19, 1761, ae 66,* and he d. Feb. 23, 1770, ae 71.
- II. EXPERIENCE⁴, b. Sept. 26, 1700.
- III. REBECCA⁴, b. March 27, 1704.
By second wife:
- IV. ELIZABETH⁴, b. —; m. John Knapp, in 1727.
- V. BETHIA⁴, b. Aug. 16, 1713.
- VI. ANNA⁴, b. Nov. 17, 1717; m. Nathan or Nathaniel Hyde, in 1740.

6. EDWARD³ PRENTICE, son of Thomas and Rebecca; m. Sarah Osland, sister to Dr. John Prentice's first wife, Hannah. Edward Prentice d. Sept. 16, 1724. Oct. 9, 1724, his widow Sarah was administratrix on his estate of £619 personal. He was constable of Newton at his death. Her administration account has "Gloves, £2 12s. 6d.; Dea. Williams, for wine, £2 2s. 7d.; Bethia P., Ex. of Dr. John Prentice, for his medical services to Sept. 18, 1725, and Capt. Thos. Prentice, for collecting last rates of deceased as constable (by Edward's request in his last sickness)." Sept 6, 1728, property was divided "1/3 to widow, and 2/3 to Edward, the only child," land bounded by John Prentice, deceased, and by Capt. Thomas Prentice and by Mrs. Elizabeth (Bond), widow of John Prentice, and by Hannah and Sarah Prentice and Timothy Whitney; "total real estate, £706." Edward Prentice and wife Sarah are mentioned in the settlement of her father's, Humphrey Osland, estate. One child:

- I. EDWARD⁴, Jr., b. Nov. 19, 1706. [10]

An ancient pear-tree marked the spot in Newton where Edward Prentice's house stood, a few rods west of Ebenezer W. White's house. Widow Sarah, with her grandchildren, Edward, John, and Abigail Prentice, conveyed this homestead and fifty acres to Ebenezer Davis, in 1764 "West by Robert Prentice."

An autograph of Edward Prentice [6] of Cambridge, Mass., is on page 618 of Massachusetts records, State House, Boston.

7. JAMES³ PRENTICE, son of Thomas and Rebecca; m., Dec. 9, 1710, Elizabeth, dau. of Henry and Mary Bartlett, of Marlboro, Mass. She was b. Feb. 27, 1686. Hudson's "History of Marlboro" says, "She m., Dec. 9 or March 8, 1709 or 1810, John (?) Prentice"; and L. Bigelow, town clerk of Marlboro, says, "John Prentice m. Elizabeth, dau. of Henry Bartlett, of Marlboro, and both of Newton." This is probably a repetition of the error of John for James Prentice. James Prentice d. 1719; and she d. 1724, at her father's house. Widow Elizabeth and Capt. Thomas Prentice administered on James Prentice's estate, April 1, 1719. Inventory, £129, of Dec. 22, 1789; estate settled by grant to the widow of £32 15s. 11d.; and to the three children (Robert, James, and Mary Prentice), £65 12s. 0d., "paid to S. Prentice, H. Prentice, and Edw. Prentice." In 1719, Capt. Thomas Prentice, of Newton, "gentleman," was guardian to Robert, ae. 11 years, and James, 6 years; and Widow Elizabeth was guardian to Mary, 4 years, till her mother's death, in 1724, when Jeremiah Willard, "bloomer," of Newton, was appointed Mary's guardian. On Capt. Thomas Prentice's death, in 1729, James Prentice, then 18, chose Ebenezer Ward as his guardian, whose account, Aug. 1, 1736, of £39 3s. 5d., charges 5s. for putting James out to apprentice. On Mrs. Elizabeth Prentice's death, in 1724, the settlement of her estate was committed to Capt. Thomas Prentice, of Newton, her husband's administrator, by consent of her father, Henry Bartlett, of Marlboro, at whose house she d. Her inventory, Jan. 29, 1724, was £60 personal; real estate, house, buildings, and £445, and five acres in Great Bald Pate meadow, £40. Children of James and Elizabeth:

- I. ROBERT⁴, b. April 19, 1714; m. 1st, Rebecca Smith, and 2d, Eunice Hammond. [11]
- II. JAMES⁴, b. March 1, 1715.
- III. MARY⁴, b. Nov. 7, 1716.

Sarah Prentice, of Newton, "spinster," and dau. of James Prentice, Sr., wills to the above three children (her consins) her property; to each, £100, and to Robert her real estate; total inventory, £900, including a "tailor's goose."

8. EBENEZER (no certain record of him).

9. JOHN⁴ PRENTICE, son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Bond?); m. Elizabeth —, Sept. 29, 1715, in Newton, Mass., and "removed to Preston, Ct., where he had children, and perhaps he removed also to Canterbury, Ct., and may have had a second wife." Children:

- I. MARY⁵, b. 1716. Could she be the Mary Prentice who d. in York, Me., Nov. 20, 1792, ae. 77, agreeing with her birth?

But T. B. Wyman, of Charlestown, Mass., had about her,

- V. JONAH or JONAS⁵, was an itinerant blacksmith in Uxbridge, Mass., 1753 or 1759.
- VI. WILLIAM⁵, b. —; a clothier; m. Trial Darling, of Uxbridge, Mass. In 1755, he went to "Chestnut Hill," Mendon, now Blackstone, Mass., and was alive 1785, and perhaps in 1806. [13a]
- VII. RUFUS⁵, b. 1762, in Douglass.
- VIII. DILLY⁵, b. —; m. — Brown; she lived to near 100 years of age.
- IX. EBENEZER⁵(?) ; single (?).

"John Prentis, of Preston County, of New London, Colony of Ct., 'Husbandman,' and Ebenezer Prentis, of Newton, 'Blacksmith,' deed to Timo. Whitney, of Newton, 'Husbandman,' Land and dwelling-house in Newton, S. E. by Edw. Prentice, etc., Elizabeth Prentice, 'our mother,' also joins, and Edward Prentice to have a way through the land" (Middlesex County, Mass., records). Luke Prentice, of Northbridge, Mass., had a bond of Daniel Elliot's (of Sutton) to John Prentice, of Canterbury, Windham County, Ct., dated Oct. 9, 1737; and Luke Prentice thinks John Prentice may have removed from Preston to Canterbury, Ct., and had his last five children in Canterbury; and Luke Prentice also said when he was a young man "that Ebenezer Prentice (above) was of Uxbridge, from 1724 to 1730, and from Walpole, and was brother to Samuel," and that his father James also told Luke "that Ebenezer, brother of John and Samuel, was a bachelor, and of or from Roxbury or Newton, and died at great age."

13a. WILLIAM⁵ PRENTICE, "clothier," son of John [9] and Elizabeth, of Newton, Mass., who went to Preston and Canterbury, Ct., m. Trial Darling, of Uxbridge, Mass. William Prentice resided in Sutton, Mass., and went to Chestnut Hill, Mendon (now Blackstone, Mass.), in 1755. Children: *

21. NATHANIEL⁶ PRENTICE, son of Edward and Mary; m. Elizabeth Gordon, of Philadelphia, Pa.; m., 2d, Miss Todd, at the age of sixteen. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary war with his brother Robert. He also was in the war of 1812. He removed to New York as a perfumer at 28 John Street. Before her marriage his wife made him promise to go to Kentucky, and about 1796 his wife was infatuated with frontier life, and they in a few years removed to Lexington, Ky., then a small village. She succumbed to the hardships and privations of the new country, and d. a few years after their removal there, much lamented. She was from one of the first families of Lexington, Ky. He remained in Kentucky until 1825, and filled several offices, highly respected as an old-line Whig. Removed in 1825 to New York City, to his old place, 28 John Street, and d. there, 1832, of apoplexy, partly caused by his dread of cholera. He was a "Christian Universalist or Murrayite" in belief.* Children:

- I. NATHANIEL SMITH⁷, b. Feb. 26, 1790, in Philadelphia, Pa.; was in Kentucky with his father when young. He removed to Philadelphia, and m., May 9, 1816, his cousin, Sarah F. Gordon. Afterwards removed to New York as partner with his uncle, Nathaniel Smith, and afterwards bought him out and continued the business at the old stand, corner Broadway and Liberty Street, till December, 1825, when he lost all by the burning of his house and store. Started the business again in a year or two, and prospered until the crisis of 1836, when he lost so heavily by the misfortunes of others he was again ruined. In the course of a year or two he again "got on his feet," but by this time many others had engaged in the same business, and about 1844 he sold out to two young men (one of whom he had raised almost as a son), who in a few years failed and left him heavily in debt. With indomitable energy, in 1845, though an old man, he began as a pioneer in canning fruit at Flushing, N. Y. In 1850 he removed the business to Astoria, L. I., and was successful with this industry (which afterwards was removed to New York and carried on by a nephew of his wife, Mr. Reed Gordon, who amassed a fortune, a son of Mr. Gordon succeeding him). With the prospect of success before him, Mr. Prentiss was cut down in 1853 by apoplexy, while in his chair for an afternoon nap. He was a man of large heart, warm sympathies, loved by all as a truthful and honest man. They are both buried in Greenwood Cemetery. (Miss Angie Prentiss, of La Grange, Mo., and resident in 1882 in Angola, Lewis County, Mo., is their adopted daughter, and furnishes the above history.)

II. ———², d. on passage from England, 1631.

2. JOHN² PRENTICE, son of Valentine and Alice, was b. in England, and came over with his parents in 1631. He m. Hester —, and d. in 1691. He was "Admitted to the Roxbury church, 24 d., 7 mo., 1665" (per records of the First Church, Roxbury, Mass.), and here he carried most of his children to be baptized.§ He was a skil-

* The name in Cambridge, Mass., and Roxbury, Mass., was mostly spelt Prentice. After John, the "smith," went to New London, the name there was spelt Prentis, and was so continued by his descendants, and the writer so spells it.

† So spelled by Elliot. In the old records the name occurs Prentis, Prentice, and even Prentts; the latter, probably, coming from writing the t and i alike, and not dotting the i. The late Hon. James Savage thought that Valentine Prentice and family came over with Rev. John Elliot, from Nazing, Essex County, England.

‡ There was an Alice Prentice, d. 8 (1), 1643, in Concord, Mass. (New England Historic, Genealogical Register, Vol. X., 1850, p. 273.)

§ Of these baptisms the records of the Roxbury church say: "John, son to John Prentice, baptised 7 mo. 29, 1667; and Joseph, Jonathan, Peter, Steven, Ester, children of John Prentice, baptized 2. 19. 1668." Mr. Edward Prentis, of New London, writes: "He probably went to Roxbury to have his children baptized in those two years, as New London, though not destitute of a minister, had no regularly ordained clergyman, qualified to administer the ordinances, until 1670. (When John Prentis was a member of Mr. Bradstreet's church, which was commenced Oct. 5, 1670. In the ministry tax, 1664, in New London, John Prentis's property was assessed £176, and his name spelt Prentis.) The first of his children baptized in New London was Hannah, in 1672." This gentleman, a descendant of the sixth generation, has the original deed from John Prentice, "the smith," dated 1691, conveying a farm to his son Stephen.

ful blacksmith, and on that account was offered, Feb. 28, 1651-52, special privileges as an inducement to settle in New London, Ct. After declining Hadley's invitation, he accepted the invitation, removing to New London in 1652, soon after its settlement, and had granted him a house-lot at the southeast corner of the Parade, where Bank Street now opens, and a shop was built for him. He had a subsequent grant of land at Nahantic, now Waterford; and in 1660 he bought land of John Calkins and Hugh Roberts, who were about removing to Norwich. This land was located on "Robin Hood's Bay," now Jordan Cove. "Here he removed, after following his trade as blacksmith for six or seven years, but in a few years again changed his main pursuit, and entered upon a seafaring life after 1670. His sons also (according to the usual custom of New London) began the business of life upon the sea." He was the third commander of the ship "New London," seventy tons, built in New London, 1666, by Coit & Mould, and employed in the European trade; and in 1678 the same firm built for him a vessel of one hundred tons, which bore the family name of "John and Hester," in which he and his sons made several voyages. One half of this vessel was sold for £222 10s., "payment to be made in N. Y. flour at 15s. per cwt., and pork at 50s. per bbl."

That he was a man of intelligence is shown by his being chosen "Townes Attorney," Oct. 30, 1667, and deputy to the Connecticut General Assembly in 1668. He was assessed in 1667 for £175, one of the thirteen highest valuations in the town. In 1685 the town of New London granted him two hundred acres of land "for the charges and disbursements of many years, particularly in sustaining a course of law with the town of Lyme concerning the west bounds." His will in the Probate records shows his death to have been in 1691.* Simon Bradstreet's journal, of Jan. 6, 1679-80, has this record of his wife's death: "Goodwife Prentice, aged about 44 or 40, dyed. She was a pious woman, and of a very sweet nature, an excellent neighbor." Children:

The church records of June 19, 1685, show contract of marriage between John Prentis and Rebecca, dau. of Ralph Parker, Thomas Barnet, minister of the parish, being one of the witnesses. The issue of this marriage was Ralph, an unfortunate being, long maintained by funds left by his parents for that purpose.

3. JOHN³ PRENTIS, son of John and Hester; m., Nov. 23, 1675, Sarah Jones, dau. of Mrs. Ann Latimer, by her first husband, Matthew Jones, of Boston, Mass. Elizabeth Latimer, her half-sister, m. Jonathan, her husband's brother. John Prentis, like his father, was a seaman, as appears by the following:—

"John Prentice, Jr., upon his petition, had the grant of a permit to sayle from New London to the Island of Barbadoes, in the barke

* The same writer as below gives Peter's death as Aug. 14, 1670.

† "Complaint being made to this court by John Prentice against William Beebe for keeping company with his dau. Mercy, and endeavoring to gain her affections in order to a marriage, without acquainting her parents, which is contrary to law, the said William Beebe is ordered to pay a fine to the County Treasurer of £5."—Minutes of Cases in County Court, 1687.

‡ Ten of the children of John and Esther Prentis are recorded on New London records; the eleventh, Valentine, who went about 1700 to Woodbury, is supposed (by a writer of John and Esther's descendants' records) to have been his son by an early marriage, before coming to New London, but the other account of his birth, about 1680, is probably correct. This same writer says, "Elizabeth, relict of Thomas Bowen, of Rehoboth (whose second husband was Samuel Fuller, of Plymouth), calls John Prentis, of New London, blacksmith, 'our brother-in-law,' and gives him power of attorney, April 11, 1663."

§ Savage says, the will of Caleb Nichols, of Stratford, of Aug. 6, 1690, mentions his son-in-law, John Prentiss. If so, this wife may be a second or third one. The deed of John Prentiss, 1689, of "Nahantick Farm," to son Stephen says, "He to pay his 4 sisters £10 each, and Mercy's part (deceased) to dau. Hester."

Adventure with fleu men, provided he carry no prohibited goods." — Journal of the Council, Oct. 29, 1675.

"John Prentice, Jr., master of the ship New London, Action of debt against said ship for wages in navigating said ship to Europe and back." — Minutes of Cases in County Court, 1690.*

By the following extracts from the Connecticut colonial records, it appears that he had given up the seafaring life: —

"This Court doe appoynt John Prentice under inspection of Major Winthrop, to bee Captaine of the Forte at New London, and is to bee commissioned accordingly. And this Court doe grant him the sum of tenn poulds for his service till the last of October next." — May 12, 1692.

At the next General Court the records show his reappointment as captain of the fort: —

"This court doe order John Prents [Prentis] to be continued captain of New London forte till this Court shall order other wise, any former order notwithstanding." — Records of the General Court, October, 1695.

"Ordered, That Captain John Prentis, who is already in comission† for the forte at Newlondon, . . . be continued, and that one-third (or such other part as the Governor shall see meet) of the companies of said town be ordered to that service under the said Prentis, his comand." — Ibid, May, 1702.

The General Court in October, 1704, appointed him "Surveyor for the Countie of Newlondon, and to be conferred according to lawe"; and in the years 1703 and 1704 he was sent as Deputy to the General Court. In 1706 he was sheriff, as shown by this record of the General Assembly for that year: —

"Allowed to Captain John Prentts [Prentis], Sherif of Newlondon countie, 4 shillings per day for attendance upon this Court 8 days."

In 1708 he was appointed captain of "the North company, of Newlondon." Feb. 21, 1711-12, the records again speak of him as sheriff of New London County; and in 1710, it would seem that he kept a public house: —

"At a meeting of the Council in New London, Nov. 7, 1710, . . . Mr. Jonathan Prentts [Prentis], Justice, . . . Ordered, that Richard Christophers, Esq., pay unto Captain John Prentts, out of the bills of credit in his hand belonging to the Colony, the sum of 1 pound 18 shillings and 10 pence, for the entertainment of Major Burr and his company." — Colonial Records.

The records also have orders, July 28, 1711, to pay him "for subsisting the British officers, and conveying them by water in his boat to New Haven, 2 pounds"; and, in 1712, "for entertaining a post from Deerfield, 6s. 9½p." Feb. 23, 1713-14, "upon the application made to this Board in behalf of the volunteers to whom the General Assembly of this Colony granted a tract of land for a plantation," he was chosen one of a committee to encourage its settlement. was deputy to the General Assembly for the years 1712, 1728, 1729, and 1731; one of the selectmen of New London in 1713; and in 1714 is appointed "to be lieutenant of the 4th Company of New London." He probably afterwards became captain, as in 1728 the General Assembly appoint "Captain Stephen Prentis, of New London, and Mr. Thomas Lee, of Lyme, to be overseers of the Indians at Niantick." In 1736 he has this appointment:—

"Whereas this Assembly are now informed that the Nahantick Indians desire their children may be instructed, thereupon it is resolved, that the Colony Treasurer do pay out of the publick treasury unto Messrs. Thomas Lee, of Lyme, and Stephen Prentis, of New London, the sum of 15 pounds; who are appointed to receive the same, and therewith they shall hire some suitable person to instruct the said children to read, and also in the principles of the Christian religion." Children of Mary (Prentis) [10] Coit and second husband, Dr. Ebenezer Gray:

2. MARY, who m. Capt. Russell Hubbard, Jan. 30, 1755, and had eight children; their grandson, Russell Hubbard, endowed the Norwich Free Academy with $11,000. Rev. William Nevins, D. D., Nathaniel Pope, M. C., and his son, Gen. John A. Pope, are descendants. Their dau., Martha Hubbard, m. David Wright, Esq., of New London, whose dau. Martha m. Rev. Edward C. Starr's* mother's father, Steuben Lay, of Westbrook, son of Col. Asa Lay.

3. LUCY, d. ae. 58, at Stonington, Ct.
4. JONATHAN, m. Mary Mason.
5. SUSANNA, m. John Richards.
6. WILLIAM, d., ae. 29, at St. Christopher's.
7. ELIZABETH, m. Samuel Hern.
8. ESTHER, m. William Southmayd.

*Most of this account of Dr. Gray's family, the Rev. Edward C. Starr says, "is on the authority of an old MSS., Gray genealogical chart, by the late Rev. David Wright, of Essex (E. C. Starr's letter, Northfield, Ct., October, 1882). Mr. Starr has a piece of Mary (Prentis) Coit's wedding dress. Prof. Coit, of Middleton, is probably her grandson."

Dr. Ebenezer Gray was clerk of the court at the formation of Windham County, Ct., in 1726. The "Chandler Genealogy" says he was of Newport, R. I. He d. in 1773.* His wife d. ae. 80. Savage only gives part of his father's children, of whom he was one. His parents came from England, his father from Dorsetshire, his mother from Portsmouth. Mr. Frederick L. Gay, of Beacon Street, Boston, in 1883, is descended from Mary Prentis, dau. of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Latimer) Prentis, by her first marriage with Thomas Coit, of New London, Ct. The account of her parentage in the "Coit Family" is incorrect.

11. JOHN⁴ PRENTIS, son of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Latimer); m., in 1737, Sarah, dau. of Hon. Christopher Christophers.† ‡ She d. Feb. 12, 1773, ae. 53. He was one of New London's famous sea-captains; and in the expedition against Cape Breton, in 1744, commanded the colony war sloop "Defence," which sailed from New London with the transports as convoy, and carried Gen. Roger Wolcott, commander-in-chief of the expedition, and one hundred men. His commission as captain of her was dated March 19, 1744. His vessel took part in the capture of the rich prizes. Two years after, in April, 1746, he, with Mr. James Bowdoin, of Boston, went to England to urge the claims of the provincial seamen to a share of the prize-money, which was withheld by Admiral Warren. The Admiralty allowed the claim and placed the British and provincial vessels on the same footing. But Capt. Prentis, while awaiting the decision of the court, made an excursion into Cornwall to visit the Edgcombes, of Mount Edgcombe, being invited thither to partake of the Christmas festivities.§ While absent on this tour he took the small-pox, of which disease he died after his return to London, in January, 1746-47. Previous to his voyage to England, he had bought up the claims of his crew to their share of the prize-money. This money was allowed by the Admiralty, and transmitted to Boston, but from some delay, the causes of which are not now understood, it was not paid over to the heirs of Prentis for many years; not, indeed, until after the marriage of all his daughters.*

“Prentis’s papers came home from London after he died there,† to New London, Ct., and were packed away in a barrel in the attic, as worthless, and the family knew nothing of the decree until the children were grown up and married. One day, Mr. Richard Law, a son-in-law, in passing through the kitchen, noticed a paper on the floor, among others which the ladies of the family were using from the barrel to put under cake in baking! On examining the paper he picked up, he discovered it was the identical decree for the prize-money. They gave the paper to him, and he told them not to use any more of those papers. He started for Boston, and saw Mr. Bowdoin, who acknowledged the claim. Business matters were not then so generally settled by attorneyship and proxy as at present, and on the occasion of the payment of these arrears the family train, consisting of the younger John Prentis and his five sisters, with their respective husbands, all went to Boston together, on horseback, to receive their dues. The females had never before been so far away from home, and almost every incident was to them a novel adventure. Two days were occupied in going and the same in returning, the intermediate night being spent at a tavern in Plainfield. Each of the men was a character of peculiar stamp. Among them were a lawyer, a mechanic, a merchant, a farmer, and two sea-captains, one of them of Irish birth. Capt. William Coit was particularly original in his manner. He was blunt, jovial, eccentric; very large in frame; fierce and military in his bearing, and noted for always wearing a scarlet cloak. The populace of New London called him ‘the great red dragon.’ We can readily imagine that this journey would be full of strange scenes and occurrences. Could it be faithfully described, no fanciful embellishments would be necessary to render it a rare descriptive sketch.”‡

Mrs. D. R. Hatch, China, Me, 1876, writes E. C. Prentiss, "that Valentine, Abiel, Ozias, and Orpha (?) were sons of Joseph and Abigail, and Samuel (?). Abiel was named for his uncle, and lived with him until his death. His uncle's wife did not treat him well, and made him, when seventeen years old, sleep in the room with his uncle's corpse, which made him insane, and he always remained so. When grandfather was twelve years old, his father died, and his mother m. a Mr. Root. She took this boy Abiel home, and always took care of him." (Her account is confused.)

Receiving a common-school education, he took to the sea and spent twenty years in whale fishing and trading voyages, once going around the globe. Since that he has been a New London shipping master. In addition to representing the town one year, he has been several times a member of the common council, and is at present first alderman and chairman of the finance committee. In 1863 Capt. Prentis was in England, and it was his fortune to render his country a signal service. With Yankee shrewdness and courage he contrived to gain admission to the shipyard of the Lairds, at Birkenhead, where he made an inspection, with the eye of a seaman, of the two rebel rams, almost ready for sea. With the information thus acquired, he hurried to the United States consul at Liverpool, Mr. Dudley, and gave facts on which was based a remonstrance to the British government which resulted in orders to stop the rams. How much of life and property were saved by the boldness and address of Capt. Prentis can only be surmised by recalling the history of the 'Alabama' and the 'Shenandoah.' Capt. Prentis is a Republican; and if his clear judgment and patriotic instincts are followed, the party will not go far astray." — Hartford Evening Post, May 5, 1875.

"Rev. Charles Prentice, Congregational minister, was b. in Bethlehem Society, Woodbury, Ct., in 1778, and graduated at Yale College in 1802. Small and rather feeble, but symmetrical in form, he had a pleasant and honest countenance, suggestive of Nathaniel, whom our Saviour saw under the fig-tree. A man of uncommon gift in prayer, he had his 'conversation in the world' by the grace of God, in simplicity and godly sincerity. With a sound mind, a warm heart, and devoted piety, it seemed to be his meat and drink to do the will of his heavenly Father. In the pulpit and in the social meetings, he spoke with great ease and earnestness. As his manner everywhere among his people was very affectionate, he could 'reprove, rebuke, and exhort' with little risk of giving offence. The poet has well described his pastoral course in saying of 'the good minister':—

'Prompt at every call,
He weeps and watches, prays and feels for all;
And as a bird each fond endearment tries,
To tempt its unfledged offspring to the skies,
He tries each art, reproveth each dull delay,
Allures to brighter worlds, and leads the way.'

The last sickness of Mr. Prentice, long and painful, he bore with much Christian patience, and with assured hope and faith. His covenant God was with him in the furnace to purify and not consume: to brighten his graces, and complete his preparation for the faithful minister's home. After thirty-four years of arduous labor, the much-loved and highly useful minister of South Canaan passed to his rest, May 29,* 1838, ae. 60 years." Children of Rev. Charles Prentice:

She was 75 years old March 26, 1874, and resides, 1882, with her son, T. B. Prentice, in Marion, Ohio. Very early in life Mr. Prentice was the subject of serious impressions, and when sixteen professed Christ. He entered Hamilton College, N. Y., but soon after became a student in the "Foreign Mission School," at Cornwall, Ct., taught by Rev. Herman Daggett, with whom he studied theology, himself teaching in it eight years while pursuing his studies. He preached first at Goshen, Ct., and then at Hartwick, N. Y., where he was pastor of the Congregational church. Here he remained five years; removing to Onondaga, N. Y., where he was settled six years. From this place he removed to Illinois, preaching for some years in various places, and as a home missionary, in Joliet, Ill., Naperville, and Penfield, Ohio, for seventeen years; eight years being spent in Payson, Ill. In 1852 he returned to Onondaga as pastor and preaching to his former people, and uniting in marriage many whom he had baptized in infancy. In 1857 he removed to Penfield, Ohio, where he was settled eleven years, resigning his pastorate in 1868, and removing to Marion, Ohio, May 22, 1868, aged and in feeble health, to end his earthly life with his only surviving son, Mr. Theron B. Prentice. Here he resided three years to a day, his poor health allowing him to preach but seldom, when he peacefully "fell asleep" on the 22d of May, 1871, ae. 74, greatly esteemed and beloved by all. "In the pulpit he was clear, earnest, and persuasive; in his ministry, for over fifty years, successful; in private intercourse ever a Christian gentleman."* His widow survives

VIRGINIA PRENTIS BRANCH, ANCESTOR UNKNOWN.

1. WILLIAM¹ PRENTIS, son of — ; m. Mary Brooke, of Williamsburg, Va. Children :

I. JOSEPH², b. Jan. 24, 1754, in Williamsburg, Va. ; m., Dec. 16, 1778, Margaret, dau. of John and Grace Bowdoin, of Northampton County, Va. ; she was b. —, and d. August, 1801. Judge Joseph Prentis d. in Williamsburg, June 18, 1809. He graduated from William and Mary College in 1777. In 1786 he was speaker of the House of Delegates. In 1790 he was appointed by the General Assembly, with others, to revise the laws of Virginia. In 1791 he was elected a visitor of William and Mary College, and from the 4th of January, 1788, to his death in 1809, was one of the judges by the General Court of Virginia. Bishop Meade's book on the old churches, ministers, and families of Virginia may have some mention of him. A friend of Judge Joseph Prentis for forty-five years says he was an honorable man, an affectionate parent, and a charitable and benevolent man, religious without fanaticism, undeviating in his moral and political course, and truly attached to republican principles. Children :

- I. JOSEPH³, b. Jan. 24, 1783 ; d. April 30, 1851. [2]
- II. JOHN BROOKE³, b. February, 1789 ; d. 1855 ; m. Catherine Dabney, of Richmond, Va. No issue.

Printis, of Tiptree heath, by whom she had issue. She d. April, 1703, and I think it very probable that the Prentis above alluded to may have been the ancestor of William and the Joseph Prentis (who m. Margaret Bowdoin) Prentis, of Petersburg, Va., and B. A. William and Mary College, 1812, and was a visitor of that college, 1824."

In 1785 the edition of the laws of Virginia was printed by Thomas Nicholson and William Prentis.

William Prentis, of Petersburg, Va., was a subscriber to Marshall's "Life of Washington."

William Prentis is in the list of vestrymen, Petersburg, Va., 1720 to 1788, and William and John Prentis in the list of vestrymen of the Episcopal Church, Williamsburg, Va., 1774 to 1789.

John Prentis, of Williamsburg, graduated at William and Mary College, 1816-17.

Most of the above account of the Virginia line of Prentis is from Judge Peter Bowdoin Prentiss, and from P. M. Thompson's letters, 1875, to E. C. Prentiss.

* Father of Manning Prentice, who wrote to E. C. Prentiss, Oct. 31, 1875, from Stowmarket, Suffolk County, England, with the above record, that he could go no farther back than Thomas Prentice, of Bungay, a grocer, who was his grandfather's grandfather.

Hon. John Prentiss, of Keene, N. H., said that while travelling in Europe in 1850, he met, in Frankfort-on-the-Main, a fellow-lodger of his name from Suffolk County, England, near to London, who said that Prentice was a common name there, and from Suffolk County and Norfolk County adjoining, there were large emigrations to America. Mr. Manning Prentice of Suffolk County was his father, his mother was English, grandfather, Manning Prentice, was English, father's mother half Scotch, grandfather's father was John Prentice, of Bungay, Suffolk County, England. He referred to his father's uncle, Samuel Prentice, of London. (See note, p. 128 of first edition of this Genealogy.)

There was an A. Prentice, a lecturer, in England.

- IX. OCTAVIUS HENRY, b. 1840 ; d. 1875.

C. L. PRENTICE, of Leeds, ten miles from Wakefield, a branch of the Stowmarket family, said, in 1854, "The coat of arms in the Prentice book (first edition, 1852) was the same as used by the family in England." "Thomas Binney, of Hull & Wakefield, had traded for years with the Stowmarket Prentices, in grain, and they were highly respectable old families of that name"; and Thomas Binney's letters to C. J. F. Binney, 1840, and Rev. Thomas Binney, of London, in 1854, speak highly of that branch in Stowmarket.

The old parish register of Nazing, Essex County, England, has this, the only entry of the name :* "1635, Elizabeth Prentice, dau. of Robert Prentice and Elizabeth his wife, bapt. April 20." (Perhaps this Robert was the Robert of Roxbury, Mass., who d. there, 1665. Hon. The following notice of Robert Prentice, "gentleman," and Susan, wife of Samuel† Prentice, "gentleman," are on the walls of the church in Pulham, England (per Francis Bloomfield's "County of Norfolk, England," Vol. V., p. 290, London, 1806 edition):—

"Robert Prentice, Gent., died 1639. He gave £5 to each of the Pulhams and 20/ to Mr. Sayer, rector there, and £1 to Stanton's poor. He bare arms, party per Chevron or. and Sab. three greyhounds, Current, Counter, Charol." These are similar to the arms of the Norfolk County Prentices in England. (See arms.) Also, on the same walls: "Susan, wife of Sam'l Prentice, Gent., died July 16, 1710, æ. 83 (b. 1627)."

Mrs. Mary Prentice Carson of Westchester, Chester County, Pa., in 1882, and of 1715 North 22d Street, Philadelphia, Pa., in 1883, supposes this Robert Prentice, "gentleman," was of Ipswich, England. Mrs. Carson sent, Sept. 6, 1882, a silhouette profile of her grandfather John (above), who came over 1785, and a photograph of the old homestead, where he lived and died; also a photograph of her father, George G. Prentice, who also lived and died in it. Her brother in 1882 is living there. It has been in the family nearly one hundred years, and the fourth generation is now living in it. And also a photograph of her son, George P. Carson, a student, in 1882, in the Theological University of Middletown, Ct., of the fourth generation.

portrait of the judge), it says, "His family is an old and honorable one and of a pure English and Puritan stock, traceable as far back in England as A. D. 1313, through official records, which show the reputable positions occupied by the succeeding branches of the family till they came to New England, where the lineage at once took stand among the best in the colonies. In direct descent he was of the sixth generation from his first American, but English born, ancestor, Capt. Thomas Prentice, of Newton, Mass., who was born about 1620." *

REV. T. M. PRENTICE, Winsham, Somerset, England, is mentioned in the English Annual Year-Book, 1873, p. 260; also in same book, p. 279, Rev. C. Prentice, Walls, Shetland, Scotland.

STEPHEN PRENTIS, M. A., of Christ College, published an 8vo volume of poems in 1836. In it is the poem "Tintern Abbey," one verse is:

"Hark, ye neighbors and hear me tell,
Ten resounds from the belfry bell;
Ten commandments to man were given, —
To man on earth, from God in Heaven." †

In Thompson's "History and Antiquities of Boston, England," published 1856, page 582, it states, that "in 1641, William, vicar of the church of Leake, England, paid a fine of 20/ to the King, for license to concede certain tenements in Leake, which William de Prentice de Leek, chaplain, held for life, to discharge the said William after his decease and to remain to the said chaplain." ‡

There was a William Prentice, a tailor in Broad Street, Boston, in 1850, who said he came from England and that the name Prentice was a common one in Bury St. Edmund's. (See p. 237 of first edition.)

* This was probably taken from the first edition of this book.

SCOTCH* BRANCH.

ARCHIBALD PRENTICE¹, farmer, of Lanarkshire, Scotland, of the farm of Covington Mains, upper ward of Lanarkshire. He was a descendant of the old Cameronians of Scotland; an old sword used by one of the name at "Bothwell Brig" has descended as an heirloom. Alexander Reid, grandfather of Archibald Prentice (on the maternal side), was one of the covenanters, and b. 1646, and d. 1706, and was imprisoned for his religion. This branch always spelt the name Prentice. As near as the writer can ascertain, he had:

- I. ARCHIBALD², b. in Covington, 1792, and settled in Manchester, England, in 1814; and m., 1819, Jane Reid. He d. 1857, æt. 65, at his residence, Park View, Plymouth Grove, Manchester, England. He was first a commercial traveller, of retentive memory, relating interviews† with many celebrities. He was in favor of human liberty and progress, and social and political reforms. He entered into business with Mr. Edward Baxter. He was editor and proprietor of the Manchester Gazette. He established the Manchester Times in 1828, and continued it till he sold it in 1847. He then visited the United States. "Archibald Prentice, from Manchester, England, arrived in Louisville, Ky., in 1847, in time to attend the funeral of his brother's oldest son, killed by an assassin.‡ Mr. Archibald Prentice published, in 1851, a second edition of historical sketches and personal recollections of Manchester, England (a copy of which is in the United States library in Washington, D. C.), "dedicated to his cousins, Elizabeth, Agnes, and Beatrice Prentice, of Castle Park, Lanark, Scotland, great-granddaughters of Archibald Prentice and Alexander Reid, who fought at 'Bothwell Brig,' 1649, and grand-nieces of James Thompson, the author of the 'Seasons,' etc., and sisters of David Prentice, founder and editor (until his death in 1837) of the Glasgow Chronicle." Mr. Archibald Prentice, after a residence of two years in Glasgow, where, in the latter part of 1811, his master sent him for three years, as

* This Scotch branch is not very clear.

"traveller," for orders for the muslins he manufactured. Soon after, Mr. Prentice took a warehouse in Manchester, with all the Glasgow stock. Mr. Prentice opposed the Corn Bill, and took a prominent part against slavery. For his activity and zeal as a member of the Executive Committee v. the Corn Law, Mr. Prentice was presented with a silver tea and coffee service of 240 oz., costing £120. He supported the temperance movement, and was treasurer, at his death, of the Manchester and Salford Temperance League. As a testimonial of his public worth and public conduct, at a public meeting he was presented an annuity, contingent on the two lives of himself and wife. His widow survived him, and was alive in 1874. "His only child, a daughter, died some years since." (Manchester Times, Dec. 26, 1857.) Mr. Prentice published "Letters from Scotland," in 1815, and the "Life of Alexander Reid," written by himself, edited by his grandson, Archibald Prentice, in 1849, and "A Tour in the United States, with two Letters on Emigration," with a portrait, in 1849.

- II. DAVID², the oldest brother of Archibald Prentice, of Manchester, England, and b. in Lanarkshire County, Scotland; emigrated to America in 1805, and established an iron foundry in Louisville, Ky., which was called the "Eagle Works" and was successful. He was a great genius; he m. in 1806 and had a family. A David Prentice in 1817 was in company with Thomas Bakewell. (See Collins's "History of Kentucky.") "The first foundry in Louisville, Ky., in 1812, was succeeded by David Prentice and Thomas Bakewell."
- III. JOHN² PRENTICE, son of Farmer Archibald, of Lanarkshire, Scotland (brother of David), with a large family and no prospect of success for his sons, sold his father's farm in Lanarkshire and emigrated to Louisville, Ky.; with all his family and his wife Marion (Stoddart), from Louisville, and Mrs. Watson, a daughter with a family, went to Union Farms, Red River County, or Guest Prairie, Cranksville, Texas, with her two sisters, married, and where she and a brother resided in 1874. John, a son of John, remained in Louisville, Ky. Mrs. Watson, it is said, can give an account of David Prentice and descendants, and those of two sisters who went to America, married, and had families. The writer in vain wrote to Texas for more information.

THOMAS PRENTICE, son of Archibald Prentice, Sr., and "nephew of Archibald of the Mains," had a small estate in Lanark, Scotland; m.

—; had only:

- I. DAVID, b. —; d. 1837. "The founder, in 1811, of the Glasgow Chronicle, and its editor, till his death, the first liberal paper of that part of Scotland."
- II. ELIZABETH, b. —; d. 1873, ae. 93.
- III. AGNES.*
- IV. BEATRICE.

In 1851 these three sisters resided at Castle Park, Lanark, Scotland; one of them m. Ralph Ledward, Esq., M. D., of York Street, Chatham Hill, Manchester, England.†

- I. DAVID.
- II. THOMAS.
- III. JAMES, b. July, 1808, in Blackburn (registered in the parish church of Lavington, four miles from Blackburn, Scotland); was brought up by his grandfather, James Prentice, as his father died at an early age. Children:

- I. JOHN.
- II. JAMES.
- III. DAVID, b. —; m. —, and had two sons:
 - I. JOHN.
 - II. WILLIAM.
- IV. PETER.
- V. WILLIAM.
- VI. ARCHIBALD.

* "Agnes, dau. of John Prentice, merchant of Glasgow, Scotland; m. John Swinson, fourth son of Professor Swinson, whose half-sister Agnes Swinson m., about 1750, — Moore, of Carswell." (Burke's Commoners of Great Britain.)

† Mrs. Jane, widow of Archibald Prentice, letter from 254 St George Street, Glasgow, Oct. 19, 1874, to E. C. Prentiss, gives part of the above account of Archibald Prentice and family, and adds: "My husband's manuscripts would carry back his genealogy much further, but would take time to collect the information." This is Jane (Reid) Prentice.

Alexander Ireland, of Inglewood, Bowdon, Cheshire, England, the managing partner of the Manchester Examiner and Times, in a letter, July 31, 1874, to E. C. Prentiss, also gives some of the above account of Archibald Prentice.

The names of the daughters unknown, except, perhaps, there were Diantha Jane, third child, Helen Maria, fourth, Laura Elizabeth, sixth, and three daughters unknown.

JAMES PRENTICE, b. 1808 ; went to New York in 1829 ; m. Diantha, dau. of James Josseyln, of East Douglas, Mass., and had six children :

- I. WILLIAM, b. Feb. 23, 1833 ; d. October, 1852.
- II. GEORGE, the professor,* b. Dec. 5, 1834 ; m. Ellen Frances Derby, of West Boylston, Mass., November, 1856 ; she d. Aug. 23, 1876. He m., 2d, Elizabeth Miller Brooks, of Middletown, Ct., June 26, 1878 ; no issue by her. Children by first wife :

 - IV. WILLIAM CLAFLIN, b. July 14, 1868 ; resides in Middletown, Ct.
- III. DIANTHA JANE PRENTICE, b. Dec. 8, 1839 ; third child of James Prentice ; m. Edward Everett Fuller, of Ludlow, Mass., and resided in Ludlow, 1843, and had :
 1. EMMA JANE.
 2. GEORGE EVERETT.
 3. LAURA GERTRUDE, b. May, 1877.
 4. HENRIETTA EVANGELINE, b. November, 1882.
- IV. HELEN MARIA PRENTICE, b. Dec. 30, 1841.
- V. LAURA ELIZABETH PRENTICE, b. Sept. 9, 1846 or 1847 ; was a teacher in the State Normal School, Westfield, Mass. She travelled in Europe.
- VI. JAMES PRENTICE, JR., b. in East Webster, Mass., June 12, 1848 ; d. in East Sutton, Mass., May 3, 1875.

* James Prentice's letter East Sutton, Mass., 1874, says his son George is a professor of modern languages in the Wesleyan University, of Middletown, Ct., and in 1868 visited his relatives in Great Britain ; and also that after the battle of Culloden many persons fled to America and perhaps some Prentices among them. George Prentice, son of James, writes E. C. Prentiss from Middletown, Ct., Jan. 26, 1874, that his branch of the family came from Bathgate, Scotland, to the United States. George Prentice writes. Middletown, Ct., Aug. 4, 1883, that he saw John and William Prentice (cousins of his father James, b. 1808) in Blackburn, Scotland, in the fall of 1868, and saw at John Prentice's pictures of his father's playmate, Archie Prentice, and of his wife, then a widow, she having issue by her husband.

DAVID PRENTICE (above), brother of James, had two sons :

I. JOHN.

II. WILLIAM.

They lived, in 1874, in Blackburn, Scotland. Archibald and Thomas Prentice, brothers of James, are both dead. The eldest son of Thomas kept school in Wilson Town, about ten miles from Lanark, Scotland.

Miss Helen Prentice, a granddaughter of Archibald Prentice (the entertainer of the poet Burns), was the author of the verses, "To a Sprig of Heather," in "Songs and Ballads of Clydesdale," published by A. Munro.

The Glasgow Daily Mail, a few days previous to Dec. 11, 1882, speaks of the Prentice family of Clydesdale, as "one of remarkable talent." Mr. Prentice, of Hawthorne Hall, Winslow, Chester County, England, Dec. 5, 1882, writing about the Prentices of Scotland and England, says, "John Prentice, the entertainer of Burns at Covington Mains, a descendant of Archibald Prentice, was with Gen. Lockart, governor of Dunkirk, when Charles II. in 1662 sold it to Louis XIV. of France. On John Prentice's return to Scotland he settled as a farmer in Middle Clydesdale, and was the first one who planted the potato, in the open field, in that county. Archibald Prentice, of Covington, I believe, was his grandson; Archibald had four sons. David, the eldest, millwright and engineer in early life, emigrated to the United States, and was the first one to place a steamboat on the Mississippi River. The United States government offered a reward for the best mechanical contrivance to remove snags or sawyers. He nearly completed a twin steamboat, connected by a strong beam to push them over down stream, when he died. His ideas and plans were taken up by another, who received the reward. John Prentice succeeded his father on the farm, and was enterprising and improving. He also emigrated to the United States and settled at Louisville, Ky., engaged in works to improve the navigation of the river; losing health, he removed with his family to Texas. He married Marion Stoddart, sister of Allan Stoddart, a celebrated piano-forte manufacturer in Broad Street, New York."

"Archibald Prentice, of Manchester, England, was many years the proprietor and editor of the Manchester Times, one of the originators of the Anti-Corn Law League, and in the van of every movement for promoting the welfare of his fellow-men, and wrote 'Recollections of Manchester,' in two volumes, 'History of the League,' 'Letters from America,' and many pamphlets."

"Thomas Prentice also emigrated to the United States, and died of fever soon after his arrival."

"David Prentice, nephew of Archibald of the Mains, was editor of the Glasgow Chronicle, who was able by his evidence to obtain the acquittal of Tait." The writer of the above letter to L. H. Prentice says he has written to the Prentices of Stowmarket, for information of their branches, and when received, will forward it to Mr. Leon H. Prentice, of Chicago, Ill. This information, however, did not come for insertion in the second edition of this work.

An interesting visit of the poet Robert Burns (previously spoken of) to Archibald Prentice's house, copied from the Scottish-American Journal, of New York, Nov. 2, 1882, is as follows: "Robert Burns, in his itinerary to Edinburgh (per Mr. Thomas Somerville, LL. D., a nephew of Archibald Prentice, and long a resident in England), spent a night at the farmhouse of Mr. Prentice, Covington Mains, near Carnwath. Archibald Prentice informed his brother farmers that Burns was expected at the Mains, and a white sheet hoisted on a corn stack was to be a notice of his arrival and for all to assemble. Rev. Bryce Little, minister of the parish, Lang, the schoolmaster, and his brother, the minister of Leadhills, were present. Burns's wonderful conversational powers, drawn out by intelligent gentlemen and congenial friends, carried all by storm. Songs and recitations, now grave, now gay, melted and cheered them by turns. In their excitement Burns said he would give the best yet after Mrs. Prentice had left the room. She told him to go on, she would not leave the room that night. Burns then said, "Here is for the 'Jolly Beggars'" (which was not published till after his death).^{*} Next morning, accompanied by Prentice and the two Lang brothers, Burns breakfasted at Mr. John Stoddart's bank. On the way, Mr. Lang, of Leadhills, asked Burns for a repetition of the "Jolly Beggars." He replied, "Na, na, Mr. Lang, the inspiration is gone."

^{*} "The night drove on, wi' sangs and clatter,
And aye the ale was growing better."

Tam O'Shanter.

IRISH, OR SCOTCH-IRISH BRANCH.

JAMES¹ PRENTICE, of Beaver County, Pa.,* son of James. from near Belfast, Ireland, whose father and grandfather were also named James, and probably Scotch-Irish. He was b. about 1771, and came when about seventeen years old from Ireland, in 1788, with his brother Alexander Prentice and wife Rosa, who settled at Baltimore, Md., in 1788. He and his wife long since dead, leaving two daus. (alive in 1882, names and locations unknown). James Prentice went farther west, and settled in Beaver County, Pa., where he m. Miss Mary Wallace. They lived together to a good old age; she d. at ninety-six and he d. at about one hundred and nine years of age. He learned the shoemaking business in Ireland; but in Beaver County, Pa., he cleared a large tract of land, which he purchased, and also mined coal, all of which was profitable. He left a large and valuable estate to his heirs. It is said he offered Rev. Dr. Rogers, his pastor, $50 (a large sum then) to draw up his will, which amount the doctor refused. Children:

 - III. JAMES³.
 - IV. ALEXANDER³.

* James Prentiss's letters, 1882 (he spells Prentiss) to William James Prentice, of Alleghany City, Pa. Most of this account is from him and collected by the latter.

James Prentice, a cousin of William James Prentice's uncle, James Prentice, lives in Sewickly, Alleghany County, Pa. Another cousin of William James Prentice's uncle, James, lives in Rochester, Pa., and a son named Madison Prentice; he is married and has a family. Some of James Prentice's (above) children are married.

James Prentiss writes, May 5, 1882, to William James Prentice, of Pittsburg, Pa., that "James was a favorite name among the old Prentice families in his line. His name is James, your name is William James, my uncle was James, my grandfather was James, and my great-grandfather was James. My uncle William lives in Jackson County, Ohio, and has one son, Hugh, and four daughters, all married and alive."

James Prentice spells his name Prentiss, in a letter to William James Prentice of May 5, 1882. His ancestor, James Prentice and William James Prentice, spell Prentice, as did the previous ones of the family.

- V. DAVIDSON³.
- VI. SAMUEL³.

James, the father, is dead; William m. Mary, Alexander m. Sarah, their cousins, daughters of Alexander Prentice. All the daughters are m. Alexander, Samuel, Davidson, and probably John are dead. William is alive, 1882, his location and record unknown. James lives in Sewickly, Alleghany County, Pa., and could give particulars of his father's and his own family.

ALEXANDER PRENTICE²,* son of James and —, b. in Ireland, near Belfast, Aug. 27, 1786; came to America in March, 1788, with his father and mother, and his uncle Alexander, and the latter's wife, Rosa. Alexander Prentice m. Mary Beck Justice, March 31, 1817, in Western Pennsylvania; she was b. in Moon Township, Alleghany County, Pa., Dec. 24, 1793. He d. July 9, 1851. His wife d. May 13, 1868. He was a farmer and left over one hundred acres of good land to his widow and children; it was well improved, plenty of good timber, and a large orchard of fruit trees that he planted. He was noted for uprightness and integrity. Had four daughters and two sons. Children :

- I. JOHN³, b. March 18, 1818, in Beaver County, Pa.; m. Nancy McBride.
- II. JAMES³, b. April 21, 1824; b. in Beaver County, Pa.; lives at a "water cure," P. O. Beaver County, Pa., and m., 1st, — McConnell†; 2d, McKindley.

* Alexander Prentice² and wife Mary (B.) Justice were grandfather and grandmother of William James⁴ Prentice, of Alleghany City and Pittsburg in 1882. William J. Prentice resides at 88 Madison Avenue, Alleghany City, place of business, 46, 48, and 50 Ninth Street, Pittsburg, Pa., in 1882, firm of Prentice & Hackett, Great Western Builders' Supply Depot.

The father and mother of Mary Beck Justice were Isaac and Margaret Justice, from Ireland, and were among the first settlers of that part of Pennsylvania in Alleghany County.

† William James Prentice refers to James McConnell for further information of Mary and Margaret (P.) Williamson's family.

III. MARGARET³, b. —; m. Henry Williamson; they had three sons and one dau.:

1. ANNIE LOUISA,* b. 1860; m. Daniel W. Johnson; lives in Jethro, Ohio.

IV. MARY³, b. —; m. her cousin, William Prentice, of Cockantown, Pa.; and had one son and three daughters. Children all living in 1882:

1. JOHN WESTLEY.

Three daughters, names unknown.

V. ELIZA JANE³, b. —; m. George Wallace, and probably lived near Rochester, Beaver County, Pa.; he is dead. Her address is Mrs. Eliza Jane Wallace, care Scineth Jane Denny, of same county and State, or, care of Mrs. Sarah Prentice there.

VI. SARAH³, m. her cousin, Alexander Prentice; he d. in Andersonville prison during the war of the Rebellion. She had four daughters, all married: one, to James Denny, of Rochester, Beaver County, Pa.; one dau. m. a brother of James Denny, of same place, both Dennys are carriage and wagon makers, in Rochester, Pa.; another, m. —, and resides in Lestoria, Columbiana County, Ohio, and has one dau., single, in Alleghany City, Pa. One of Sarah Prentice's daughters is Mrs. Scineth Jane Denny, of Rochester, Pa.

JOHN PRENTICE³, eldest son of Alexander², b. in Beaver County, Pa., March 18, 1818; worked on his father's farm till his marriage, May 26, 1842, to Nancy McBride, who was born in Beaver County, Pa., March 31, 1816, when he built his house on part of his father's land, which was given him by his father and confirmed in his will; after improving his property he built steamboat† hulls, and was in the employ of Nathan and Ezra Porter at Shoreston, a small place, five miles from his residence on the Ohio River, for sixteen years.

* James Prentice's letter says, "Annie Louisa is about twenty-two in 1882."

† Collins's "History of Kentucky" says a Mr. Prentice built the first steamboat at Henderson, Ky. Perhaps it was the above John Prentice.

James Prentice's letter, May 5, 1882, to William James Prentice, of Alleghany City, Pa.

He then built a shop at his home, and for two years made and repaired wagons and ironed them. In 1860 he moved to Alleghany City, fitting up machinery on steamboats and running stationary engines until June, 1879, when, after six days' illness, he d. June 30, 1879. In his youth he was a member of the Seceder Church (now W. P. Church), and continued as such, living a temperate and exemplary life, till his decease in Alleghany City, at his house, June 30, 1879. Children:

- I. WILLIAM JAMES⁴, b. Feb. 26, 1843, in Moon Township, Alleghany County, Pa., and came to Alleghany City with his parents; October, 1861, he enlisted in the Union army under Capt. Alexander Reed, of the "Covode" Zouaves, afterwards transferred to Company K, Seventy-seventh Pennsylvania Volunteers, served over three years and honorably discharged, after being in several of the hottest contested battles of Shiloh and Stone River, Tenn. At the latter, in charging a line of rebel cavalry, a canister shot passed through his left thigh; he was imprisoned at Chattanooga, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga., finally in the Libby prison, Richmond, Va.; then paroled and sent to Annapolis hospital; on his recovery from the wound and starvation he served the rest of his term of service in the One Hundred and Eighteenth Battalion, Volunteer Regiment Cavalry, and then returned to his Alleghany home after over three years' absence. In 1865 and 1866 he attended to carpenter work and putting up machinery and attending school. In 1867-69 he was second, then first clerk on steamboats on the Ohio, Tennessee, Kanawha, Cumberland, and Mississippi Rivers; from 1869 to 1877 was travelling salesman for Pittsburg business houses, and March, 1877, entered into business at 48 Ninth Street, Pittsburg, supplying all kind of building materials, now called the "Great Western Builders' Supply Depot," in company with G. W. Hackett, as the firm of Prentice & Hackett, and continues as such in 1882. He m., July 16, 1872, in Alleghany City, Pa., Eveline, dau. of Robert Brown, a retired carpenter and contractor, of Alleghany City, Pa. Their only child, a dau., d. in infancy.*

* William James⁴ Prentice, son of John³, resides in Alleghany City, Pa.; his place of business, firm of Prentice & Hackett, No. 46, 48, and 50 Ninth Street, Pittsburg, Pa., on the other side of the river, the "Great Western Builders' Supply Depot," of all kinds.

The writer is indebted to his letters and exertion, in obtaining information of these families from the ancestor James and descendants, and for the above account of the families as far as could be ascertained.

- II. MARY ELLEN,⁴ dau. of John Prentice,³ b. Jan. 15, 1845, in Moon Township, Alleghany County, Pa.; m., Sept. 3, 1868, Isaac Tessey. He is a farmer; owns a rich and fertile farm with fruit trees and improvements. PRENTISS BRANCH, ALTERED BY NEW HAMPSHIRE LEGISLATURE FROM HOGG.*

JAMES¹ PRENTISS, b. — (altered the name from Hogg); m.

— Children:

- I. ROBERT², b. —; large family, unknown.
- II. SAMUEL M.², b. —; large family; of Cleveland, Ohio, in 1876.
- III. CYRUS³, b. in Francestown, N. H., Feb. 10, 1797; a minister; resided in Ravenna, Ohio; m., September, 1827, Clarissa, dau. of Judge William Wetmore (and sister of Henry Wetmore, who has a son named George Prentiss Wetmore, who lived, 1860, at Cuyahoga Falls, Cuyahoga County, Ohio). Clarissa Wetmore was b. in Middletown, Ct., March 18, 1804. Mr. Cyrus Prentiss removed with his father's family to Cuyahoga County, Ohio, in 1804, where, on arriving at man's estate, he took a prominent position among his fellow-citizens, in maturing the resources of the new country. He d. at Ravenna, Ohio, after a short illness, on Friday, July 29, 1829, much lamented by a wide circle of friends. The Ravenna Democrat says: "The announcement of his illness and sudden death startled our entire community and produced a deep and prevailing sensation of sorrow and sadness wherever Mr. Prentiss was known. The banks, stores, and public offices were closed during the funeral services. The attendance was very large, and a long procession followed the remains to the house appointed for all living in the pleasant 'God's acre' on the hill overlooking the lovely village which Mr. Prentiss had done so much to improve. The solemn funeral services were read by Rev. Mr. Baker. Dust was committed to dust, to share the holy rest that awaits a life well spent." Children:
 - I. HARRIET W.³, b. April 20, 1829; m. Samuel J. Hopkins, produce dealer, Ravenna, Ohio, where they live; had two sons and one daughter.
 - II. ELIZA C.³, b. Sept. 20, 1838; m. Harlem P. Bradford, a farmer, resides near Ravenna, Ohio, and had four children.

* Of six or seven brothers Hogg, four altered their name to Prentiss; the others refused to. One took the name of Huntley, one the name of Hall; one said he was born and lived a Hogg and he was determined to die a Hogg. Supposed to have taken the name Prentiss from a relative of that name in Ireland.

- IV. JAMES², JR., b. in Walpole, N. H., Dec. 10, 1798; m. Betsy Brooks, of New York State, March 7, 1816. He d. April 19, 1829; she d. April 16, 1845. APPENDIX A.

HON. SAMUEL⁵ PRENTISS, judge, son of Dr. Samuel and Lucretia (Holmes), b. March 31, 1782, in the old house in Stonington, Ct.* Brought to Northfield, Mass., by his father in 1786, he spent the early years of his life there, and pursued a course of classical studies under the care of the Rev. Samuel C. Allen. There, at the age of 19, he began to read law with Solomon Vose, Esq., but afterwards went into the office of John W. Blake, Esq., at Brattleboro', Vt., where he continued his legal studies, and in 1802 was admitted to the bar. Went to Montpelier, Vt., in May, 1803, and commenced the practice of the law, and there he made his home for the rest of his life. He m. Lucretia, eldest daughter of Edward Houghton, Esq., at Northfield, Mass., Oct. 3, 1804. In 1822 he was appointed one of the judges of the Supreme Court of Vermont, but declined to accept the office. Was elected a representative of Montpelier in the State Legislature for the years 1824 and 1825. While a member of the Legislature, he originated and sustained the very important act for the reorganization of the judiciary system of the State. In 1825 he was appointed first associate judge of the Supreme Court, and continued in this office till 1829, when he was appointed chief justice of the State. In 1830, while chief justice, he was elected to the Senate of the United States for six years, and in 1836 was again elected for a like term of six years. In 1832 he received the degree of LL. D. from Dartmouth College. On the eighth day of April, 1842, he was nominated judge of the United States Court for the district of Vermont. The Senate, without the usual reference, forthwith, and by a unanimous vote, confirmed the nomination. This office he held till his death, on June 15, 1857.

Judge Thompson, in his "History of Montpelier," in speaking of Judge Prentiss's early legal studies, says, "But few, perhaps, are aware how close and extensive had been his study of all the great masters of English literature, how careful the cultivation of his taste, and how much his proficiency in the formation of that style, which subsequently so peculiarly stamped all his mental efforts, whether of writing or speaking, with unvarying strength and neatness of expression. We recollect once having met with a series of literary miscellany, written by him, probably when he was a law student, published first in a newspaper in numbers, and afterwards republished in pamphlet form, which were all alike marked by neatness of style and beauty of sentiment, and which, though only intended, doubtless, for mere off-hand sketches, would have favorably compared with our best magazine literature."

"In person Judge Prentiss was nearly six feet high, well formed, with an unusually expansive forehead, shapely features, and a clear and pleasant countenance, all made the more imposing and agreeable by the affable and courtly bearing of the old-school gentleman. In his domestic system he was a strict economist, but ever gave liberally for religious and benevolent objects."

At a meeting of the Vermont Historical Society, held in October, 1880, Hon. E. J. Phelps was invited to deliver an "address on the life and public services of the Hon. Samuel Prentiss." Mr. Phelps had known Judge Prentiss for many years. His father, Judge Phelps, and Judge Prentiss had been intimate friends. Both had been judges of the Supreme Court, and together they had represented Vermont in the Senate of the United States. We copy portions of Mr. Phelps's address as delivered before the Vermont Historical Society, Oct. 26, 1882, and printed by order of the Legislature of the State at their session for 1882:—

"The events of Judge Prentiss's life can be rapidly told. They are few and simple. He was born in Connecticut, in 1782, of a good old stock, who traced back their lineage to an excellent family in England. His great-grandfather fought for the king in the old French war, and his grandfather fought against the king, a colonel in the Revolutionary war. He came to Vermont, which was the El Dorado of the best young blood of Connecticut in those times, and was admitted to the bar in 1802, before he was 21 years of age. He practised law in Montpelier until 1825, when he was made a judge of the Supreme Court. In 1829 he became chief justice. In 1830 he was elected to the United States Senate, and again in 1836. In 1841 he was appointed judge of the United States District Court for Vermont, and held that office until he died in 1857, at the age of 75, leaving twelve children and a very moderate estate. That is the whole story. Thirty-two years' continuous public service; yet the events of his life are substantially comprised in these few words. But the best lives are not made up of events; they are made up of qualities and of attainments. And simple as are the incidents that are now to be gathered of that life, it was beyond question one of the best and purest of the many good lives Vermont has been blessed with.

“I may briefly consider (for I can touch but briefly upon anything to-night) his life in these four successive epochs, as a lawyer at the Vermont bar, as a judge and chief justice of the Supreme Court of his State, as a senator of the United States, and as a judge of the federal court of this district.

“He practised law, I have said, for twenty-three years. The phrase is one very commonly employed, and has very different meanings. The small pettifogger practises law, to the infinite mischief of the community he lives in. And there is another class, to whom that term of reproach cannot properly be applied, but who content themselves with finding in the practice of the law a sort of genteel trade, out of which some sort of a livelihood is to be extracted without much labor; who never begin to have a conception of the nobility or the scope of a profession, that has been well declared to be ‘as honorable as justice, and as ancient as the forms of law’; who never study it as a science, or in any large way, but content themselves with such little miscellaneous acquirements as may answer the purposes of the small controversies of their locality. And therefore it is, that good men outside of the profession are sometimes puzzled to understand how it should be exposed to the sharp and bitter criticism often applied to it, and at the same time should be the subject of the lofty eulogy heard in the best quarters in regard to it. It is because there are lawyers and lawyers; lawyers small and great, useful and mischievous. There are those who belong to the trade, and there are those who belong to the profession.

“Judge Prentiss’s life as a lawyer was of course before my time. My personal acquaintance with him began when he was in the Senate of the United States. What I know of his previous career I have gathered from those who did know him, who are older than I, from the records he has left behind him, and from what I infer, from my subsequent acquaintance, must have been his character and qualities, when he was a younger man.

“In the first place, although a country lawyer in the then little village of Montpelier, and in the small, rural, isolated State of Vermont, he proceeded to acquaint himself, by the most careful and judicious and far-reaching study, with the whole range of the common law and all its kindred topics. He did not terminate his labors with those subjects that were likely to turn up for discussion in the Washington County Court. He acquainted himself, I repeat, with the whole range and fabric of the common law, from its earliest foundations and from the dawns of its first fundamental principles. He learned the law as the perfection of reason and the science of justice. And then he brought to bear upon the practice of it the elevation of character and purity of motive that were born to him, and which he displayed in every relation of life. He felt and acted upon the conviction that the lawyer as well as the judge is one of the ministers of justice; that he as well as the judge is a sworn officer of the court; that the administration of justice is his business, and not its perversion; and that he is charged with his share of its duty, its responsibility, and its repute. No mean cause, no disreputable client, no fraud to be vindicated, no wrong to be achieved, no right to be defeated, no assassin to be turned loose upon the community, ever engaged the services of Judge Prentiss. Though the legal reports of the State were far more meagre at that period than they are now, they are sufficient to indicate to those who care to resort to them the manner of business he was engaged in. And the consequence was, that although at that day Vermont was full of able lawyers, and although the limited facilities for transportation were such as to confine the bar of the State principally to the business of their own counties, Judge Prentiss, more than any other man in Vermont, was called upon to go to various parts of the State; I might almost say to all parts of the State in which any considerable courts were then held, and always in important cases. Such a lawyer as he was contributes to the law and the justice of his country more than most people are aware of. He is helping all the time, not only the particular business in hand, — the interests with which he is charged, — but he is helping the court; he is helping to educate and maintain the court. Wise and able judges feel that sensibly. The argument that may fail of its application to-day is seed sown upon good ground. The effect of it comes afterward, and bears fruit in the general law of the land.

“Such was the course of Judge Prentiss at the bar. And it is not surprising that in the year 1822 a seat upon the bench of the Supreme Court was offered to him and pressed upon his acceptance. Probably at that time there were few men in the State of Vermont better qualified to fill it. He alone of all the bar, with a characteristic modesty that was throughout his life beyond any exhibition of that quality I ever knew, declined it. He distrusted the ability that nobody else distrusted. But three years afterwards, when the office was again pressed upon him, with no little reluctance he took his seat upon the bench. It is very noticeable in the reports how considerable a time elapsed before he could bring himself to be the organ of the court in pronouncing its opinions. He cast that duty upon his senior brethren. His associates upon the bench were Chief Justice Skinner, Titus Hutchinson, and Bates Turner, and afterwards Charles K. Williams and Stephen Royce, names among the most honorable in our judicial history. But in due time he began to write and deliver opinions, and some of them remain, fortunately for his reputation. Only a part of them, because, as I have said, the reports were more meagre then than now. They speak for themselves. It is true, they deal largely with questions that have been now so long settled that we have little occasion to go back to read upon the subjects. But the lawyer who is desirous of seeing what manner of man he was, and what sort of a court he belonged to, and who will take the trouble to peruse these opinions, will discover that they are distinguished, in the first place, by the most complete knowledge of the science of the law. And he will find, in the next place, that their conclusions are arrived at by logical deductions from fundamental principles, in a manner that to every capacity becomes perfectly luminous and decisive. And finally, that in every instance, the case the court is concerned with had been the subject of the most careful, thoughtful consideration, until nothing that bore upon the conclusion was overlooked, forgotten, or misunderstood.

“Some people are coming to think in these days that a judge can be manufactured out of almost any sort of material. And it is true enough that almost any man can sit upon the bench, can hear causes, and after some fashion can decide them; and the world will go along; there will be no earthquake; there will be no interruption of human affairs; he will fill the office. But by and by it will come to be discovered that the law of the land, which apparently has lost nothing of its learning, has wonderfully lost its justice; that conclusions that by learned reasons and abstruse processes have been reached are not consonant with justice, and establish rules that cannot be lived under. As the common people say, they may be law, but they are not right. There is philosophical and sufficient reason for this result. It is inevitable. Justice under the common law cannot be administered in the long run by an incapable man. And he is an incapable man for that purpose who is not a master of the principles of the law, by a knowledge systematic, comprehensive, and complete. Because those principles are the principles of justice. They are designed for justice. The law has no other reason, no other purpose. The judge who draws his conclusions from this source will keep within the limits of justice. The judge who is groping in the dark, and depending upon lanterns to find his way, who is swayed and swerved by the winds, the fancies, and the follies of the day, and by the fictitious or indiscriminating learning that finds its way into multiplied law books, will reach conclusions which laymen perhaps cannot answer, but which mankind cannot tolerate. Such courts lose public confidence, and business forsakes them. It is an invariable truth, that the more thorough the legal acquirements of the judge, the nearer his decisions approach to ultimate justice.

“I believe I am correct in saying that none of the decisions in which Judge Prentiss participated have ever since been departed from. I think our Supreme Court has not found it necessary in the course of subsequent experience (and it is human experience that tries the soundness of legal conclusions) to overrule or materially to modify them.

“In 1830, as I have remarked, Judge Prentiss was elected to the United States Senate; we may well imagine, upon no solicitation of his own; and went to Washington to take his seat. And there, as I have also remarked, I became personally acquainted with him.

“And you will pardon me if I digress to say a word about that body, as it existed when I saw it for the first time. To comprehend what Prentiss was, it is necessary to comprehend what were his surroundings, and who were his associates. I venture to say that this world, so far as we have any account of it, has never seen assembled a legislative body, which, on the whole, and taking all things into account, could compare with the United States Senate at that period of our history. Not the Roman Senate, in its most august days; not the Parliament of England, when Burke and Pitt and Sheridan made its eloquence immortal; not that revered body of men who assembled together to create our Constitution. In the first place, it was made up by the selection of undoubtedly the very best men in every State in the Union, who could be furnished out of the political party which had the ascendancy in the State for the time being. The consequence was, that they were, almost without exception, men of the largest and most distinguished ability; and only the presence of the great leaders I shall refer to presently prevented almost any member of that body from assuming a position of acknowledged leadership. Though party conflicts at times ran high, their contentions were based, upon both sides, upon the Constitution, and upon the broadest and most statesmanlike views. Men might well differ, as they differed, about the right and wrong of the questions and issues of the day. Much was to be said upon both sides. But one thing was to be said on all sides; and that was that no man need be ashamed of being upon either side, because the groundwork of all was broad and statesmanlike and defensible.

“There was, besides, a dignity, a courtesy, an elegance of deportment pervading the deliberations of that assembly that could not fail to impress everybody who had the advantage of coming into its presence. No coarse personalities, no vulgarity of language or conduct, no small parliamentary trick or subterfuge was ever tolerated. And rarely have been brought together a body of men of such uniformly striking and distinguished personal presence.

"Time does not allow me even to name more than two or three of its members. I might cite almost the whole roll of the Senate in illustration of what I have said. Their names remain upon record as part of our history. It was once said that to have known a certain beautiful woman was a liberal education. I could say with far less exaggeration, that for an American citizen, and especially a young American citizen, to have known and seen the United States Senate of that day was a liberal education in what it most behooves an American citizen to know. He would have learned there, in such manner as never to forget, the difference between the gentleman and the charlatan, between the politician and the statesman, between the leader of men, who guides and saves his nation, and the demagogue who traffics in its misfortunes and fattens upon its plunder.

"Into that stately assembly walked, in 1830, one of the most modest, reticent, quiet gentlemen that ever lived; with no self-assertion, seeking no leadership, making few speeches, taking nothing at all upon himself, the representative of one of the smallest and most rural States of the Union, with no ambition to gratify, no purposes of his own to serve. But he came there, not to be inquired of by his distinguished associates, "Friend, how camest thou in hither?" He came to take his place from the first, and to retain it to the last, as their acknowledged peer. No man in that Senate was more thoroughly respected and esteemed. No man was more listened to, when on comparatively rare occasions he thought proper to address them. No man's opinion had more weight; no man's intimacy was more courted by the great men I have alluded to, than that of Samuel Prentiss. His position there, and his standing in the Senate, were such that he not only represented, but honored his State. It was a remarkable exhibition of the influence of high character, and of quiet intellectual force. He came to be regarded by many as the best jurist in the Senate, yet no jurist said so little on the subject. Although Judge Story was then sitting, in the height of his fame, on the bench of the Supreme Court, Chancellor Kent declared that he regarded Judge Prentiss as the first jurist in New England. And what was a great deal better than that, he was a man of an independence of character that nothing could swerve. One might suppose from what I have said of his modesty and gentleness, his consideration for others and his distrust of himself, that he would be a man who could be easily swayed and influenced. He was like the oak-tree, its branches bending in the breeze, the trunk solid and immovable. When the bankrupt law was passed in 1840, though it was strenuously urged by the Whig party, to which Judge Prentiss belonged, he opposed it. He stood out against the almost universal public demand; and he made a speech against it, which was said on all hands to be the ablest speech of the whole debate.* He could stand alone well enough when there was anything worth standing out about. The subsequent history of that bankrupt law demonstrated that Judge Prentiss was right. It was an ill-advised, hasty piece of legislation, which Congress was glad afterwards to abandon and repeal.

“I cannot dwell upon incidents of his senatorial career. I cannot rehearse or repeat anything from his speeches. I must pass superficially over much that might be dwelt on. The flying hour admonishes me that I must hasten on. One single passage let me quote from memory — and I can repeat substantially his language — in a speech made in the United States Senate in 1842, when in his own quiet and modest way he expressed what was the guiding principle of his public and political life. ‘I would not be understood,’ he says, ‘as undervaluing popularity because I disclaim it as a rule of conduct. I am quite too humble and unpretending an individual to count greatly upon it, or to seek for or desire any which does not arise from the pursuit of right ends by right means. Whatever popularity that may bring will be grateful to me as to any one. But I neither covet nor am ambitious of any other.’ He expressed in that modest way the same thought Lord Mansfield expressed when he said, ‘I am not insensible to popularity; but I desire the popularity that follows, not that which is run after.’

“In 1841, very near the conclusion of his second term in the Senate, he was appointed, by universal consent, and with unqualified approbation, judge of the United States Court for the district of Vermont, to succeed Judge Paine, who had deceased. He went upon the bench, and remained there the rest of his life.

“In those days, Judge Nelson was the judge of the Supreme Court of the United States who was assigned to this circuit. And unlike the judges of our day, who are either too busy or too little inclined to travel about the country and hold circuit courts, it used to be Judge Nelson’s practice, and his pleasure, to come up into Vermont

* Walton says in a note to his history of the governor and council, which he prepared and printed by order of the Legislature, that an old citizen of Vermont, who has been honored by high offices, has religiously preserved a copy of that speech and reads it once annually.

once a year at least, and sometimes oftener, and sit in the United States Court with Judge Prentiss. If there ever was a better court than that for the daily administration of human justice, year in and year out, in great matters and small, I do not know where it sat. The men were entirely unlike. No two judges so eminent could have been less alike than they were. Judge Nelson was not a great lawyer; he was a very good one. He had a large judicial experience, natural judicial qualities, great practical sagacity, a strong sense of justice, and the moral courage of a lion. He was probably one of the best presiding magistrates that has sat upon the bench of any nisi prius court in our day. Not, I repeat, because he was a great lawyer, but because he was a great magistrate. He had a sway over the proceedings of his court that controlled its results for good; there was a moral power and dignity about it that was salutary in its influence, not only on the business in hand, but upon everybody that came near it. It was felt by counsel, by juries, by witnesses, by parties. I used to think, as justice is depicted as bearing the scales and the sword, that Prentiss carried the scales, and Nelson the sword. Prentiss carried the scales, hung upon a diamond pivot, fit to weigh the tenth part of a hair; so conscientious he was, so patient, so thoughtful, so considerate, so complete in his knowledge of every principle and every detail of the law of the land. When he held up the scales, he not only weighed accurately, but everybody felt that he weighed accurately. But his very modesty, his distrust of himself, his fear lest he should go too far or too fast, deprived him to some extent of what might be called the courage of his judicial convictions. Nelson, when they sat together, always took care to assure himself from Judge Prentiss that he was right in his conclusions. They never differed. It would have been very difficult to have brought Judge Nelson to a different conclusion from what he was aware Judge Prentiss had arrived at. But the sword of justice in Nelson's hand was 'the sword of the Lord and of Gideon.' And when a decision was reached, it was put in force without delay or further debate, and without recall. And so it was that the court became like the shadow of a great rock in a weary land. It carried with it an inevitable respect and confidence. It was a terror to the evil-doer and the prompt protection of the just.

"These desultory observations upon Judge Prentiss's life, in its various relations, may perhaps have indicated sufficiently what I desire to convey, in regard to the qualities of his character and his intellect; he was a man of rare and fine powers, of complete attainments in jurisprudence, a student and a thinker all the days of his life; conservative in all his opinions, conscientious to the last degree, thoughtful of others, a gentleman in grain, because he was born so, a Christian in the largest sense of the term, whose whole life was spent in the careful discharge of his duty, without a thought of himself, his own aggrandizement, or his own reputation. I saw him for the last time I ever saw him, on the bench of his court, towards the close of his life, perhaps at the last term he ever held. He was as charming to look at as a beautiful woman, old as he was. His hair was snow-white, his eyes had a gentleness of expression that no painter can do justice to; his face carried on every line of it the impress of thought, of study, of culture, of complete and consummate attainment. His cheek had the color of youth. His figure was as erect and almost as slender as that of a young man. His old-fashioned attire—the snowy ruffle, the white cravat, the black velvet waistcoat, and the blue coat with brass buttons—was complete in its neatness and elegance. And the graciousness of his presence, so gentle, so courteous, so dignified, so kindly, was like a benediction to those who came into it. Happy is the man to whom old age brings only maturity and not decay. It brought to him not the premonitions of weakness, of disease and dissolution, but only ripeness,—ripeness for a higher and a better world. It shone upon him like the light of the October sun on the sheaves of the ripened harvest.

“Of his private and domestic life I forbear to speak. Historical societies have nothing to do with that. Some here are old enough to remember the admirable woman, his wife. Some may still remember his home, in a day when, as I have said before, the times were different from what they are now. Steam had not put out the fire on the hearth. Ostentation had not paralyzed hospitality. The houses swarmed with healthy children. There were fewer books, but more study. There was less noise and more leisure. There was plainer living and better thinking. He had, as some knew, peculiarities—eccentricities they might be called—in his personal conduct. They were nothing, probably, but the outgrowth of a strong individuality, which consideration for others restrained from having any other vent. His ways were exact; they were set; they were peculiar. When he came down from his chamber in the morning, and his family and his guests were in the house, he spoke to no one. It was understood that no one should speak to him. He passed through them as if in a vacant room, to his particular chair. He took down the Bible, and read a chapter; and he rose up, and offered a prayer. And then he went to the breakfast-table. After that, there was no courtesy more benignant and kindly than his. And that was an unvarying practice; and every one who knew the ways of his household respected it. It was the flower of that old-time reverence which distinguished his whole life; when he came forth in the morning, he spoke to God first.

“It never seemed to me — I was too far away at the time of his funeral to be present — it never seemed to me that he was dead. It never seemed as if I should find his grave if I explored your cemetery. He seemed to illustrate how it was that in the old days it came to be believed that some men departed this life without dying. He looked to me like a man who was only waiting to hear the words, ‘Friend, come up higher’; like one who in due time would pass on before us, not through the valley of the shadow of death, appointed to all the living, but walking away from us, upward and onward, until, like the prophet of old, he walked with God and disappeared from our sight among the stars.”

At the October session of the District Court of the United States for the district of Vermont for 1857, the death of Judge Prentiss was announced by Hon. Henry E. Stoughton, district attorney, whereupon the Hon. Solomon Foot, as chairman of a committee for that purpose appointed, reported the following resolutions, which, after remarks by his Honor Judge Smalley, and by Mr. Foot, were ordered to be placed on the records of the court:—

WHEREAS, The Hon. Samuel Prentiss, late judge of the District Court of the United States for the district of Vermont, having departed this life within the present year, and the members of this bar, and the officers of this court, entertaining the highest veneration for his memory, the most profound respect for his great ability, learning, experience, and uprightness as a judge, and cherishing for his many public and private virtues the most lively and affectionate recollection, therefore,

Resolved, That his uniformly unostentatious and gentlemanly deportment, his assiduous discharge of his official duties, his high sense of justice, his unbending integrity, and the exalted dignity and purity of his public and private character, furnish the highest evidence of his intrinsic worth and of his great personal merit.

Resolved, That the district attorney, as chairman of this meeting of the bar, communicate to the family of the deceased a copy of these proceedings, with an assurance of the sincere condolence of the members of the bar, and of the officers of this court, on account of their great and irreparable bereavement.

Resolved, That, in behalf of the bar and the officers of this court, the honorable the presiding judge thereof be, and he is hereby respectfully requested to order the foregoing preamble and resolutions to be entered on the minutes of the court.

Mr. Foot closed his remarks, after presentation and reading the resolutions, with the words, “And above all, and more than all, these moral and outward virtues were all tempered and beautified by the crowning graces of a Christian faith, of a Christian hope, and of a consistent Christian life. He knew and felt that ‘Tis not the whole of life to live,

Nor all of death to die,’ and hence for long years, his life had been but a continuous and living illustration of the great accordant precept of all natural and revealed religion, that while the fear of man is the consummation of folly, ‘the fear of God is the beginning of all wisdom.’ He died, as he had lived, calmly, peacefully, triumphantly.

‘Like a shadow thrown,
Softly and sweetly, from a passing cloud,
Death fell upon him.’

“His pathway to the tomb was all radiant with celestial light. Fortunate and happy will it be for us all if we shall improve the instructive lesson which is taught us in the history of such a life, — in the history of such a death.” *

Mrs. LUCRETIA HOUGHTON PRENTISS, eldest daughter of Edward and Sarah Smith Houghton, of Northfield, Mass., was born on the sixth day of March, 1786. At an early age she developed the germs of those rare excellences of character, and of those sweet Christian graces, that in so eminent a degree beautified and adorned her whole life, and won for her the esteem and love of all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance. Even at this day, one may find still prevailing in Northfield many traditions of her beauty of person and her manifold graces of character and conduct. On a recent visit to that charming country village, the writer was gratefully surprised to notice with what warm affection the memory of Mrs. Prentiss was universally held by the people, and with what earnestness they vied with each other in expressions of admiration of a character at once so beautiful and so lovely. Nearly every one had some pleasant story to tell of her early life. And one enthusiastic friend would not be satisfied until she had led us to the house, and into the very room, in which Mrs. Prentiss was married, and pointed out the particular spot on which she stood during the performance of the marriage ceremony.

On the 3d of October, 1804, at her father’s house in Northfield, she married Samuel Prentiss, then a young lawyer of Montpelier, Vt., and with him left the home of which she was the idol, and became, for the rest of her life, a resident at Montpelier. Here she lived, honored and beloved by all, for more than fifty years. Here, during all those years, she discharged with remarkable wisdom, fidelity, and devotion the varied duties of a wife, mother, friend, and Christian.

* For a view of his house in Montpelier, see first edition.

Here she was blessed as the mother of twelve children, — eleven sons and one daughter, — two of whom, the daughter and one son, died in infancy ; the others, ten in number, reached manhood, and all, save one, adopted, as their father before them had done, the profession of the law. “ In consequence of the close occupation of the time of her husband in his crowding legal engagements when at home, and his frequent and long-continued absences from home in the discharge of his professional or official duties, almost the whole care and management of his young and numerous family devolved on her. And those who know what unceasing care and vigilance, and what blending of kindness, discretion, and firmness, are required to restrain and check, without loss of influence, and train up with the rightful moral guidance, a family of boys of active temperaments, of fertile intellects and ambitious dispositions, so that they all be brought safely into manhood, will appreciate the delicacy and magnitude of her trust, and be ready to award her the just meed of praise for discharging it, as she confessedly did, with such unusual faithfulness and with such unusual success.” * Notwithstanding the ever-pressing and care-increasing demands of domestic duties, they were all promptly and well performed, nothing was forgotten, nothing slighted, omitted, or disregarded. Nor was she in the least unmindful of social duties. She neglected neither the poor, the sick, nor the church of which she was an active and honored member, but was ever faithful in the performance of duty to each and all of them. Especially to the poor, her heart was always open and her hand outstretched in loving ministrations. “ No case of distress or misfortune which was known to her,” said the Rev. Dr. William H. Lord, in a sermon preached at the funeral of Mrs. Prentiss, “ escaped her unostentatious charity, and her beneficence would take no refusal. By the strangers who partook of the hospitality of her husband’s mansion she will long be remembered for gentle courtesy, for the refined sweetness and unaffected grace and dignity of her appearance, and for the assiduous and earnest politeness with which she sought to anticipate every want and gratify every taste.”

Early in her married life, Mrs. Prentiss made a public profession of religion, and, with her husband, united with the Congregational Church at Montpelier. From that day to the hour of her death the beauty and gentleness of her pure religious life shone with a constancy of lustre that dazzled not, yet that attracted all observers and won the homage of all hearts. Its fragrance, like the sweet perfume of flowers, gently diffused itself upon all who came within the sphere of its influence. "Superior to the ordinary vanities of life," said Dr. Lord, in the sermon just quoted, "her chief adorning was not outward and worldly, but interior and heavenly, the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit. Occupying a position which she might have made subservient to personal gratification and display, she preferred the quiet discharge of her ordinary duties, and exhibited, in all her relations, the most entire unselfishness and generosity, ever ready to deny herself for the convenience and comfort of others. Of remarkable sweetness and gentleness of disposition, she was never thoughtless of the feelings of others, nor rash nor unkind in her words or actions. Thoughtful and reflecting, nothing escaped her observation. She never forgot a favor. She never remembered an injury. The one never escaped her acknowledgment and gratitude; the other never stirred her spirit."

So fully did she believe that "a soft answer turneth away wrath," that no instance is supposed to exist in which she gave expression to an uncharitable word or thought. Not many weeks after her death, the writer was told by Judge Prentiss that in all his married life, of more than fifty years, he had never known or heard of an instance in which she had spoken an unkind word or had lost the perfect control of her temper.

When her children had attained an age that placed them beyond the necessity of a mother's care, leaving them in the custody of others, she accompanied her husband, so long as he remained in the Senate, in his annual journeys to the city of Washington, where she remained with him during the sessions of Congress. Although she found many sources of enjoyment in the society and climate of Washington, it was, nevertheless, in her own quiet home in the beautiful village of Montpelier, in the midst of her own family, and surrounded by kind friends, that she found those pure delights and that sweet communion and sympathy that she so much desired. Here she found sources of enjoyment that existed nowhere else. It was here she loved to live, and here she wished to die. Here, in her own household, she was a light to the feet and a lamp to the path of all. Here she was the idol of all hearts. The early and cordial recognition by her husband of her rare combination of varied character and ability doubtless contributed in a great degree to establish in his mind the supremacy of her influence, and prepared the way for the exercise by her of that marvellous moral power with which she so modestly, yet so effectively, supported and sustained him in all the walks of his public and private life. In this connection, and as tending to show, in some degree, at least, in what estimation this noble and self-sacrificing woman was held by her husband and children, I append, with permission, the following extract from a letter written not many months after the death of Mrs. Prentiss, by one of her sons to his father, and by him carefully preserved : —

“ Your professional career, and your official character and position, have been, and are, such that you and yours may well be proud of them. You have rendered the State and the country distinguished service for a long series of years ; and the ability, uprightness, patriotism, and devotion to the Constitution and the Union which have characterized the discharge of all your public duties have challenged the admiration of the considerate men of all parties. With this knowledge, and a consciousness that ‘ all the ends you’ve aimed at have been your country’s, your God’s and truth’s,’ a review of your labors and services must prove to you, in your declining years, a source of high satisfaction and enjoyment. To the guardian angel who, from youth’s bright days to venerable years, walked hand in hand with you, sharing all your joys and sorrows, encouraging by her wise and hopeful counsel, her persuasive gentleness, and sweet, approving smile, your onward and upward career, your character, position, reputation and fame — the results of your united labors and efforts — proved a source of just yet modest pride, and furnished an ever-recurring occasion to her meek and gentle spirit for thankfulness to Him from whom all blessings flow. In them your children, too, who have so often listened with delight as she told, in her own simple and unpretending way, the story of your struggles and your triumphs, find abundant occasion for heartfelt pride and gratitude. Oh, how devoted as a wife, how dear and faithful as a mother ! How wise, how mild, how gentle, how indulgent : yet how complete her supremacy ! It was so in life ; it was even so in death. Her sweet and gentle nature shrank not merely from turmoil and strife, but even from public observation. But when called to struggle with the King of Terrors, she displayed a Christian faith and heroism which not only sustained and supported her in the otherwise unequal contest, but secured to her a Christian’s triumph and a Christian’s reward. Nobly yet meekly she fulfilled her mission on earth ! At peace with all, her pure and gentle spirit took its flight, and on angel wings soared to the bright and glorious mansions of the redeemed.”

Mrs. Prentiss bore all her labors and honors alike with meekness and humility. She was never elated with prosperity, nor depressed if adversity confronted her. Patient and submissive, she never gave way to regrets or complaints at any of the allotments of life, but displayed, in her whole history, in a very remarkable degree, those passive graces of character which are the fruit both of true heroism and true Christianity. “ She was a woman of the old times, and had in rare combination all those generous, exalted qualities of character that our imaginations are wont to attribute to the matrons of those by-gone and better days, in which the spirit of truth, sincerity, and simplicity, and the laws of courtesy and kindness, had not given place to the artificial tastes, superficial displays, and social rivalries" of a later period. To these and other personal characteristics, already mentioned, were added remarkable self-possession, decision, and firmness, and a harmonious blending of mental and moral powers, that gave grace, force, and dignity to a character conspicuous alike for gentleness and untiring moral energy.

At all times and under all circumstances, whether of joy or sorrow, one unfailing source of love and consolation was always open to her and to which she never failed to apply with the loving faith and simplicity of a little child. So she lived, the light and morning star of her household, the joy of her husband and children, until the fifteenth day of June, 1855, when, surrounded by her husband and her nine surviving sons, at peace with all the world, with "malice towards none, with charity for all," and with a countenance radiant with faith in a Saviour's love, she sweetly fell asleep. A few hours before her death, and with full consciousness that the end was very near, she said to one of her sons that she had no more fear of death than she would have in anticipation of meeting her dearest earthly friend. Such, in brief, and feebly sketched, was the life and such the death of Mrs. Prentiss.

Judge Thompson, in his "History of Montpelier," speaking of Mrs. Prentiss, writes as follows: "It would be difficult to say too much in praise of this rare woman. She was one of earth's angels. In her domestic and social virtues; in the industry that caused her to work willingly with her hands, in the law of kindness that prompted her benevolence, and the wisdom that so judiciously and impartially dispensed it; together with all the other of those clustered excellences that went to constitute the character of the model woman of the wise man, — in all these Mrs. Prentiss had scarce a peer among us, scarce a superior anywhere. As already intimated, she had done everything for her family. And she lived to see her husband become known as he 'sat among the elders of the land,' and her nine surviving sons, all of established characters, and presenting an aggregate of capacity and good repute unequalled perhaps by that of any other family in the State, and all, all praising her in their lives. These were her works, but not all her works. The heart works of the good neighbor, of the good and lowly Christian, and the hand works that looked to the benefit and elevation of society at large, were by her all done, and all the better done for being performed so unobtrusively, so cheerfully, and so unselfishly."

In her own sphere, and measured by its possibilities and opportunities, she was unquestionably the peer of her husband. In all the elements of true womanhood; in all the qualities of a noble wife and mother; in all that constitutes a perfect Christian character; in all the graces that exalt and adorn that character; in the meekness and gentleness of the "blessed" who "shall inherit the earth," — she was in the community in which she lived confessedly not only without a superior, but with few, if any, equals. Wholly unmindful of self, she lived only to do good to others, and thus, with works of love and charity to do her Master's will. Upon the occasion of her death a pall seemed to have fallen upon that community, and the people as mourners did go about the streets, sorrowing for the loss of a loved one who had gone, as she had lived, so quietly and so gently as to leave no ripple upon the surface of the placid waters.

"So fades a summer cloud away,
So sinks the gale when storms are o'er;
So gently shuts the eye of day,
So dies a wave along the shore."

"Oh, many a spirit walks the world unheeded,
That, when its vail of sadness is laid down,
Shall soar aloft with pinions unimpeded,
Wearing its glory like a starry crown."

APPENDIX B.

THE OLD NATHANIEL SARTELL BIBLE.

THE following is a copy of the memorandum written and signed by Nathaniel Sartell, when he was shipwrecked. It is on the last inside cover of the Bible: "Feb. 14, 1718. I was cast on the rocks of Quibberone, near Bellisle, in the bay of Resimea, all my men lost. — N. Sartell." He then put the Bible in a cask and threw it overboard, expecting to be lost himself. When the vessel went to pieces he took the cabin-boy on his back and swam to a rock, where he remained all night, bruised and exhausted; the boy died in the night. He was rescued next morning. The Bible also was saved. This was on one of his voyages to New England. He was absent so long on this trip that his wife sent a vessel in search of him, but on her arrival out he had returned to England. He and family settled in Charlestown, Mass., where he owned property, and next in Groton, Mass., where he d. Jan. 16, 1741, æ. 60. On the Sartell tomb in Groton is this, "From death's arrest no age is free." He lost the vessel and cargo and a quantity of silver plate when wrecked. He was in good circumstances, and again brought over valuable furniture and brocade and other dresses, in case his dau. Sarah, then about nine years old, should be married, and much pewter platter ware, etc. The Bible (title-page gone), printed 1707, tempus, William Rex, date of the Psalms, by Sternhold and Hopkins, in the end, is the date 1702. The covers are half an inch thick, of oak, covered with stamped leather, large wrought-brass clasps, covers project an inch, which has preserved the leaves. The family record of Rev. Solomon Prentice and wife Sarah (Sartell), on the inside first cover, is written by Nathaniel Sartell till 1740, nearly faded out, then continued by Rev. Solomon Prentice. On the blank leaf before the New Testament is a record of John Prentice's family by himself, and continued by Nathaniel Sartell Prentice, of Oxford, Mass. There was some ill feeling in the Sartell family when Sarah Sartell m. "a poor minister," and it is said she did not have a proper share of her father's estate. Before Nathaniel Sartell's death, he told one of the Prentice boys that he had remembered them in his will to help educate them, etc.; but at his death, only an old will was found, of Aug. 2, 1710, made in Gosport, England, on one of his early voyages, which his wife proved as his executrix, Aug. 2, 1742, leaving his wife the property for life,* and then part of it went to the town of Groton, to support a minister, and for a school. Before one of the Sartell family died, she sent for one of Rev. Solomon Prentice's boys, and told him that Mr. Sartell did make a second will more in their favor, "but she had buried it years before, under his head in the coffin." It was then too late. The descendants of Rev. Solomon Prentice contested the property to the town of Groton (see Vol. X., Pickering's Reports), for a deviation of the gift, the town having sold the lands. But possession was nine points of the law, and it was decided, if not the town's, it was the executor's, as residuary legatees. Daniel Webster was retained as counsel for the town. This old family Bible was produced in court on account of the record in it.

When Rev. Solomon Prentice was settled in Grafton, it was not allowable to read the Bible from the pulpit, but when afterwards it was permitted, he always used this Bible to read from, and it said his children and some of his grandchildren learned to read from it. A few years since, at the centennial celebration of the town of Grafton, Mass., this Bible was sought for, and a request sent to Ezra P. Prentice, of Albany, N. Y., who then had it, to loan it for that occasion, but he was so unwell then his family did not like to propose it to him, but the piece of brocade dress and silk-worked christening blanket, and the stamped leather chair-cover, were sent, and attracted much attention.

Sarah Sartell, of Gosport, Southrow, England, was executrix of Nathaniel Hawthorne, of Salem, Mass., late of Gosport, mariner, and Sarah Sartell, as attorney for her husband, Nathaniel Sartell, sells twenty-one poles of land in Salem, Jan. 7, 1712 (Essex County Deeds, Salem, 28-87). (She may have been a connection, perhaps sister, of Hawthorne; see the "Hawthorne Genealogy.") Savage's Genealogical Dictionary calls the name, Hathorne, or Hawthorne.

"Besides the Bible, a few articles that belonged to Sarah Sartell, wife of Rev. Solomon Prentice, brought from Great Britain, and handed down, are now in possession of Mr. Binney, viz., an embossed, gilded, and painted in colors, with flowers, etc., leather chair-cover, one of six which Rev. Solomon Prentice's dau. Mary (Prentice) Binney, wife of Amos Binney, Jr., of Hull, Mass., had, and which their daughters had, and gave to him, also a piece of Sarah Sartell's (P.) wedding brocade dress, and a piece of a christening blanket of silk, worked in silver thread and floss silk, with fruit and flowers on it, done in a nunnery school in Great Britain. Also, a very large pewter platter, a tall steel candlestick, with a branch and some tall, high-back chairs, were given to other members of the Binney family.

* The judge of probate allowed this will for the personal property only, as he had no real estate in 1710.

“Mr. Brooks came to Vermont in early manhood, and lived nearly fifty years on his farm, gained a competency, and was one of the best farmers in the country; was upright and true.” *

APPENDIX D.

DENISON.

WILLIAM DENISON, of Roxbury, Mass., and wife Margaret; she d. Feb. 3, 1646, and he d. Jan. 25, 1654. His son George, of Roxbury, b. in England; m., 1st, May 1, 1640, Bridget Thausen, and m., 2d, Ann, dau. of John Borrodall, or Borrodell, who gave her a house in Cork, Ireland, but he returned to the United States, and had, in Roxbury, John, b. June 14, 1646. The widow d. Sept. 26, 1712, ae. 92; none of his children seem to have had a Daniel, save John (above); this John, b. 1646, in Stonington, Ct., m. 1667, Phœbe, dau. of Robert Lay, of Saybrook, and was of Lynn, Mass., 1638; m. Sarah, and removed to Stonington from Lynn; her dau. Phœbe, was b. Jan. 5, 1651. Sarah, wife of Robert Lay, d. May 21, 1676, ae. 59. Robert Lay d. July 9, 1686, ae. 72. John Denison, b. 1646, had a son Daniel, b. March 28, 1680, who m., January, 1703, Mary Stanton, and their dau. Lucy was b. Oct. 15, 1714. He d. Oct. 13, 1747. (See "New England Historic, Genealogical Register," Vol. XIII., p. 73, for a short sketch of George Denison.)

BILLINGS-DENISON.

Phœbe Billings, wife of Col. Samuel Prentice, of Stonington, Ct., was dau. of Ebenezer Billings and wife Phœbe (Denison). Ebenezer Billings was probably the one b. Jan. 1, 1684. Ebenezer, b. 1684, was son of Ebenezer, of Stonington, and his wife Ann. Mr. Richard A. Wheeler, of Stonington, informed Miss Caulkins that William Denison, of Dorchester, came thence to Stonington among the first settlers of that town. This son, Ebenezer (b. 1684), m. Anna Comstock, and had, at least, a son Ebenezer, and others. The last Ebenezer m. Phœbe Lay Denison. (See Miss Caulkins's "History of New London, Ct.")

Daniel Denison was grandson of Col. George Denison, whose third wife was Ann Borrodell. Thaddeus William Harris, librarian of Harvard University, wrote, Nov. 9, 1854, that it is not known that Capt. George Denison, whose second wife was Ann Borrodell, had a son Daniel. Col. George Denison's will, Jan. 25, 1694, mentions his grandson and heir, George Denison, eldest son of John Denison, "Who shall pay to his brothers, John, Robert, William, and Daniel Denison, etc." (William Williams's letter, Norwich, Ct., Nov. 22, 1854, to Mr. Binney, with a copy of the will.) Col. George Denison's will mentions his great sword and gauntlets, "which I wore in the wars of England." And a silver spoon marked "G. D.," also his rapier and broad buff belt and cartridge-box and long carbine, "which I used in the Indian wars, and the silver cup, that was sent us from England, with Brother Borrodell's name, 'J. B.,' on it; his black-fringed shoulder belt, and 20/ in silver, to purchase a handsome rapier for it, to my grandson, George Denison, son of my oldest son, John Denison." It also mentions "rent of house in Cork, given my wife by her father, John Borrodell, at his death, and built by him on the 'Bishop's land.'" George Hoadley, of Cleveland, Ohio, writes, 1854,

"that in early life he knew a Col. Jonas Prentice, resident of New Haven, Ct., believes him to be a merchant, very respectable, but had not been fortunate in business. He was a tenant of the late Judge Chauncy, with whom Mr. Hoadley studied law." Perhaps father of the Jonas Prentice, a Yale graduate of 1784, mentioned in the note.

APPENDIX E.

THOMAS PRENTICE, the 2d, of Newton, Mass., was a joint purchaser of land with James Prentice in 1650 and 1657. They were probably brothers. "When he came into this village (Newton), he was called Thomas, Jr. When Capt. Thomas Prentice's son Thomas was grown up he was called Thomas, 2d. When his own son Thomas was grown up he was called Thomas Prentice, while Capt. Thomas, the trooper, was called and widely known by his military title." Mr. Edward Jackson, by his will, makes bequests to both these Prentices; the one he styles "Capt. Thomas Prentice," the other Thomas Prentice. Towards the latter part of his life he was called Thomas Prentice, Sen. He appears to have had a great horror of records; nowhere does his name appear except when he could not help it. He was a selectman four years, 1686, 1690, 1699, and 1700, and his son Ebenezer was constable in 1687. The town clerk was obliged to record these notices. So also of the register of deeds. There is not a scrap of record about him among the births, marriages, or deaths, nor in the probate office. Had it not been for the deeds he could not have been penetrated. By Edward Jackson, Sen.'s, will (1686) we learn that he m. his (Jackson's) dau. Rebecca by his first wife, and that he gave her a gold ring with this motto, "Memento mori," and that he bequeathed to her husband, Thomas Prentice, one hundred acres of land at the south part of the town near "Baldpate meadow" (where he built a house and resided during the latter part of his life), and two other tracts of land. In 1688 Thomas Prentice, Sen., son-in-law to Edward Jackson, consented that Jonathan Jackson, of Boston, might sell the lands bequeathed to him by his father (Edward Jackson, Sen.'s, will). In 1694 Thomas Prentice, Sen., and Rebecca, his wife, conveyed land to Rev. N. Hobart. In 1706 he conveyed land to his grandsons, Thomas and Samuel. In 1714 Thomas Prentice, Sen., conveyed by deed of gift to his son Thomas P., Jr. (after his decease), his homestead at "Burnt Hill" in Newton, adjoining to the new dwelling-house of said Thomas (except what he had allowed to his son-in-law, John Hyde, and reserving one third of the cedar swamp to his sons, John and Edward). This deed was acknowledged May, 1714, and recorded June 24, 1724, probably the year he died. He also conveyed land to his loving son John, a "cordwainer," in 1714. He lived to a great age, near one hundred, but the time of his death is unknown. His heirs, however, sold his dwelling-house and farm in June, 1728, and said "of Thomas Prentice, late of Newton." His wife Rebecca was bapt. in London, Oct. 10, 1638 (per the parish register of Whitechapel). The time of her death is also unknown.

APPENDIX F.

STANTON.

THADDEUS WILLIAM HARRIS, of Cambridge, Mass., b. May 27, 1854, wanted information of "Dorothy * Stanton, who m. May 7, 1796, in Stonington, Ct., Mr. Nicholas Lynde, by whom she had a son, Joseph Lynde, afterwards of Charlestown, Mass., and father of Thaddeus William Harris's grandmother, Mrs. Dorothy (Lynde) Dix, formerly of Boston. His grandmother, Dorothy, as well as his cousin, Miss Dorothy Lynde Dix (of philanthropic fame), and his own and only sister, Miss Dorothy Harris, all bearing the Christian name of their Stanton ancestress. Miss Caulkins, of New London, Ct., supposed that said Dorothy Stanton was probably dau. of John, son of Thomas and Ann Stanton, of Stonington, Ct., though her name seems to have been omitted among the births of said John's children on the Stonington records. Mr. Nicholas Lynde was b. July 2, 1672, and probably his wife Dorothy was near his own age, or perhaps some younger, which would give her birth about 1672. This Nicholas Lynde d. in 1708, and the widow and two children removed to Charlestown, Mass., where the Widow Dorothy (Stanton) Lynde m. Jan. 22, 1707-8, Mr. John Frerice. She survived him and is said to have returned to Connecticut, and m. twice afterwards; her last husband being (as supposed) a Denison, and that she d. ae. over 100 years. Such is the tradition, at least, in the Harris family." "I lose all positive knowledge of her after her marriage to Frerice."

DOROTHY, dau. and seventh child of Thomas and Anna Stanton, of Stonington, Ct., m. Rev. Joseph Noyes, first pastor of Stonington, Ct., a man of note in his day, who d. 1714, ae. 91. Thomas Stanton left England at the age of 30, in 1635, for America (b. about 1615), and was a man of note. Traded with the Indians and served as interpreter with them from the Connecticut Colony. (See Miss Caulkins's "History of Norwich, Ct.," page 296.)

* Dorothy was long a Christian name, also, of the Prentices in that line.

APPENDIX G.

STANTON AND DOROTHY PRENTICE.—STEARNS AND JENNISON.

HENRY BOND, of Philadelphia, Pa., in 1852 wanted information of Josiah Stearns or any of his family, and said "that Dr. Stanton Prentice m., in Watertown, Mass., June 26, 1840, Mary Jennison, dau. of Samuel and Mary (Stearns) Jennison. Mary (Stanton Prentice's first wife), was first cousin of above Josiah Stearns; and Dorothy, being a sister of Stanton Prentice, favors the presumption that it was this Dorothy Stanton Prentice's sister who m. Josiah Stearns, and to judge from the date of the two marriages that there was this double connection between the Prentice and Stearns families, Josiah Stearns, of Watertown, having m. about 1741, for his second wife, Dorothy Prentice."

STANTON PRENTICE, of Lancaster, and his brother, Thomas Prentice, of Lunenburg, petitioned for protection of Township No. 4. (See "Genealogical Register," Vol. XIII.) (See page 169 for Thomas Prentice, and page 172 for Dr. Stanton Prentice.)

NATHAN STANTON, of Preston, Ct., d. January, 1874, in Preston, Ct., a prominent man; was an uncle of George D. Prentice, late of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

APPENDIX H.

JOHN³ PRENTIS and wife sign this statement Nov. 8, 1711: "I, John Prentis, having divers children born in my house of the body of my Indian woman Rachel, and I have formerly disposed of some of them to my children by word of mouth, and others being yet with me, I do confirm what gifts I have made and dispose of them this date as follows: To my son-in-law, Thomas Hosmer, of Hartford (formerly given), one black girl named Limone till she is 30, then she is to be free. To my son-in-law, Rev. John Buckley, Billah, to be free at 32. To my daughter Sarah, Zilpah, to be free at 32. To Elizabeth a black boy named Hannibal, free at 35. To Irene, a boy named Yorke, free at 35. To Scipio I have promised freedom at 30. Rachel, the mother, I give to Irene; also the little girl with her named Dido, to be free at 32. Also a feather bed and its furniture to each of the daughters." Oct. 15, 1693, Richard, Mr. Prentis's Indian, baptized. Dec. 4, 1720, Rachel, Indian servant of Widow Prentis, admitted to the church and her child Dido baptized.

APPENDIX I.

THE golden wedding of Rev. John Homer Prentiss and wife Eliza (Butler) Prentiss was celebrated Sept. 6, 1870, at the residence of C. E. Butler, at Payson, Ill., where he had formerly preached and gained many friends. The occasion was a very pleasant one. Mrs. Prentiss's brothers, S. W. Butler, of Sandusky, Ohio, E. W. Butler, of Griggsville, Ill., and many relatives and friends, were present. Mr. Prentiss briefly recounted the great changes of fifty years, and in his usual humorous manner referred to the significance of a golden wedding in these days of divorce. Many golden gifts were given and a bountiful collation spread for all. The following first and last two verses of the poem of eight verses sung are given here and called "Just Fifty Years ago."

"Just fifty years ago this pair
Before the altar stood;
And both resolved to be but one
For evil or for good.
Their hands they joined, prepared to meet
Life's changes, weal or woe;
And here they stand, as there they stood
Just fifty years ago.

"And we, dear friends, who here have met
Our kindly will to show,
Be ours their joys (without their pains)
Of fifty years ago.
And if we still keep living on,
Which Heaven can only know,
We may look back, as they now look,
To fifty years ago."

CELEBRATION OF THE GOLDEN WEDDING OF ALONZO AND MIRANDA (PRENTISS) KING.— "The day was all that could be desired, a golden day, mellow and sunny, without the sultriness of summer. On the green lawn in front of the house was built a spacious arbor of fragrant spruce and fir boughs, tastefully festooned with evergreens, and decorated with flowers and portraits. By three o'clock the house was filled with relatives and friends, and the exercises were opened with prayer, followed by singing, and an appropriate address by Rev. Dr. Estes, of Paris, Me., who in a happy manner explained that though the actual anniversary came the April before, this first day of autumn was selected as being more convenient for the family to come together, and, on the whole, this season, with its golden days, was thought more appropriate, the springtime and autumn symbolizing their married life. The address was followed by the singing of a fine original hymn, written by Rev. Henry M. King, of Boston, and the reading of letters from those unable to be present. With the letters were read the following lines, written by Mrs. Mary H. (Prentiss) Cummings, of Buckfield, Me. The poetic picture is so vivid and graceful as to demand insertion of two of the stanzas here:—

' Dear cousin, I'll not have to tell
Who wrote these lines of doggerel;
I shall not need to sign my name,
To tell you whence such couplets came.
For you have known, from early time,
Just such exploits of hasty rhyme.

' Dear cousin, as the setting sun
Shows that your day is nearly done,
May every cloud of earth depart,
And faith grow strong within your heart;
And, when you reach the mansions fair,
May all your loved be with you there.'

"Congratulations, addresses, the presentation of many gifts, and a most bountiful collation, closed the happy gathering, which will long be remembered by all who were present."

The Yates County Chronicle, Penn Yan, N. Y., May 20, 1875, has a pleasant notice of the silver wedding of Augustus W. Prentiss and wife, Amy S. McCauley, with the numerous silver presents. Of thirty-six persons present at the wedding in 1850, twelve were at the silver wedding, including Mrs. John Rippey, her bridesmaid; one hundred and twenty-five persons were present in 1875, including her sister Margaret.

APPENDIX J.

HAMMOND.

ESTHER HAMMOND, of Newton, Mass., was descended from Thomas Hammond, of Lavenham, Suffolk County, England, who m. Rose Tripp, May 14, 1573, and had at least these children: Elizabeth, bapt. April, 1573 [4]. William, bapt. Oct. 30, 1575. Thomas, bapt. June 9, 1587.

THOMAS HAMMOND, 2d, was of Hingham, Mass., in 1636, a free-man March 9, 1637. NATHANIEL HAMMOND, of Cambridge Village (Newton), had by wife Mary: Nathaniel, bapt. Feb. 19, 1671. Mary, b. Dec. 15, 1672. Sarah, b. Oct. 3, 1675. Nathaniel, b. Jan. 26, 1676. Esther, b. —; who m Samuel Prentice, Sen., of Newton,† Mass., and Stonington, Ct. Elizabeth, b. March 11, 1683. Thomas, b. Feb. 27, 1686; and Hannah, b. March 31, 1689.

Willard's "History of Lancaster, Mass.," refers to Rev. John Prentice, of Lancaster, and to ancient documents, or diaries, of Rev. John Homer, of Newton, who d. 1843.

APPENDIX K.

BALDWIN.

C. C. BALDWIN graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Ct., 1855. LL. B., at Harvard, 1857. Was admitted as a law student in office of Frederick James Prentiss, and on the latter retiring from the law, he gave Mr. Baldwin his place in the business, quite valuable and without charge, and that year admitted to the Cleveland bar. In 1861 was a partner of S. B. Prentiss, who had been the law partner of Frederick J. Prentiss, and when the latter went on to the bench Mr. Baldwin went into law partnership with his father-in-law, C. W. Prentiss. In 1882-3 he continues in the practice of law, under the form of Baldwin & Ford; has corporation and national-bank business. He is president of the Cleveland Board of Underwriters, president of the Cleveland Linseed Oil Works, trustee of the Law Library, chairman of the Bar Association, and director or trustee of other banking, literary, or charitable institutions, secretary of the Cleveland Historical Society, corresponding member of the New England Historic, Genealogical Society of Boston, was elected in 1879 corresponding member of the Worcester Antiquarian Society, and in 1880 of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, in 1881 of the Minnesota Historical Society, and in 1882 of the Virginia Historical Society. In 1880 he published the "Baldwin Genealogy" from 1500 to 1800, 8vo, pp. 974, and in 1832 the "Candee Genealogy," with notices of the Allyn, Catlan, Cook, Mallery, Newell, Norton, Pyncheon, and Wadsworth families; and articles on "John Bower, first minister of Derby Ct.," "Early Indian Migrations in Ohio Illustrated," "Geological History of the West," "Address 1880, before the Pioneers of the Mahony Valley," and others. Mr. Baldwin, by his wife Caroline, Sophia (Prentiss) had; 1. Mary E. Candee, Jan. 1, 1864. 2. Samuel Prentiss, Oct. 26, 1868. 3. Seymour David, Nov. 20, 1875, d. Sept. 17, 1878. 4. Mabel, Sept. 24, 1880. Mr. Baldwin was b. in Middletown, Ct., Dec. 2, 1834, son of Seymour W.⁹ and Mary (Candee) Baldwin, son of Charles and Susannah (Hine) Baldwin, son of Silvanus and Mary (French) Baldwin, son of Barnabas, son of Richard (the first settler in Milford) and Mary (Alsop) Baldwin, son of Sylvester and Sarah (Bryan) Baldwin, son of Sylvester, son of Henry Baldwin, son of Richard B., whose will is of Arton, Bucks County, of Jan. 16, 1552-3. Among Mary Candee's ancestors were, Capt. Joseph Wadsworth, famous with the Connecticut charter; Hon. John Allyn, for thirty years prior to 1696 secretary to the colony of Connecticut, and a judge, colonel, etc.; William Pynchon, first treasurer of Massachusetts Colony, elected in England, and families of Springfield; Gov. Thomas Wells, of Connecticut, and others. C. C. Baldwin furnished the writer with much information.

APPENDIX L.

HALL AND KELLOG.*

JUDITH HALL was a dau. of Timothy Hall, a lieutenant in the Revolutionary war, and was of Concord, Mass., and wife Ann (Foster). Erastus⁵ Kellog, of Peacham, Vt., b. APPENDIX M.

HANCOCK.

THE ancestors in America were Nathaniel and wife Jane, of Cambridge, Mass., 1635.

Rev. John, son of Nathaniel and Mary (Prentice) Hancock, b. 1761 ; Harvard College, 1689 ; d. Dec. 5, 1752. Was the first minister of Lexington, Mass., ordained Nov. 2, 1698 ; had previously preached at Wells and York, Me. He m. Elizabeth Prentice. Among his children were : Thomas, b. July 13, 1703, who in his day was the most wealthy merchant of Boston, Mass., and who founded the professorship of Oriental languages at Harvard College. Another son, John, Harvard College, 1719, was minister of Braintree (Quincy), Mass., one of whose sons, John, b. Jan. 12, 1737, in Quincy, Mass., was educated by his uncle Thomas, as his father died when he was young. He entered Harvard College at the age of 16, in 1754, and after graduating was taken into his uncle's counting-room and succeeded to his business and estate ten years after. He was treasurer of Harvard College in 1776. He m., in 1775, Dorothy, dau. of Judge Edmund Quincy. In 1766 he was chosen member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, and " was a bold asserter of liberty." In 1774 he was president of the Provincial Congress.

In June, 1775, Gov. Gage offered pardon to all rebels, excepting John Hancock and Samuel Adams. He was president of the Continental Congress, 1775. His was the first signature to the Declaration of Independence, " bold enough for King George to read without glasses." He resigned in 1777, on account of health, and was elected governor of Massachusetts from 1780 to his decease, October, 1793, except in 1785 and 1786. Gov. Hancock and Rev. Caleb Prentiss were great-grandsons of Henry Prentice, the Cambridge " planter." Thomas Hancock, the rich and benevolent merchant, owned a large estate on Beacon Street, Boston, including the State House grounds (his pasture), and including a part of Mt. Vernon Street and the Reservoir grounds. In 1737 he built one of the noblest mansions of the colonial period, of stone. After his death, in 1664, it passed to his nephew, Gov. Hancock, who resided there till his death. It was torn down, 1863, and Gardner Brewer built two houses on the site of it. A number of portraits of distinguished persons were in it. What became of them ?

APPENDIX N.

LETTER OF CAPT. THOMAS PRENTICE,

(THE TROOPER, OF NEWTON, MASS.)

AUG. 8, 1689.

To the Hon^{ed} Governor and Counsell:

And please your Honors, having received orders from you with my Troop to Bristoll to move, in order to receive Sir Edmond Andros from the Gentlemen at Rhod. Island, from Roxbury, about 3 of the clock, we moved away to Mr. Woodcock's, on Wednesday, to Bristoll, just after noon; coming to Rhod. Island same day; the counsell being discoursed with much civilitie, they delivered Sir Edmond, and with a passag boate, sent us to Bristoll. And Sir Edmond complaining of indisposition of body to ride, either swift or far together, our return will not be as your Honors may expect. The Gentlemen of Bristoll favored us with their advise and company to Rhoad Island. Please your Honors, it is requested by Sir Edmond, and requested by the forenamed Gentlemen, that Sir Edmond may be conveyed by Dorchester to the Castle, if your Honors please there to secure him, and upon our approach towards Boston we will give you an account thereof for suitable opportunitie for our guarding him to foresaid place. This being in hast. for opportunitie of sending.

I subscribe, Your Honors, humble servant,

THOMAS PRENTICE, Capt.

APPENDIX O.

CRAIG.

JOHN, eldest son of Tolmer Graig (whom. Mary Hawkins, and d. 1795), m. Sally Page, and settled in Boone County, Kentucky, and had nine children, of whom Nancy, the eighth child, m., 1st, Mr. Barthomew, who d. without issue; she m., 2d, Mr. (Thomas Mellen)

Prentiss, Dec. 26, 1807, and had by him (per the Craig tree) five or six children, John, Juliette, Eliza Ann, William, and Pamela; which differs somewhat from the record of Thomas M. Prentice's family (No. 120). (See Horace G. Craig's letter, Lexington, Ky., March 9, 1876, to Edwin C. Prentiss.)

APPENDIX P.

LIEUT.-COL. ROGER HARLAKENDEN, of Earle's Colne (a parish in Essex County, England), sailed Aug. 10, 1631, with Rev. Thomas Shepard and others, in the "Defence," from London to Boston, with his young wife, Elizabeth, dau. of Godfrey Bosseville, to whom he was m. June 4, 1638. Roger Harlakenden d. of small-pox in Cambridge, Mass., 1638, and was buried with military honors. He came to Cambridge in 1631(?). He was a friend, patron, and protector of Mr. Shepard in England. His sister Mabel m., in Cambridge, Lieut.-Gov. John Haynes, of Massachusetts, who went to Connecticut in 1637, and was governor there. "Roger Harlakenden was a godly man, and of good use in the Commonwealth and Church." He was buried in the old burying-ground opposite the colleges; his grave is unknown. His widow m. Herbert Pelham, first treasurer of Harvard College, who returned to England, 1649. Roger Harlakenden was a brother of Richard Harlakenden, to whom the General Court granted six hundred acres of land, "if he came over," but as he did not, it was given to Roger Harlakenden; the latter was a member of Mr. Shepard's First Church in Cambridge, and was made freeman, March 3, 1636, with Samuel Harlakenden.

SHEPARD.

Rev. Thomas Shepard, pastor of the First Church, in Cambridge, Mass., since called the "Shepard Church," was a licensed lecturer by the Puritans in England, and was a deacon there. He went to Earle's Colne, a parish in Essex County, England, and there he was the friend of the Harlakendens, a family of note in that parish. Roger Harlakenden was his friend, patron, and protector, with whom Mr. Shepard and some sixty others came over in the "Defence" from London to Boston, 1631, and two days after arrival Mr. Shepard went to his friend Stone's, in Cambridge. Mr. Shepard m., 1st, Margaret Tauteville, a relative and resident of Sir Richard Darley, in Buttercrambes, Yorkshire, England, to whom, then, Mr. Shepard was chaplain. Bishop Laud silenced Shepard. Their first child d. in Yarmouth, England. His son Thomas was born in London, and bapt. in the United States, and who became pastor of the Charlestown, Mass., Church, and was succeeded by his son Thomas. Mr. Shepard came with his wife and children, and brother Samuel. The Shepard emigrants bought the houses of Rev. Mr. Hooker's congregation, who went with Hooker to Hartford, Ct., in 1636. Mr. Shepard's church in Cambridge was organized Feb. 1, 1636, O. S. Mr. Shepard, in England, was a pensioner of Emanuel College. Cambridge, in Massachusetts, was first called Newtown, and was settled 1631. The First Church was formed in 1636, and the Cambridge platform adopted in 1648. The church united with the Shepard Congregational Society, 1829. (The new stone church edifice erected 1872.) Mr. Shepard d. Aug. 25, 1649, ae. 44. His wife d. soon after his arrival, and in 1637 he m., 2d, Joanna, eldest dau. of his predecessor, Rev. Thomas Hooker, who, after three years' residence in Cambridge, went to Connecticut. She d. nine years after, and Mr. Shepard m., 3d, Margaret Borrodell, who afterwards m. Mr. Shepard's successor, Rev. Jonathan Mitchell. Mr. Shepard left four sons: 1st. Thomas, the pastor of the Charlestown Church; 2d, Samuel, Harvard College, 1658, and pastor of the church in Rowley; 3d. Jeremiah, Harvard College, 1669, ordained in Lime, Ct., where he was pastor forty-one years.

THE PRENTICE COAT-OF-ARMS.

THE late Ezra P. Prentice, of "Mt. Hope," Albany, while in England, procured from the Herald Office, London, the Prentice arms as he was assured as represented on p. 249 of the first edition, and reproduced in this edition a gyron of eight ar. and or. on a chief ar. A fleur-de-lis between two crescents gules; crest, an eagle displayed, in his dexter claw a dagger, in his sinister claw a pistol. Motto: Droit en avant. Burke has the same. These arms are used by the Prentice family of Leeds, Stowmarket, etc.*

Prentys, Norfolk County, England, chev. or. and sa. Three greyhounds courant, counter changed, collared, crest, a demi-greyhound rampant or. collared, ringed and lined sa.; the line coiled in a knot at the ends.

Nathaniel Appleton Prentiss, Esq., 59 Liberty Street, New York City, has a stamp made of these arms for note paper and the crest with this motto under the latter, Droit et en avant, which he thinks more appropriate. This could not be used for this book. He says these arms were worked on a satin sampler by his great-aunt Elizabeth, dau. of Rev. Joshua Prentiss, of Holliston, Mass., which is now owned by his aunt, Mrs. Henry Prentiss, No. 16 Bulfinch Street, Boston. This sampler was mentioned in the first edition. It was formerly owned by his father, Nathaniel Appleton Prentiss, of South Andover, Mass. Burke has these arms.

Prentis, Scotland, ar. a chev. between three greyhounds courant sa. Crest, a leopard's face gu., spotted or. (per Burke), who also gives Prentisse, az a chev. between three roses ar.

* The colors are represented on the title-page.

Frederick Prentice, Esq., sheriff of Norwich, Ct., said his father had a coat-of-arms, but it disappeared.

Mrs. Stetson, a granddaughter of Rev. Thomas Prentice of Charlestown, Mass., had in Dorchester, Mass., the Prentice and Kettell coat-of-arms united, as named on p. 250 of first edition (painted by Doyle, in Boston, who painted them to suit). On the left half of the shield, divided by a perpendicular line, is the Kettell arms, viz., upper and lower part sa. chev. with three female figures in white kneeling. The Prentiss half has the upper and lower part of the shield ar., divided by a bar gu., two greyhounds in the upper part and one in the lower part, all sa., in the bar a demi-lion rampant az.

Caleb Prentiss, of Danvers, Mass., had a coat-of-arms (probably one by Doyle) and said to be Prentiss. Crest, a huntsman with a gun by his side and a greyhound, sa., below him a helmet, visor closed, shield ar., with a chev. gu., a demi-lion rampant az. in the middle of the chev.; above the lion, a greyhound on the left and one on the right side and one greyhound on the lower part of the shield below the chev.; the greyhounds sa. Motto below the shield, "By the name of Prentiss." This is said once to have belonged to Elizabeth, dau. of Rev. Joshua Prentiss, of Holliston, Mass.

A coat-of-arms worked on satin and framed was owned by Nathaniel Appleton Prentiss, of South Andover, Mass. Crest, a greyhound couchant; shield three lozenges; two upper sa., lower one ar., three greyhounds couchant in the shield (two above and one below) sa.
